Cable Installed in Residence Halls

Karen Walsh

It's finally here for those who want it. Cable is no longer something offered only at larger universities. Over Christmas break, American Cablevision began wiring the dorm rooms, and now 346 rooms are wired for cable, including the three dorm lobbies.

Representatives from American Cablevision were here January 26-29 outside the cafeteria to take orders and answer any questions students might have about this new service. Steve Roy, Steve Rutledge, and Kurt Newhouse were the representatives at Marian, and they were able to answer many questions and dispel some of the rumors that have been circulating among the students.

This semester, cable is optional for students. Students who want cable in their rooms can pay a lump sum of either $73.69 or $106.52 to obtain service for a 99-day period (through May 8, 1992). Two options are being offered.

Package one is cheaper for $73.69 and includes the 37-channel basic cable service for 99 days. Package two is approximately $33 more for the same length of time, but with this plan a student is paying for basic cable and HBO, and getting Cinemax free. The cost is per room, rather than per person, allowing students with roommates to split the cost.

Those students who were the first to sign up on January 26 will get cable installed first. The total cost is to be paid before it is installed, which most college students consider to be a lot of money to come up with in just a couple of days' time. The representatives did say students could sign up to get cable later in the semester if they change their minds, by calling the cable company directly. However, these students would then have to pay the installation fee, which is normally $40. As it is now, the installation is free.

Why is cable so expensive? In the words of one student, "They're just out to make a buck!" It does seem expensive, but it is expensive in the home, also. The normal price for Basic cable is $20.65 and with the HBO/Cinemax combo package, it is $15.47 per month. According to these figures, Marian students are saving $41.93 with the first package and $64.86 with the second.

Next year, cable will not be an option for residents, as it will be included in the room and board fee.

Cathy Bickel, director of Residence Life, wishes to stress, "Room and board costs are not going up because of cable."

Some residents do not even have a TV, yet they too will pay for the new service. Bickel says one must think of cable as a part of room and board fees just as services like washing machines, the student nurse, and vending machines are a part of the room and board fees. That is, not everyone uses them, but everyone pays for them. They are available to those who need or want them. Bickel has heard only positive reactions to the new cable service.

Fr. Bryan Returns From Sabbatical

N.M. Gasco

The fall semester of 1991 Father Bryan went on a sabbatical. In the academic tradition at Marian, as well as most colleges, sabbaticals are rooted in the Old Testament and tie in with the idea of the sabbath year and the seventh day of rest. It is an opportunity for all faculty members to apply for every 7th year of their employment.

Father Bryan had been a priest for 30 years but had never applied for a sabbatical until last year. He explained that a sabbatical is not just a "prolonged vacation," but rather a time for someone to present a project that will "benefit both you and the college."

For him, it was a rewarding experience, one that "everybody should have the chance to do." He used his free semester as a time to "master wordperfect" on the computer, a skill he realizes is essential and vital to effective teaching, both now and in the future. He expressed that "I just wish I had the computer 20 years ago." For him, it improves filing and cuts down on paperwork. The computer is "the most practical" machine today.

He also used this time to broaden his own knowledge of his field. He realizes that everyone is in a state of constant learning and he feels that reading is the key to acquiring such knowledge. Reading and selecting various textbooks for his courses on Moral Issues and his Introductory courses as well, is important to keep up with new developments and is also valuable in learning how to handle ethics.

He also redid the syllabus for his courses and took several trips, including one to Notre Dame where he compared course outlines and texts used there with those he uses. He took a workshop on economics to help him look at various approaches to economic justice.

Father Bryan pointed out that his sabbatical allowed him to get "refreshed physically and emotionally" and provided him with a chance to "catch my breath." But, he adds that these are merely "side benefits" when compared to the benefits that his courses will have. "I think my courses will be a little better because I spent that time reading."

Sabbaticals are usually granted one semester with full-time pay or two semesters at half-time pay. The bigger the university, the more money they have to grant to sabbaticals. Fr. Bryan pointed out that sabbaticals are an expense on the college because they have to continue one's salary and hire someone else to take that person's place. But, he added, that this is comparable to other professions because teachers' salaries aren't that high so the benefits balance out.

