Lounge Hours Extended

Clare Hall's proposal to eliminate hours for upperclass women did not go to the Student Services Committee last week as planned. According to an informed source, the Dean of Student Services has the power to make the decision on his own. Clare Hall intends to present the proposal to him this week.

Last week Dean Pille and his assistants in the Student Services Office approved a change in the hours in which men may use the Clare Hall lounge. The lounge is now open from 9:00 a.m. to 11:45 p.m. Sun.; 12:00 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. Sat., 5:30 to 11:45 p.m. Mon.-Thurs., and 5:30 to 12:45 p.m. Fri. Clare Hall presented a proposal to open the lounge during the weekdays. Student Services are giving the proposal further consideration.

The three primary concerns of Clare Hall and Student Services in opening the lounge were damage to the furniture, the display of public affection and the type of dress worn in the lounge. A Clare Hall Board member noted, 'Women want the lounge kept as a dignified place of visitation.'

President's Board Meets

Four students were selected for the President's Advisory Committee last week. They are Valerie Geaitner and Michael Izzo, seniors; and William Booher and Carol Wethington, freshmen.

Dr. Guzzetta pointed out that the students should look for a change in fees next year. He explained that the college must raise $200,000 dollars a year from outside sources to balance the budget. This year SAGA food services increased their fee for resident students and the college absorbed the cost. Guzzetta also noted that additional facilities increase cost. The library under construction is going to need more professional and student help.

In a 'Comparative Charges' paper published by Manchester College for its students, Marian rates tenth from the bottom in a field of thirty-two Indiana schools. Below Marian are the four state universities and the seminaries or bible colleges. At the top of the list are DePauw University with tuition $1900, fees $150, room and board $1150. Manchester College is at the median tuition $1440, room and board $720. Marian's tuition is $1100, fees $95, room and board $800.

The college is looking for another security guard to add to the staff. The administration is attempting to add one guard per year.

B&C Club Face Renewal Problems

by Ellen Dugan

Renovating Marian Lake and preventing it from further deterioration is the long-term project of the Biology and Conservation Club.

In a tour with this writer, Ted Allen, president of the B&C Club, elucidated the rather acute problems facing the Marian Lake that may turn it into an eyesore.

Vandalism, pollution and erosion are at the top of the list of these problems. The B&C Club, in conjunction with M Club members, spend Saturday mornings uncovering one-time walk ways around the lake and conducting a general clean-up.

'The second path down to the lake was discovered to be buried by leaves and dirt. The large slate stones were located behind St. Francis' statue and lead down to the lake. We hope to have it unearthed completely so that it will be restored almost one half way around the lake,' Allen explained.

In the midst of trees, leaves, and logs on the lake's periphery are hitherto 'lost' spring houses, walled ponds, and grottoes. Allen believes that there are more of these stone-lined structures still buried. 'Allison must have had these ponds set back from the lake but erosion of the soil

Feminist Callahan To Speak On Woman's Changing Role

Sidney Callahan, prominent writer about woman's changing role, will speak at the convocation, Thurs., Nov. 13, at 12:30 p.m. in the SAC auditorium.

Author of and contributor to four books, Mrs. Callahan also contributes to various journals. Her most recent book is Beyond Birth Control: The Christian Experience of Sex.

The mother of six children, she received an honorary doctorate from Regis College, Weston, Massachusetts, in 1966. She is a graduate of Byrn Mawr College and is doing graduate work at Sarah Lawrence.

In 1965 she published The Illusion of Eve: Modern Woman's Quest for Identity, and it since has been published in French, German, Italian and Spanish. Mrs. Callahan contributed to What Modern Catholics Think About Birth Control and Eyes on the Modern World.

Her writings and speeches consider the current options for women and the conflicts women sometime face as they attempt to expand their roles from wife and mother alone. Mrs. Callahan examines the solutions offered by Betty Friedan and Simone de Beauvoir and asks, "Is there such a thing as 'woman's nature'?"

At Marian, Mrs. Callahan will discuss 'Woman's Changing Role' offering a Christian perspective on the theories of feminists and anti-feminists.

