

Vets Build Nativity Set

When it was suggested that Marian should have an outside Nativity set, the Vets Club volunteered their services in conjunction with the Student Board.

Phil Brady sketched preliminary designs and scaled models of the figures. Figures of the Christ Child, His Mother, and St. Joseph are constructed of 3/4" steel tubing, superimposed on full-scale drawings. Mr. Gordon Reeves, college maintenance superintendent, and Lucy Kato assisted the Vets.

Painted glossy white and set against a solid black background, the figures offer a semi-abstract effect while retaining the traditional Christmas motif. The set is located on the hill in front of the library. Floodlighting accentuates the scene against the black background.

According to the Student Board the project will be expanded in the future to include such figures as the Magi, shepherds, angels, and the animals.

All School Fete Fires Seasonal Glow, Merriment

Officially heralding the campus Yuletide season, the Student Board Christmas Party took place Dec. 16.

"Santa's Sadistic Dream" was the theme of the sophomore skit. The cast of 15 included a narrator presenting a special adaptation of "Tis the Night Before Christmas," about various faculty members, and, of course, Santa Claus. Directors of the skit were Delores Stiglich and Andy Wagner.

Mellotones and the Men's Glee Club presented choral selections.

A songfest, directed by Father John Kahle, concluded the program.

Decorations and publicity for the program were handled by the senior class. Juniors planned refreshments. Members of the freshman class constituted the clean-up committee.

TV Program Stars Monsignor Reine

Monsignor Francis J. Reine, president, appeared on the television program Signature, Dec. 3, to discuss the history and philosophy of Marian College.

Mr. John Lorand, an Evening Division art instructor here, conducts the weekly hour long interviews for WTTV, during which he sketches a charcoal portrait of the interviewee.

Among those scheduled in the series of 11 interviews are: Father Raymond Bosler, editor of The Criterion; Dr. Wilbur Peat, director of Herron Art Museum; Mr. Thomas Boardman, editor of The Indianapolis Times; Dean Wilfred Bain of Indiana University School of Music.

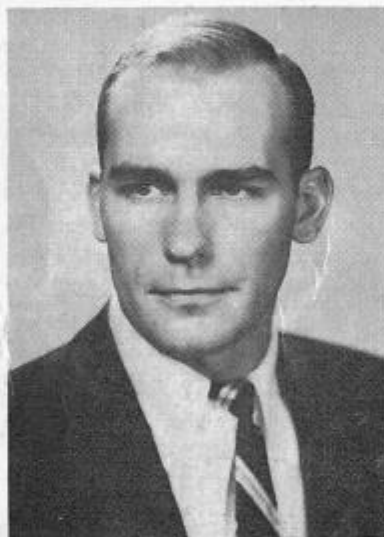

Former Congressman to Speak On 'Case for Democratic Party'

Former state representative Andy Jacobs will speak on the "Case for the Democratic Party" at a convocation, Jan. 9.

Mr. Jacobs, son of a former Indianapolis congressman, was graduated from Indiana University and Indiana University School of Law. He served in a Marine Corps combat infantry during the Korean War.

During the 91st Session of the State Legislature he represented Marion County. Mr. Jacobs is now a practicing lawyer.

In March, a member of the Republican party will address the students at an assembly.

Yule Spirit Lends Motif To Assembly

Sights and sounds of Christmas will greet Marianites at the convocation, Dec. 19, at 10:30 a.m. At that time, the true Christmas spirit will unfold through a presentation of the traditional Madonna-and-Child tableau, a Spanish mystery play, and sacred song.

The Christmas Madonna of 1963 is Judy Dill, senior, of Brownstown, Ind.; the Infant is the son of Edward Bussing ex '62, and Mary Agnes Milharcic Bussing '60.

Los Pastores, a play concerning the shepherds on the eve of Christ's birth, will be read by members of the acting technique class under the direction of Mr. Robert Moran. Originally brought from Spain by the conquistadores this play was enacted in the Church by families who had played the same roles for generations.

