Vol. 37-No. 6

One of the finer policies of this school is expressed in the last three paragraphs on page 19 of the Student Handbook. I am referring to the campus policy on films, which permits the showing of all films except those that contravene state law. In having adopted this statement, the college has shown a real interest in the development of its students as well as a confidence in its own educational process.

Film is a powerful media demanding the involvement of the viewer. Marshall McLuhan states, "It engages you"--hitting the viewer with a tremendous amount of input (audially and visually). As such, its ability to saturate a viewer with information, is important to realize.

In light of this, Marian College, through its film policy, shows a responsible attitude toward its purpose of education. This objective is bound up in preparing students to become mature, responsible, thinking adults.

Film is one good vehicle for eliciting thought in that it recognizes the value of presenting controversial issues. If controversy proves to be offensive to someone, he should lock himself up in his room for that is the only place he could possibly (if a possibility exists anywhere) escape it.

Marian strives to maintain an atmosphere of an "exploring education, that is, one that seeks wisdom wherever wisdom can be found." The present film policy is consistent with this objective. It is good to see the institution uphold policies supporting this goal, and even better to see it exhibit such confidence in its ability to educate.

P.A.M.

The popularity of the Republican candidate for governor, Otis Bowen, among some students here at Marian seems to have a large basis on his campaign stand that the age of majority should be 18. Of course this is also the stand the Democratic Welsh-Bodine ticket. How can we test the sincerity of these stands? Otis Bowen's term as Speaker of the House gives us a chance to see if his actions were consistent with his words.

When the House Bill which would have granted the 18 year old majority passed through the House this past winter, Otis Bowen did not vote. This bill passed through the Senate only to be vetoed by the Republican Governor Whitcomb. The bill was returned to the house for an attempt to override the veto. Otis Bowen did not vote. As Speaker of the House can he claim he follows a policy of abstention on all but tie-breaking votes? No, for he has voted on measures other than tie breakers. The speaker of the house is acknowledged to be the most powerful man in the General Assembly. As elected leader of the Republican majority did Bowen exert his influence on his colleagues to secure the 18 old majority? The record shows the Republican representatives voted 42-11 not to override the veto, while the Democrats voted 24-17 to do so (including present Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor, Dick Bodine who as minority leader in the House also voted for initial passage of the bill). From the record then it would seem that either Bowen was a weak and ineffectual leader in the House--or he was not as committed to the 18 year old majority as he would now have us to believe.

Bowen did not vote for Indiana's young people, should they then vote for him?

From the Masses:

Dear Editors:

Clare Hall Board, representing the women residents of Marian College, voted to temporarily close its lounge to males. The lounge will be open to males on the weekends from 7:30 Friday to midnight Sunday. If conditions remain at their present level this privilege will also be revoked. This action will go into effect Monday, 16 October, and will be enforced until such time that the conditions which prompted the closing of the lounge are bettered.

- The reasons for the Board's action are:
- 1) lack of concern for the appearance of the lounge
 - 2) lack of respect for the property of others
 - a. broken furniture
 - b. furniture moved and not returned to its original arrangement
 - c. papers scattered throughout the lounge
 - d. lack of responsibility of those who use the lounge and fail to maintain its appearance
 - e. the consumption of food and drink in the lounge which violates the guidelines for the use of the lounge
 - 3) lack of consideration for others by allowing the lounge to deteriorate
 - 4) use of affection to such an extent as to cause embarrassment to those in the lounge and to discourage others from using the lounge

Clare Hall wishes to maintain a formal lounge where all people will feel comfortable. If this situation cannot exist with the lounge open then it will remain closed.

Pres., Clare Hall

To the Marian Community:

For years our society has permitted the existence of segregated restroom facilities for men and women in both private and public institutions. In times of emergencies, women have had to endure the humiliation of being confronted with that most degrading of all signs, which so proudly states, "Men Only". However, we were guaranteed that the principle of "separate but equal" restrooms was being followed so we meekly consented to this arrangement.

During the past week, the juke-box from the Perc was moved into the men's restroom in SAC for a period of time. This incident clearly shows how the separate but equal principle is being used as a facade for the oppression of women. Are the men's facilities so good that they actually go to their restrooms to listen to music? What other luxuries do they have? Can we really believe their statements that their restrooms are as unclean, their toilet paper as rough, and their plumbing as faulty as ours?

Communal restrooms seems to me the only way of guaranteeing truly equal facilities. I urge all the women of Marian College to join me in a sit-in at the SAC restrooms beginning today until this demand is granted--Stand up, sit down, fight, fight, fight for your rights and the rights of all women.

To the Carbon Editors:

The Fioretti, the Marian College Literary Anthology, is accepting original poems, prose, artwork, and photographs for the fall issue. Drawings and photographs must be in black and white. Contributions for the semi-annual booklet may be placed in the information office by November 1st.

The content of the Fioretti depends upon the creative contributions of faculty and students. Questions regarding publication may be directed to Sherry Meyer, 704-3507, or Ellen Dugan, 631-3465, Fioretti editors.

Thank you,
Sherry and Ellen

THE HOSTAGE

Brendan Behan, author of "The Hostage," the hilariously irreverent comedy that will open at the Marian College Theatre on Oct. 13, was never one to spare his own when it came to ruffling the feathers of the complacent or the hypocritical. Just as "The Hostage" slings its zestful and outrageous barbs at English and Irish alike, so his novel, "Borstal Boy" based on his experiences in a British reform school (Borstal) after his arrest for political activity at the age of 16, spares neither side in the Anglo-Irish dispute. The book became a best-seller in England and America, but Ireland banned it. Now the lusty Irish writer goes about bellowing (to the tune of "MacNamara's Band):

"Oh me name is Brendan Behan, I'm the latest of the banned,
Although we're small in number, we're the best banned in the land;
We're read at wakes and weddin's, and in every parish hall,
And under lib'ry counters, sure you'll have no trouble at all."