Players Present Original

by Carole Williams

Shakespeare fans are probably well acquainted with the plot of Prince Hal and his rollicking companion, Falstaff, in 'Henry IV'. A new children's play, written by Randy Galvin, tells the story of Hal, 'a playful lad suddenly thrown into a position of authority' and the effects this had on him and on his companions. 'Lester the Jester' concerns the character of Falstaff and how he is affected by the behavior of Hal, who later becomes Henry IV. The play will be produced for the first time at Marian on Dec. 12, 13, and 14 under the direction of Mr. Robert Moran, chairman of the drama department.

Galvin believes that children will enjoy 'Lester the Jester' as more than a story. 'It's a children's show with a little guts to it,' he stated. The playwright prefers creating children's plays that have 'a message and meaning' because the youngsters are capable of grasping this.

'Lester' was written in the summer of 1967 after Galvin received a federal grant to produce three of his original children's shows. After creating 'David and Goliath', a musical, 'The Story of Joseph', and 'Daniel and the Golden Image', he became even more interested in children's shows and wrote 'Lester'. This play is not a musical but does have a few musical interludes.

Galvin thinks Marian's drama department might find of interest his other children's plays for future productions, and looks forward to the December premiere of 'Lester the Jester'. Try-outs will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 11 and 12 at 8:00 p.m. in the SAC Aud.

Court Chosen

Homecoming queen candidates were elected yesterday. They include Barbara Bates, Anne Moriarty, Seniors; Joan Bailey, Joyce Leugers, Juniors; Elizabeth Ardelean, Rebecca Bergman, Sophomores; Catherine Hochwalt and Cindy Ve-horn, Freshmen. Election of the Homecoming queen will be next Mon. in front of the Auditorium. She will be crowned Tues. morning at 10:30 a.m. in the auditorium.

and clogged drains have partially hidden and torn down the walls,' Allen continued.

Periwinkle, a green plant that takes root on hillsides has been transplanted by the group. This was done in an attempt to prevent the erosion of soil from the east side of the lake. The erosion, according to Allen, is partially responsible for the filling in of the lake.

Much of the work done by the group has been destroyed or hampered by vandals. Some of the stones at various spots have been thrown into the water. Two of the ten ducks who make their home on the lake have been shot by poachers. Allen feels that the problem can be solved by making the lakesite a spot frequented by the students. 'For the first time we have opened the lake for fishing. We've erected some stone benches around the lake. If students are around, we feel that vandals will have less of an opportunity to do damage,' Allen said.

In this, the third year of the club's existence, the 10-17 members meet with shovels, rakes, and other tools to continue their work. This past weekend was spent clearing the lake of debris and dragging bags of copper sulfate by boat through the water in order to control underwater plant growth.

The club has succeeded in making the administration aware of the conservation needs of the lake. As a result of a tour conducted by Sr. Marie Bernard, club advisor, for Dr. Guzzetta and Colonel Wagner, work has already been begun to correct the flooding of the northwest corner of the lake property. In the future, the Biology and Conservation Club hopes to reconstruct the bridge that once spanned the stream.

Allen noted that more male help is needed on Saturday mornings. He asks that all interested students contact him at Ext. 270.

Mary Ellen Bittner, Ann Hubert, and Jeanne Eliason help with lake renovations on a crisp Saturday morning.

Beautiful Dreamers

In discussing women's hours, one often must decide whether to be amused or pathetically disgusted. We have chosen to be amused. Hours reform for women at Marian has been a topic since 1940 as evidenced by our news story last week. Women are apparently 'coming of age' in 1969.

At the NSA Conference in Texas last August, women's liberation was a prime topic of conversation; in October, on Marian's campus, it became a topic of conversation. The first draft of the hours proposal was presented to Student Services. In this draft, ladies of Clare Hall noted that hours created a traffic problem because of the influx of girls heading home at that magic hour of midnight (rush hour traffic), that women are said to be more mature than men, therefore, if upperclass men have no hours, upperclass women should have no hours. (What's good for the gander is good for the goose.) Hours create noise (twelve bells-or is it ding-a-ling). Hours apply social pressure (a real thing).