In 1961 this custom was revived by a Franciscan priest at Holy Cross Retreat House in Las Cruces, New Mexico.

The script was secured for Marian's stage by Judy Pille who saw it presented in the Southwest.

Participating in the reading will be: Bob Campbell, Mike Cancilla, Jerry Gantner, Marie Jochim, Bonnie Johnson, Dianne Lenarz, Judy Pille, Terry Tehrany, Charlotte Van Noy, and Dave Whitsett and Tom Widner.

Novello's arrangement of Adeste Fideles, the contribution of the Marian College Glee Club, will be conducted by Mr. James McCaslin, director of the Men's Glee Club.

Literary Groups Plan Twelfth Night Party

The traditional Twelfth Night Party will be held Jan. 6, 8-10 p.m., in the Women's Lounge.

Sponsored jointly by the Literary Discussion Group and the French Club, this event will feature readings of the Christmas gospel, singing of traditional carols in various languages, and free refreshments. All students are invited to attend.

Student Board Enforces Policy

At a special Student Board meeting, Dec. 9, the four editors of the Gadfly were revealed. The Gadfly was an unauthorized publication which appeared twice after the Student Board had redefined its policy concerning publications.

Editors were: Dave Allison, Jerry Gantner, Dick Dufour, and Bob Campbell. The latter two were Board officials—day student rep. and president, respectively.

After announcing their identity, Bob Campbell handed the gavel to Bonnie Johnson and submitted himself and the other three to the Board's disciplinary program.

At the meeting the next day both Bob Campbell and Dick Dufour resigned their Student Board positions. The four editors were placed on Social Restriction until the end of the semester and Social Probation for the remainder of the year for defying Board policy.

Festivities Spark Homecoming

Homecoming weekend, Jan. 10-11, will feature "stationary floats" constructed by the four classes. A trophy will be awarded for the best float, as decided by five judges from the administration and faculty. Judging will take place Jan. 10 at 4:30 p.m.

That evening the queen and her court will be presented at a WARA sponsored mixer in the Mixed Lounge at 8 p.m. Robert Bates '57, first vice-president of the alumni association, will crown the queen at the pep session outside the Lounge.

At this time the M-Club will present the queen with a dummy, symbolizing the Concordia Saxons. She will toss it into the bonfire as her first official act.

Saturday's events will begin with an alumni officers' meeting at 10 a.m., followed by a smorgasbord from 11-12:30. Tours of the South Campus will be provided.

The game against Concordia will begin at 2:30 p.m. in Marian's gym. At halftime Theresa McCarthy Maxwell '56, alumni association president, will introduce the queen and her court.

Saturday night's dance will climax the weekend. At 10:30 the queen will formally receive a bouquet of roses. Music will be by the Headliners. Tickets are $3.50.

Queen candidates are: Marie Jochim and Jo Ann Lauck, seniors; Connie Turk and Connie Widolff, juniors. Other members of the court are: Regina Hyatt and Nancy Michael; sophomores; and Brook Bergan and DiAnn Blazic, freshmen.

Voting by the whole school will be Jan. 6.

Alumni, faculty, and student representatives compose the Homecoming committee: Miss Mary Haugh '50, and Mr. Joseph Turk '57, alumni; Marilyn Wiwi, coordinator of student activities. Sister Mary Edgar, executive secretary-treasurer for the alumni, is general coordinator.

'Like a Giant Cedar ...'

"Our Father, Thou knowest that this sudden, almost unbelievable, news has stunned our minds and hearts as we gaze at a vacant place against the sky, as the President of the Republic goes down like a giant cedar green with boughs goes down, with a great shout upon the hills and leaves a lonesome place against the sky. . . .

Hold us, we pray, and the people of America, calm and steady and full of faith for the Republic in this tragic hour of our history."

These words of Chaplain Frederick Brown Harris, D.D., Chaplain of the Senate, on the day of the death of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Friday, Nov. 22, 1963, are expressive of the sentiments of the nation as a whole and of Marian College.