"The Hostage", among its twenty-odd song and dances, numbers a few barroom favorites that have been doctored in similar fashion, but its two most favorite songs are original ditties entitled, "There's No Place On Earth Like the World," and "Don't Muck About With the Moon." Behan's comedy-drama-musical-vau-deville show will be playing at the Marian Theatre Oct. 13 through 15.

I am a sinner.

I do not kiss the lips
of mourners who spread
their flowers of their grief so deep in my path.
I only crush the petals and laugh.

I am a sinner.

I do not cherish the eyes
of warriors, glittering with triumph in the lives
they have lost.
I see not the holiness of their cause.

I am a sinner.

I hold no regard for those who savor
the fruits of compromise.
Damn its sweet pulp--
I spit its seeds in their eyes.

I am a sinner.

I plan thoughts which reap great harvests of stones
yet learning and strength
are the virtues
Of those who must stand alone.

Intramural Football

Since last week's predictions were only wrong on 3 out of 4 games, we have been told that we grossly underrated the victors. We felt the predictions were consistent with our 6% success factor.

In the first game, Butt rolled over the Mother Truckers 27-0. Once again Joe Kusnitz was the man as he threw for two touchdowns and ran for another. But it was the razzle-dazzle touchdown pass from Fabulous Fran Ketter to Ric Martin that gave Butt its boost.

Game 2 saw the Vice Lords eke out a 15-0 win over War. The first score came on a safety, but Pat Zapp connected with Paul "Omer" Gerth for a 20 yard touchdown soon after. Later, Zapp threw his second score to Jay Farrell. Although the Lords clearly played the better game, mention should be made of the effort of War's defense. It was cunning Calvin Mitchell who saved War deep in its own territory with his timely interceptions. The Lord's defense, however, was equally tough in never allowing such scoring threats to develop.

Game 3 saw the Gods of Hellfire come back to win 13-6 over the Lone Rangers. Both teams cried their way through the game, but the passing of Wild Bill Doherty proved extra sharp as he hit on scores to Jim Herbe and Tony Fornuto. The Rangers lone score came on an early pass from Kenny Tyrell to Ken Aust.

The final game saw the Elders wipe out Hobbit's Heroes 26-0 on three scores by Joe Putz. This is all we have on this game. For more information read Toad's fine analysis this week in the Phoenix (You traitor, Hammerle! E.Mc. and P.A.M.).

This Sunday's schedule:

- 12:30 Vice Lords vs. Butt
- 1:30 Lone Rangers vs. Elders
- 2:30 War vs. Mother Truckers
- 3:30 Gods of Hellfire vs. Hobbit's Heroes

The Old Master predicts:

- Vice Lords cream Butt
- Lone Rangers shoot up Elders
- War blows up Mother Truckers
- Gods overpower Hobbit's Heroes

The old lefthander cannot round third this week because he is being held Hostage.

VOTE

Another exciting week in Women's Intramural Volleyball has come and gone leaving only two undefeated teams in rivalry for the championship.

Monday night's action was characterized by an upset as Main Ingredient handed 8-Pak Plus One for the Road their first defeat. The Whalen-Mils-Luthman combination forced an Ingredient momentum and drained the 8-Pack of their spirits.

The Snatches had a brief illusion of victory when at one point the undermanned team of 4 tied the tough Wazuri team with an 8-8 score but in the end were defeated in 2 games. East Wing gave Volumptuous Vollies (Is that anything like Ziegfield Follies?) a scare only when after three games this tough freshman team finally conceded defeat.

Marsh-Mellows stuck Volley of the Dolls with a loss as the hours of practice finally showed in the Mellows game. The Curran to Yunker plan was especially successful. The Blue Yarn tied up Flischel's Farm-Outs for an easy victory. Gagan's Gangsters came through with a win over Indiana Bombers after recovering from their previous first loss last week. The Gangster's were in team form once again as they continue to be a threat.

The Red Hot Mamma's could not get it together as they fell victim to L&M. 3-M Company and Squatty and Friends both chalked up victories as Brand X and Bruno's Raiders forfeited.

The highlight of Wednesday night's competition was the showdown between once defeated 8-Pak Plus One and the totally victorious Volumptuous Vollies team. Athletic ability was equally matched and the result of the game depended on the mood of the individual teams at that particular time. Mood and skill prevailed as the Volumptuous Vollies came out on top despite excellent team effort of 8-Pak.

Somewhat of an upset, the Volley of the Dolls defeated Main Ingredient. The Main Ingredient is the same team who constantly hands out first losses to the really tough teams but in turn receives their defeats from teams who have only one or two previous victories. Consistency on the part of Ingredient could have made this freshman team a real threat. But the Volley of the Dolls, led by "Spike" Ruth Merkel, played an excellent game and just could not be stopped.

Once again undermanned, the Snatches team of three (and later four, compliments of 2 East) defeated the Red Hot Mammias. The Mammias' failure to move as contrasted with the Snatches' need to cover the entire floor was the key to the snatched victory.

The Indiana Bombers destroyed the team effort of East Wing with an outstanding serving show by Bonita Berry. The Marshmellows, in true winning form, again defeated Flischel's Farm Outs. Championship bound Wazuri rallied over Squatty and Friends. The Blue Yarn, with only one loss under their belt, handed L&M another defeat. Gagan's Gangsters finished the week with a 7-1 record as they trounced 3M Company. A double forfeiture provided Bruno's Raiders and Brand X with losses.

So as only two undefeated teams remain to contest the championship title, this is (etc.)-Wap