The draft also included two plans for security: Plan A (Two brave young women would secure the door all night) and Plan B (One brave paid adult would secure the door all night.)

This draft was supported by 278 Clare Hall women, abhorred by 6 Clare Hall women, and shrugged off by 6 indifferent women.

Student Services received the draft and sent back 'exploratory questions' (29 in number) in order to further understand 'the facts.'

Letters To The Editor

Intercollegiate Athletics Defended

Dear Sir:

Intercollegiate athletics have been successful for many years. For example, NCAA football is now enjoying its 100th year in existence. Each weekend thousands of fans attend the game of their choice. At Columbus alone a crowd of 80,000 plus watched Ohio State. Among the spectators were alumni, students, faculty members, and supporters of the squad.

After football is over basketball will be in the spotlight. Again thousands, millions, will attend, 'the most absurd activity of all - intercollegiate athletics.'

It seems rather ridiculous to me, to find that someone would be so ignorant as to attempt to buck 100 years of national athletics in college.

Obviously the nation is not ready for the gun-ho, research yourself to death attitude that a few here at Marian would like to believe. Seemingly, they get their kicks from minor public speeches in the Perc.

Sincerely,
Mike Riesen

Buessem Holds Distorted View?

The editorial which appeared in last week's Phoenix holds, I think, a distorted view of college life. Mr. Buessem seems to hold the opinion that college is just one long line of frat parties, football games, and that 'glorious spectacle', Homecoming. Far from being considered 'vital to our intellectual growth' in the minds of students, these events and mementoes, this 'cycle of arranged activities' is seen by most students as simply a part of our college experience which is helpful in our social development. I know of very few stu-

On Security Plan A...What screening process will be used to ensure that two brave women volunteers are responsible? How will the security guard be able to maintain his current 'check-in' time schedule and the additional duties proposed in this plan? (Will he find time in his schedule to secure the two brave women securing the door?)... Who will be responsible for maintaining a substitute volunteer system? (If Marty Scheper won't volunteer, will Mary Schultz?)... How will this proposal affect the four residence houses? (Will someone try to steal them?)...

On Security Plan B...What type of pay scale will be necessary for the position of adult attendant. (Let's see, at $.50 an hour for 300 mature women...) ...What type of identification card will be shown the adult attendant? (We suggest a Marian card-good for cashing checks-drinking booze-and eating in Barry's Beanery.)... How will the adult attendant know that a young woman is a resident student?(He should closely observe her liberated look.)...

On general questions... How representative was the group that contributed to the writing of the actual proposal? (Not very representative-no men.)... What system was used to determine representation? (An obviously discriminatory one.)... What technique was used to ensure objective response on the Hours Change Poll? (Mafia pressure.)...

Clare Hall Board really answered these questions. We can't wait for a reply from Student Services.

dents who came to Marian for its overwhelming social calendar; and in general I think today's college students are more socially aware and socially active than ever before. Consider, just on this campus, the socially oriented programs in which students are involved - Action, Up-Beat, Girls School, just to name a few; students that participate in these programs, I wouldn't class as voyeurs if they attended an athletic event. Such things as yearbooks, class rings and those horrible graduation announcements are only a small part of our stay at college and not the all-encompassing machine that Mr. Buessem imagines. Please, sir, let us playboys keep some of our degenerate fun.

Hours Attitude Disputed

Dear Editor:

We would like to dispute the tone of some of the letters in the last Carbon. Although we are for 'no hours', we do not think that the majority of Clare Hall women 'have to resort to such things as sneaking out.' Maturity is embodied in self-discipline, and a mature woman adheres to the rules until such time as she can justly change them.

The major issue at hand is responsibility. Two types of responsibility are adherence to rules and making decisions. Although we value compliance with laws, we seek the best path to maturity. Freedom of decision seems to be the far superior path. But disagreement with the rules is not sufficient reason for non-compliance with them. We must show some semblance of responsibility in adherence to rules if we are to merit greater freedom.

Sport Leaves Bitter Taste?