Although the initial shock has past, Americans still are struck by the vastness and profoundness of this vacant place against the sky.

President Kennedy was well loved throughout the country. But he was especially dear to the hearts of the nation's youth. Part of this is due to his own youth. He was proof that age is not a prerequisite of leadership.

This love was returned by the President. He placed great faith and confidence in youth. He felt that youth was our nation's greatest product.

He loved to address groups of students and always had an encouraging word for them.

A television commentator covering the funeral remarked that the average age of the crowd, which was composed of persons from all over the nation, was in the early twenties. What greater proof of the love of youth for the President?

Outstanding qualities of youth, shared by President Kennedy, are idealism and a willingness to try the untried, to experiment, to brave the "New Front."

Many of his policies were new and unprecedented. But he was not afraid to try them. And most of the time they worked. That his plans might be continued and that he shall not have died in vain, we add our voices to that of Chaplain Harris in praying:

"God save the state and empower her for whatever awaits for the great world role she has been called to fill in this time of destiny."

Ironic Use of Discipline Program — Against Author

During the presidential campaign last spring, Bob Campbell's platform consisted mainly of a discipline program which he, if elected, would strive to put into effect. At the beginning of this year, Bob headed the committee to draw up a program and he worked very hard to have it passed by the Board.

How ironic then, that the first person to come under the program was Bob himself and another member of the Board.

When adopting the discipline program it was hoped by the Board members that it would never be used. The thought that one of their own might come under it did not enter their minds.

When it did become necessary, however, to call two of its members before it under the discipline program, the Board did not hesitate to use it. In fact, it administered

Lack of Interest Denotes Apathy

When The Shadow of a Gunman was presented on campus a few weeks ago only an estimated 150 students saw it. How does one account for this? A probable answer is that some students simply do not like plays, but surely not 550 of them.

Unfortunately this apparent indifference is not limited to dramatic presentations. There are several other fields of campus life in which it has frequently been exhibited.

Small though our gym may be, it is rarely filled during athletic events.

Noon recitals usually attract only a few scattered listeners.

Coffee hours, too, are sparsely attended.

What can be the reason for this lack of student participation? We hate to cry "apathy" it is such an over-used word, but in this case it seems to be the only appropriate one.

Interest has subsided past the point of indifference.

If things proceed in this downward path what will happen to the spirit and pride of Marian College? Those who do plan and work and practice in anticipation of an event only to discover that no one cares enough even to come and see what it is all about will adopt a cynical, why-care attitude.

In order that Marian students may improve themselves culturally, intellectually, and socially, we encourage them all to take advantage of the opportunities which are being offered to them now.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

Christmas vacation is almost here (at long last). The editor and staff of the Phoenix would like to take this opportunity to wish each and every one of our readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We also encourage all of you to remember to drive extra carefully during the holidays.

FYI

Despite our suggestions, the exam schedule still isn't up. Wouldn't it be nice if we knew before the vacation when each test will be? If this is impossible we certainly hope that it will be posted when we return.

FYI

While we're on the subject of examinations, we'd like to point out that the rumor which was going around saying "no comps" is, unfortunately, false. So, seniors, better get started studying. Feb. 28 and March 3 will be here before you know it.

FYI

Three cheers for the American University Field Staff. Once again they have sent a very capable and informative lecturer—Victor DuBois. Too bad he could not have stayed until Thursday for a discussion during the assembly period. That way no one would have been in class and everyone could have received the benefit of his observations and research.

FYI

Anyone who has not had his picture taken for the yearbook had better hurry. The deadline is Dec. 20.

FYI

Hats off to the editors and contributors of A Bird's Eye View of Vatican II. This informative little bulletin is the only contact that many students have with the Council and is greatly appreciated.

FYI

We would like to welcome at this time our new men's sports' editor, Robert Hensel. Don't miss his newsworthy column on page four.