Father Bryan did admit that although he enjoyed the change of pace, he also "missed teaching and having mass. I'm glad to be back and ready to be back."

He also added that he's grateful to both Father Leopold and Father Fred for helping out and doing much of the chaplain responsibilities he usually performed. "Without them, I wouldn't have been able to take a sabbatical."

Men and Women's Basketball Round-up

Steve Tweddell

The men's team hosted a pair of Mid-Central Conference games this past week. On Saturday, January 25, they welcomed the Grace Lancers to the P.E. Center. The Knights were within striking distance throughout much of the contest. They trailed at half by seven, and pulled even at 53 with 8:30 to go. It looked like there could have been an exciting finish, but Grace had other plans. Nine Marian turnovers helped key a 25-9 Lancer run and the game was over, 78-62. It was clearly a team effort as Chad Ray led the scoring column with 14. Jason Lucas added 13, and Matt Pinnick and Anthony Hoereth each scored 12. Marcus McCormick also scored 7 points.

The Knights took the floor again Tuesday, January 28, for a home contest against Bethel. It was an exciting game that went two overtimes, saw 58 personal fouls called, resulting in 81 free throws. Both teams had ample opportunity to win the game, but it was Bethel who took advantage. With Marian holding a 69-66 lead, Bethel hit a three-pointer to knot the game at 69 and send it to its first overtime.

Both teams had leads in the extra session. Marian again held a three-point lead in the closing seconds, only to have the Pilots launch another three-pointer that hit all net to tie the game with six seconds remaining.

After a time-out, Matt

Pinnick took the inbounds pass and raced the length of the court to put up a short jumper, that bounced twice on the front of the rim before falling away. The second overtime was more of the same. The game was tied 83 all with just seconds remaining. Bethel crashed the boards and got two attempts at the basket before the third shot went in to give the Pilots a hard-fought victory 85-83.

Leading the Knights in scoring was Lucas and Pinnick with 22; Hoereth, 13; and Ray with 8. Ray also added 4 rebounds and blocked 2 shots. Marian's record now stands at 8-12, 1-3 in the MCC.

The Lady Knights kicked off the week's action Saturday, January 25, against Indiana University-Southeast, losing 62-51. Leading the women in scoring were seniors Jodi Yonts with 15 points and Angie Heitz with 12. Heitz also pulled down 10 rebounds. Judy Cenova scored 10, and Teri Quackenbush added 5 points and 3 assists.

According to head coach Molly Jones the lady Knights played pretty good defense, but it was a lack of good shooting (32% from the field) that did Marian in.

On Tuesday, January 28, Depauw was the opponent in a home contest. Freshman Becky MacRae provided the offensive punch by scoring a season-high 18 points. Yonts had another good game as she scored 8 points, grabbed 7 rebounds, and dished out 5 assists. Also contributing to the victory were Cenova, 10;

Quackenbush, 9; Tammy Davis, 7, and 4 steals; Heitz, 6; Mary Gasper, 2; Michele Woods, 2; and Sandy Barnett-Daulton, 1.

Depauw led throughout much of the first half, but Marian managed to gain a one-point lead, 21-20, at the half. For the first ten minutes of the second half, it was all Marian. The Lady Knights used a trapping 1-2-1-1 full court press to blow out to a 60-44 advantage and hung on to win 63-56. Coach Jones commented on the start of the second half. "I thought we played as best as we could the first ten minutes. We need some consistency to play a full forty minutes like we played the first ten."

The Lady Knights' record now stands at an even 7-7 (2-2 in Mid-Central Conference play). They will travel to Marion, Indiana, to face the wildcats of Indiana Wesleyan on Tuesday, February 4.

It's 8 A.M. Miss Clairol is sucking up the Ozone. 3rd floor Clare is being accosted by hair spray fumes. What is a girl who advocates simple flat hair to do?

Don't get me wrong, I'm not necessarily being critical of those of you with three inch bangs, just a wee bit curious. What is the origin of this trend towards "bigger is better?"