To the Phoenix Editor:

I have just returned from watching one of the most disgusting displays of sportsmanship at an intramural game. The sportsmanship exhibited by the Big Ten left the onlookers wondering if the Big Ten was playing for the enjoyment of the game or for blood. In the supposed game of 'touch' football one saw complete disregard for football rules...tackling after the flag was down...tackling the head...use of one's head as a ramming pole and numerous other examples which were completely uncalled for.

If the Big Ten have any conscience at all their victory glasses of champagne will leave a bitter taste.

Varsity Plays Alumni

Red faces, huffing and puffing and various illegal moves will undoubtedly characterize the annual alumni-varsity basketball game at Marian, Wed., Nov. 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the Clare Hall gym.

Coached by graduate Harry Oldham, 12 members of the Indianapolis chapter of the Alumni Association will prove to the collegiate players, one way or another, what a generation gap really is.

Proceeds from the alumni-varsity game will be used by the club to support its projects for the college.

Problems Examined; Pendleton Revisited

by Joe Rienecker

The recent incident at the Pendleton Reformatory involving the wounding of several prisoners by gunfire has stimulated some public interest in that institution and in other similar penal institutions maintained by the state of Indiana. Various problems, such as narcotics traffic and the collaboration of correctional officers in this area, make it apparent that some changes are necessary regarding the staffing and general operation of the prisons. It must be noted that such difficulties are not peculiar to the confinement facilities in Indiana, but are widespread throughout the United States.

A visitor to the Pendleton Reformatory learns that an atmosphere of calmness prevails most of the time. This is admittedly the inmates and not just the staff which is responsible for this. The men are anxious to talk with people from the outside and engage in general conversation. If you have never been to such a place, do not foster the mistaken belief that there are bars and thick wire fences to protect the visitors from the alleged evil that lurks within. The individuals that live there are human beings and are able to enjoy movies, courses and other such diversions as well as anyone else.

The Carnegie Institute is involved in the rehabilitation process and offers courses in public speaking and other areas in order to prepare the men for their eventual return to the ranks of society. Many of them have much talent to contribute to business and industry and they are looking forward to the day when they will be able to make a profitable use of those talents.

It must be kept in mind that the prisons and reformatories are places for rehabilitation and are not merely designed for the payment of one's debt to society. When this is realized more fully by the authorities and general public, proper prison reforms can be brought about which will be beneficial to the individuals concerned as well as the community.

Knights Rout Ft. Harrison In Pre-Season Tilt

by Tim Berger

Friday night, behind closed doors, the Knights took on the Hawks of Fort Harrison in a pre-season exhibition game. The final outcome was the Knights 112, the Hawks 75.

Combining speed, quickness, and brute strength the Knights overpowered the bigger but slower military men. Coach Reynolds started with his three seniors; Tim Berger, Mike Komlanc and Pat McKinney. Balancing out the attack were juniors Bob Hasty and Randy Staley. After the first eight minutes of play the Knights found themselves resting on a 21 to 8 lead. All eighteen players took part and looking at the final score 112-75 shows that there is a balanced attack all the way down the line.

The Knights used varying defenses. They switched from a man to man defense, to a full court press, to a half court press. All defenses looked tough and unbeatable.

Facing one of the toughest schedules in the school history, Marian finds itself gifted with many talented athletes which should prove for a very exciting year.

The Knights have one more pre-season game against the Alumni Wed. night at 8:00. The regular season opens here Sunday afternoon against I.U. of South Bend at 2:30.

IF YOU CAN'T BEAT'EM, BEAT'EM

Sunday's playoff game for the National League title hopefully will not be repeated this Sunday as the Big 10 meets the American League Champs, the 'Lost Souls'. The Big 10 as a team graduate this year. They wanted to win this year very badly, and as a result, put everything else behind this one desire. Unfortunately, they became 'psyched' to the point that physically smacking their opponents meant nothing to them. How many times was the Athletic Supporter quarter back dumped in a flurry of forearms after the pass was released? How many times were A.S. ends tackled? Why did one Big 10 'athlete' dive into an A.S. runner and butt him out of bounds with his head?

The Big 10 captain was a big disappointment as far as keeping his temper when his team obviously needed some kind of control. To top this off, there were only two unnecessary roughness penalties levied on the Big 10.