FYI

The busy vets, becoming popular as quite a creative group, are putting last minute touches on the crib scene to be placed on the hill in front of the library. Last year's Student Board decided, rather than appropriate money for a creche, to make it a student project. The Vets Club volunteered to undertake it and the results will soon be visible.

Congratulations to Mary Owen, recently elected president of the freshman nursing class at St. Vincent's.

FYI

Anyone interested in learning more about the NFCCS can come to the assembly in January. Sponsored by the Student Board, it is designed to acquaint students with the organization and its benefits, both tangible and intangible, to Marian students.

FYI

Ann Delmas, freshman from San Francisco, had never seen snow before coming to Marian. Said she to her roommate: "Wake me when you hear it snowing." Following the first snow, she commented: "It sounds lovely."

In Memoriam

Marking the 30th anniversary of the death of the Most Reverend Bishop Joseph Chartrand, D.D., a memorial Requiem Mass was offered in the college chapel, Dec. 9. Bishop Chartrand, to whom the chapel itself is a memorial, died Dec. 8, 1933.

Richard Thomas Myers, who attended Marian 1958-1961, with a year's interruption for study in Germany, died Nov. 10. Mary Jeanette Herman, who died Nov. 12, attended Marian 1959-1960 as a student nurse from St. Vincent's.

We request a special remembrance in prayer for the deceased.

Angels' Message Still Meaningful

At midnight on the first Christmas a multitude of angels sang of "... good will toward men."

Centuries later we still hearken to these same words. At Christmas time especially, we are full of good will, showering all our friends with gifts.

But there is more to the concept of good will than the giving of gifts. It also implies an inner feeling of love for all mankind, not only for those selected few whom we call "friend."

We must do our part to promote the harmony lauded by the angels. Perhaps this can best be accomplished by cleansing our hearts of all types of prejudice.

The Ecumenical Council is doing much to dispel religious prejudice by promoting the interfaith dialogue and suggesting an easing of interfaith marriage laws.

Leaders of our country are considering civil rights legislation. By openly supporting such laws we can do our part to rid the nation of racial prejudice.

As a Christmas project we ought to resolve to treat every man as our equal. Then, the rest of the angels' song, the wish for "Peace on earth ..." might be achieved.

Last Minute Gift Suggestions

It's Christmas-time when everyone's fancy (both young and old) turns to thoughts of gifts. And the proper way in which to think of gifts, so we've been told, is in the light of giving, rather than receiving.

Now just about everybody knows that the average college student (and even some not capable of being classified as average) is subjected to a rather tight budget. In view of this fact, we have compiled a little list of helpful ideas which, although inexpensive, will enable students to treat everyone on their Christmas lists and still have money left for New Year's parties.

First of all, for your roommate, especially if you tend to study aloud, to talk in your sleep, or to keep the volume on the radio or phonograph rather high—a set of ear-plugs. (If you're really desperate for funds, cotton balls will do the trick. You could even monogram them for that extra personal touch.)

Your best friend deserves the finest—a list of excuses to be used for coming late to class (suggestion: I tripped and fell over a stack of Vatican II's on my way up the steps); missing a lecture period (I spent the entire hour defending your method of teaching); or failure to turn in an assignment on time (All the reserve books were out of the library before I got over there). You might also include a bit of friendly advice on how to raise grades (Try studying).

Of course your favorite teacher deserves some recognition. We suggest an inexpensive, handmade bookmark. Simply paste a picture of teacher's current idol on a thin piece of paper. Note: if you're in doubt concerning whom to use, try St. Francis—he's a sure winner with the nuns.

Student Board members could be presented with an emergency lunch kit. It needn't contain much—just enough to tide them over when meetings run past the 5:30 mark.

And don't forget your favorite editor. He or she would probably appreciate a set of rewards to give to reporters who turn assignments in on time, and punishment for those who do not.

Merry Christmas to all!

—M.J.

Club Chatter

The Christmas season has given special impetus to a series of club projects.

Among Sodality members the most important single project has been the setting up of the Advent wreath near the chapel. Christmas caroling was sponsored by the group.