I shall reflect on famous historical large haired women & men

- 1) 17th century rich women with birds in the beehives that only bathe once a month.
- 2) Opera Divas-large women with industrial cleavage and mustaches.
- 3) Country/Western singer of the late 60's early 70's. They sang about pregnancy, cheating men and coal mines.

4) Early 80's T.V. stars. Remember "The Facts of Life", "Dynasty", "Dallas", and "Moonlighting".

5) Boy George, George Michael and Michael Bolton.

Need I say more? As responsible college-aged mature women must we be reduced to imitating these people? I think not.

Let's make a stand! Let your hair go! Give up helmet hair! Let's all, on one chosen day, put away the curling irons, blow dryers, gel and hairspray. Let's be kind to our split ends, fellow oxygen breathers and Mother Earth.

Next week: men, Valentines Day and other useless traditions.

(CPS) -- The employment picture isn't pretty for college students who plan to graduate this spring.

Two of the most-watched annual studies that deliver job predictions agree that the market is worse this year than last, that fewer jobs exist for college graduates, and that people still searching for jobs from the class of 1991, in addition to experienced laid-off workers, are flooding an already-saturated market.

The 1992 Northwestern Lindquist-Endicott report predicts the worst job market in 20 years. And a report issued by the Children's Defense Fund says all young workers, not just graduating seniors, are typically the first to lose jobs, both corporate and otherwise.

The crunch is expected to be the worst this summer when students seek jobs in restaurants, factories and professional internship programs.

The CDF study notes that, "The net job loss for young workers (people under 25) has occurred both because they cannot find jobs and because they have grown too discouraged to enter or remain in the job market."

The unemployment rate for workers under 25 during the first five months of 1990 compared with the first five months of 1991 jumped from an average of 11.1 percent to 13.4 percent, accounting for a loss of almost 500,000 jobs, the study said.

William A. Hinton (1883-1959)

William Hinton's creative research helped to improve health for countless Americans. Dr. Hinton received B.S. and M.D. degrees from Harvard University, graduating with honors in 1912. He went to work in the laboratory of the Massachusetts General Hospital where he began his studies into the effects of syphilis. In 1915 he became director of the Boston Dispensary and in the same year was appointed chief of the Wasserman Laboratory by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. His alma mater, Harvard, appointed him instructor in preventive medicine and hygiene and later clinical professor. He retired in 1950, as professor emeritus and the first black professor, from the Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Hinton acquired an international reputation for his discovery of a flocculation method for determining syphilis which is known as the Hinton test. He also was co-ordinator of the Davies-Hinton test of blood and spinal fluids. His book, "Syphilis and Its Treatment," which embodied over 20 years of laboratory and clinical research, is a standard volume of professional reference. Dr. Hinton's research proved syphilis to be a disease of the underprivileged, a by-product of poverty and ignorance.

Dr. Hinton, although retired, remained active in his profession until 1952. His last years were spent at his home in Canton, Massachusetts, where he died in 1959 at the age of 76.

Fleming Responds to MCSA Letter

Kristine Abel

The last issue of The Carbon reprinted a letter from MCSA that was mailed to the maintenance staff in order to voice concern over the entry into rooms during Christmas break without notification. Donald Fleming, Chief Financial Officer, sent out a letter on January 27 in response to the MCSA letter.

In his letter, Fleming says that he understands the concern, but that the entrances were done in accordance to the 1991-92 Housing Contract and Residence Life Handbook policies. The normal policy of maintenance, he says, is to notify students prior to entry.

Fleming also pointed out that certain room occupants were notified prior to break, and that others were not. He reported that the residence director was notified as well.

According to Fleming, the installation of the cable TV outlets were done over break "at the request of the Student Board so that cable TV would be available during the spring semester."

"Shining Through" Worth Seeing.

Sean Patrick

"Shining Through" is a spy thriller starring Michael Douglas as Ed and Melanie Griffith as Nina. The show opens with an older Nina, a second generation German Jew, on a BBC T.V. show narrating the story of her days as a spy. The beginning kills the suspense in part because we know that Nina will survive her ordeal.

The movie is a typical spy thriller with just the right touch of humor. There remains just enough suspense to keep interest in the movie to the end.

This movie is above average and worth seeing.