All I ask of Coach Dickison is that somehow, perhaps with hand picked volunteers, if necessary, he provides at least four officials on the playing field in Sunday's championship game. I don't know how many times I heard a referee standing over the A.S. quarterback, who was unable to get up because of the battering, state that he was sorry, but he didn't see the offense. For the safety of the players on both sides, if not for the sake of football, I sincerely hope Coach Dickison will check into the possibilities of four referees. The 'Lost Souls' plan to play football Sunday but according to the players they will play the Big 10's game if necessary.

Big 10 Wins Title

by Jim Prysiatzny

This Sunday marked the end of the regular 1969 intramural football season. There were three regularly scheduled games played all in the American League. The fourth game saw the battle for the National League title between the Athletic Supporters and the Big Ten.

Game one opened with a forfeit by the Intramural team to the Degenerates. The Degenerates ended their season with a 3-3 record, while the Intramural Team had trouble getting into the win column and ended their season 0-6.

Game two saw Dave Fleitz's team beat a determined Wolf Pack by a score of 19-12. It was the fifth win for Fleitz's team against their one setback. Quarterback Dick Buegler threw for one T.D. to George Riley and he also ran one over from the six yard line. Jim 'Sparkle' Fleetwood ran for a 45 yard T.D. on a reverse play hand off from Buegler, and also intercepted a pass running it back 25 yards to set up for their second T.D. The Wolf Pack's two scores came on two fantastic runs up the middle. The first was a 30 yard run by substitute quarterback Denny Sweeney, and the second was by starting quarterback Mike Benson which was a 25 yard run.

In game three it was Emerson's Boozers over the Social Diseases by a score of 26-0. Mike Mottram intercepted a pass which set up the drive for the Boozers' first T.D. which was a 7 yard flip from quarterback Mike Mills to Tony 'Homer' Fornuto.

The Diseases ended their season at 2-4, while the Boozers finished at 4-2.

The fourth game was the playoff game of the National League. The Athletic Supporters met the Big Ten in a game which was everything but a touch game. Superb tackling and fine use of offensive hands aided the Big Ten in sustaining an ethical Athletic Supporter team, and enabled them to squeeze by with a 14-6 win. A 70 yard flat pass from 'Broadway' Radtke to Tony Paulette, which put the ball on the 10 yard line, set up the first score for the Big Ten. The score came on a seven a 30 yard pass play from Mills to Fornuto. The Boozers' picked up their third score when Fornuto pulled in another pass from Mills which was good for 45 yards. With one and a half minutes remaining to play, Mills hit Mottram in the end zone for Emerson's fourth and final score. yard flip from Radtke to Steve Dalton. The Big Ten's second score came as a result of an intercepted pass by Dan Lempa which put the ball in an excellent field position. Radtke threw a screen pass to Tony Paulette which was good for 30 yards and a score. The Athletic Supporters score topped a fine 60 yard offensive drive. From the 7 yard line Bob Heitz spotted Tom Zakowitz in the end zone for the score.

Get outta town without leaving campus. The lowest long distance rates are in effect every school night after 7 p.m. and all day Saturdays and Sundays.

Fioretti Colors Peace...

by Carole Williams

'Peace prism is a metaphor and no more. Shall peace then be a prism? If the Fioretti peace prism is a metaphor, it is a questioning, penetrating and very relevant one. Perhaps its contents can answer in some way the elusive definition of peace—it might just be more than a metaphor. As suggested by the editors, one can choose a favorite color as light passes through a prism and use that color to paint the whole world. All of the Fioretti colors have a common source of peace.

'The Stillness of Poetry', an article by Mr. David White, relates the poet's act of creation and the reader's participation in this act to a very personal yet universal peace, that of stillness.

Among the seven poems are three of special nature. Tess Eichenberger's 'Like a spider' spins threads of man's life in his web. Like the spider he 'weaves from within' and 'tries to reach rather than surround.' And whether his is 'a castle or a curse' there is always the web. Sister David Mary's 'A Prayer Refracted' and 'Teacup, life in a' are two beautiful examples of the poem/metaphor as it passes through the peace prism. The

Eve Revealed

Mental Health Club and Fine Film Series will co-sponsor The Three Faces of Eve on November 14 at 8:00 p.m. in Marian Hall Auditorium.