Le Cercle Francais Announces Officers: Presents Dr. Pappas

Le Cercle Francais, new campus club, has elected as officers; Helena Rosse, president; Sue Charbanneau, vice-president; Sally Meyers, secretary; Susie Fox, treasurer. Moderators of the club are Sister Augustine and Mrs. Coonrod. Each of the monthly meetings will be conducted in French by a committee with an officer as chairman.

Its primary purpose is to increase the knowledge of the French language and contemporary French culture.

Guest program, Dec. 9, featured Dr. John N. Pappas, of Indiana University French and Italian department, in an illustrated French lecture on contemporary life in Paris and its environs. Photographed by Dr. Pappas, the color-slide views highlighted such distinctive features as the historic chateaux, the metro, and the sidewalk cafes. Of special interest were the Sorbonne classrooms and the Guinol, home of the famous children's puppet show.

Art Students Present Exhibit

By invitation, an exhibit of Marian College art was recently displayed at North Central Junior High School.

Beginning Nov. 15 the showing was intended to promote greater interest in art among the students.

Compositions in the collection were done in oil, water color, pencil, and with palate knife and brush. The display included work by senior Lucy Kato and six alumni: Patricia Gropp '61, the late Larry Ittenbach '58, Marie Krebs '62, Marie Mastruserio '63, Maribeth Schubert '63, and Judy Slattery ex '52.

Keynote Address Stresses Liturgy

At the Ohio Valley Region NFCCS council meeting at Marian, Dec. 8, "Liturgy and the Effects of the Ecumenical Council on Liturgy" was the keynote of the guest address by Father Albert Ajamie, of the theology department. He stated that the purpose of the liturgy, a continuation and living expression of the Church, is the summit and source of effectiveness of all Church actions.

It is of utmost importance that liturgy be simple and clear so that people come into contact with the reality of the Church. Arguments for the use of the vernacular in the liturgy follow from this, as do those for the adaptation of liturgy to the culture of people using it.

During the business meeting a resolution commending the sale of wheat to Russia was passed. A Catholic University Relief Administration (CURA) project, selecting a papal volunteer from a regional school, was adopted.

Students, Faculty Member Go to Capital; Attend Burial Services of Late President

by Mary Margaret Turk

Nov. 22, 1963, has marked the pages of future history books and has ingrained an indelible impression on these present generations. History, in a sense, was deflected in an unforeseen direction with the split second decision of an assassin's bullet. A catastrophic event in history had cast its spell before unbelieving eyes and mankind was robbed of a leader but not his memory.

Few citizens of the world were given the opportunity of witnessing a public memorial for the assassin's victim, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Ten Marian College students and a faculty member represented the feelings of the college community in Washington, D.C. and their impressions voiced a universal feeling, "Something of ourselves had died with this man."

The decision to follow the caisson in its last visit to Washington, D.C. was sporadic for these students, who felt this was the least they could do in admiration of this personable world leader. Their impressions of the trip are heavily clouded with emotion and shock.

"An air of unreality" permeated Washington following the assassination and the Marian College contingent was swept wholly into it. The capital was struck by a deadening quiet and its citizens could not fully comprehend what had happened. The streets of Washington shouted with the hoofs of the horses, clicking of the military boots, the grinding of the caisson wheels, and the shuffling of humanity.

Washington, the seat of American political life, hid its partisan antagonisms and both Democrat and Republican leaders were profoundly hurt. "Washington was so shocked that the news of the death of Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin, could not shock it anymore."

The Marian College groups were unable to view the casket at the Rotunda because of the tremendous influx of citizens to the Capitol Building. At the time of their arrival 5:30 a.m. on Saturday and 4:30 a.m. on Monday, the mourning lines were 30 to 40 blocks long.

Funeral services and burial were equally impressive to the students as they recapitulate their pilgrimage. The final sounding of "Hail to the Chief" and the salutes of the 21 guns and the Air Force jets moved Washington to the realization of a funeral. Prior to these soul-tingling tributes, the country had stared in disbelief that such a dynamic leader and personality was no longer stirring the world with his intelligence and wit.

The students were: Pat Felke, Nancy Kathman, Susan Parrish, Donna Tatroe, Kitty Tung, Mike Brown, Tom Egold, Mike Leonard, Harry Oldham, and Larry Zimmerman. Mr. Robert Moran, department of speech and theater, accompanied the group.

Honors Program Gains 'Second to None' Rating

After attending the recent state wide Honors Conference at Ball State Teachers' College, Mr. Tutungi, chairman of the Honors Program, said, "In all modesty, we have one of the most desirable programs in Indiana. It is a very good program, second to none." This comparison was made with colleges of like aims, sizes, and student bodies represented at the conference.

Women's Status: Conference Views By Miss Haugh

Miss Mary Haugh, of Marian's sociology department attended, by invitation, the first Governor's Conference on the Status of Women to be convoked in Indiana.

This conference, as part of the Indiana State Commission, was set up in connection with the late President Kennedy's program on the status of women. The national commission was assigned "to indicate what remains to be done to demolish prejudices and outmoded customs which act as barriers to the full partnership of women in our democracy."

The three-fold purpose of the conference is to survey facts in Indiana regarding women in all aspects of their lives, to identify areas which should have priority for attention by the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, and to secure from the participants suggested guidelines for the work of the commission.

When asked about topical discussion, Miss Haugh said that laws pertaining to equal pay for equal work, regardless of sex, was a main issue.

Begun experimentally in 1959, Marian's honors program has as its primary concern to discover and develop those students who possess a certain intellectual ability and capacity to benefit from independent work.

Mr. Tutungi attributes much of its success and standing to the commitment of the administration to the program, evidenced in part by the fact that an honors degree is attainable only through this program.

Participants in the Honors Program are entitled to a special pin and certain privileges. They are not subject to attendance regulations. They meet and dine with distinguished speakers and visitors to the college. Credit may be earned for the senior project in the major fields.

According to Sister Mary Carol, history department, graduate fellow at Columbia University, those on Honors here compare favorably with graduate students in her seminars.

Costa Rican Address Boosts Faculty Record

Father Joseph Dooley, of the history department, will deliver the graduation address at the Instituto Pedagogico de Religion in San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 21.

Father taught at this school in 1950.

CHUCK FEDERLE (31), Marian's 6-1 junior forward, drives in hard for the score in the Knight's cage contest with visiting Hanover. Hanover edged the Knights in an overtime, 78-74.

Good Sports-Keeping

WARA, to encourage athletics among the women of Marian, initiated an intramural program. In October, 27 girls appeared at the first volleyball play-offs. From the results of the turnout, this new idea of women's intramurals showed signs of promise.

Expectations, unfortunately, fizzled with the results of the next practice. Only 10 girls returned, not even enough for two teams.

Now with the basketball season open, WARA plans to reinstate the intramural program. At least four teams are desired. Games would be played bi-monthly on Sunday evenings. Interested students are asked to contact one of the tentative captains: Mary Margaret Turk, Carol Roell, Patty Michael, and Marian Rivas.

Intramurals offer the student a chance to develop athletic skills, to get wholesome exercise, to work as a member of a team in cooperation and spirit, and to have fun.

It will be sad if the Marian women refuse the opportunities of the intramural program promoted by the WARA.

Three Swim Classes Share Marian Pool

Marian's pool in the library basement is well-heated for the 40 students participating in swimming classes. Courses, held in connection with the physical education department and the Indianapolis Red Cross are: senior life saving, advanced beginners, and beginners programs.

Tina Broadstreet and her assistant, Gail Dunlevy, supervise the senior life saving class while Janet Kelly, aided by Carol Kaw-sky, is in charge of the first advanced beginner swimming program held on campus. Miriam Kaeser and Ann Wilson teach the beginners course.

Knights' Tale • Bob Hensel Sports Editor

President John F. Kennedy's death at the hands of an assassin on Friday, Nov. 22, cost the world not only a great leader, but a great sportsman as well.

Here, indeed, was a man, a true competitor, who recognized that sports and the American way of life go hand-in-hand since both have the same objective—to win.

OUR TRIBUTE to an exalted leader and a real sportsman.

Well, the Knights are on their way, but where they're going is hard to say, just now at any rate. After dropping the season's opener to Hanover, 72-59, in the City of Richmond Tourney, our gallant men of the boards bounced back to down Earlham in the consolation game, 87-73. It looked for a moment that things might start coming up roses, but then—boom—two losses in a row, one to Franklin, 80-77, the other to Hanover again in an overtime, 78-74.

The loss to Xavier, whose coach is talking national championships, was expected, but the Knights gave their best performance in five years of competition against the Muskateers, losing 101-77.

The contest with St. Joseph's fell to the Pumas, 80-63, but Marian charged back against Concordia, downing the Saxons 85-70. At press time the record stands 2-5. Not very impressive.

But let's face it; the Knights are suffering from two chronic ailments—inexperience and lack of depth. You just can't keep time with the veterans with problems like these; and, friends, we have problems.

IN SEVEN GAMES only seven of our Knights made the scoring column; the team committed 124 errors to its opponents' 81. Inexperience? Lack of depth? And how!

However, brighter days may be in store, and one of the bright spots on the horizon is freshman, Rich Damm, 6-4, not yet a starter, but totting a 13.6 scoring average and hitting .575 of his shots. Rich is still green, but give him time.

Sophomore Bernie Schneider, back from last season, is just coming into his own. An improved ball handler, a good mover, and death on those shots from just outside the key-hole, Bernie is averaging 13 points and hitting .423 from the floor.

And watch out for Kie O'Connor; he's a real hustler and learns fast.

Of course, there's always Chuck Federle sporting an 18.6 average; once he smooths out his game, there'll be no holding him.

SO LOOK OUT, everyone, here comes Marian!

Intramural Ball Makes Debut; 11 Teams Vie

by Nick McGill

As the fans cheered, the ball was passed swiftly down the court and put through the hoop. Intramural basketball was off to another flying start.

Interest this year seems greater, due to the number of teams. The league, consisting of 11 teams, plays five games each Sunday, starting at 1 p.m.

Well balanced, the league has at least six teams capable of taking the title. The pre-season favorites are the Finks, defending champs, trying to retain their title. Their main challenge will come from the Sugars, Passionate Few, Vets, Trotters, and Stu-Bums. The remaining teams, with upsets in mind, are: Bunnies, Bombers, Eagles, Jokers, and the Rejects.

Action began last Sunday, the pre-season favorites and contenders winning easily. The Finks defeated the Rejects 68-29, Leo Clouser and Harry Oldham leading the way.

Other action saw the Sugars down the Bunnies, 51-48; the Trotters crush the Bombers, 66-19; the Stu-Bums trounce the Eagles; 72-20; and the Passionate Few win out over the Jokers, 69-27.

The Maids have been practicing for several weeks, in order to start the season off on the right foot.

Practice sessions for the Maids reveal that the team is steadily beginning to work better as a unit. Now that the butterflies and kinks have been taken out by steady practice, the team hopes to settle down to a winning season.

Six seniors head this year's line-up: Carol Roell, captain, Helena Rossi, Donna Frerick, Mary Margaret Turk, Marian Rivas, and Bonnie Johnson. Judy Farmer is the sole junior. Sophomores include Marge Heuther, Sue Charbonneau, Susie Mitchell, and Evelyn Looney. Freshmen, Dianne Schuck and Marie Depasse, and special student, B. J. Jacobs, complete the squad.

M-Club Presents New Sports Blazers

Once again the M-Club has made strides in the field of school publicity. Due to the financial co-operation of the Athletic Department and the M-Club, the Marian College Knights Basketball team in the near future will appear at all games wearing dark blue blazers, presented by the M-Club.

This gift will help enhance the appearance of the Knights as they travel.