After the movie, Mrs. Wagner will lead a discussion in the study lounge in the Administration Building.

According to Marcy Clark, Mental Health Club president 'The movie can expose the community to psychological problems.' The movie itself deals with dissociative reaction.

first poem addresses God: 'Hatred is where love isn't (let me sow it—who's gonna grow it?).' Love must be sown everywhere even in dying. To be 'an instrument of peace' is the color of the prayer. 'Teacup' reveals that the poet-Christian-teacup is 'afraid of the crack so longed for' and 'weary of meeting lonely to lonely like all the others.' An interesting analogy.

'The April 3rd Massacre' with music by Harry Groton and lyrics by Don Merrill has a familiar theme of the Establishment and even the Church versus 'the dirty hippy.' However, the delightfully sarcastic treatment of the fat female 'christian' bingo players and Father Damion's using 'a dime from the poor box to call the police add a little light contrast to the heavier theme and dramatic ending.

George Buessem's play Ping-Pong Balls has a more didactic theme of the good, old, rigid, inhuman American Establishment and its military overtones. The prisoner (who does not wear a tragedy mask as They do) is condemned for having the gall to question and disobey the Book, 'the very foundation that holds us together,' and destroy the ping-pong balls. Silly, but very characteristic of the American you-know-What.

Mike Quinn's book review of Kurt Vonnegut's Slaughterhouse-Five or the Children's Crusade: A Duty-Dance with Death is anything but science fiction; it is a real live review. Death is not so bad because 'you're just as much alive in one moment as you're dead in another.'

This is only a small sampling of the content of the Fioretti peace prism. This issue is new, it is slender, it is colorful, it is artistic. Editors Tess and Bonnie tell us we are prisms. If so, we too can refract the colors of peace as the Fioretti and its artists have done.

Fioretti staffers Peg Pfeffer, Tess Eichenberger, Bonnie Loonie, Sr. David Mary, and Don Merrill polish the Peace prism.

Volleyball Ends

The women's intramural volleyball season ended last week as the Misfits won over the Sex Squad to take the championship. The Misfits: Bette Smith, Debbie Amatulli, Sandy Sommer, Sandy Goldschmidt, Cathy Frey, Cathy Hancock, and Lori Bernhardt went into the championship game with an undefeated season record of 7 and 0. They were the only team to survive undefeated for the season.

The Sex Squad: Nancy Miller, Georgie Fox, Janie Newboles, Nancy Perkins, Camilla Conso-lino, Linda McSparrin, and substitutes Roe Pollack and Kathy McArdle, posted a season records of 5 wins, 3 losses. They went into the championship after winning the play-offs that broke the three-way tie for first in their division.

Though volleyball has ended women's sports goes on. Intramural basketball began on Monday as five teams tried to survive running up and down the court. This is the first time in many years that an intramural basketball tournament has been attempted. It will be interesting to see if the idea survives.

Cheerleaders for the freshman basketball team were chosen last week. They include Kathleen Donegan, Beth Ann Fout, Gerri Lauhoff, Susie Schnepf, and Jane Schroeder. Freshman cheerleaders are a first at Marian.

Rights Organization Formed

In the past few months there has been a great amount of discussion concerning the racial problem on the campus. There were accusations made by both sides, some of which were mistaken and others which were very true. Some of the letters indicated that hate and racism were rampant on our campus and others denied that it was even a problem.

I would like to make it clear then, to all of our non-believing students that there is a very definite and serious racial problem at Marian College. The fact that a majority of the faculty and student body does not understand the reasons for U.B.I.'s restricted membership certainly indicates a lack of understanding and communication between blacks and whites. Now then, it is reasonable to assume that with out these essential ingredients a problem inevitably exists. For example, whites today looking for an easy way out often state 'that black men ought to get together and help each other out.' And when they do we cannot understand it and call it racism! Yes, a problem definitely exists.

This being the case the important question now is what can concerned individuals do to increase their understanding of blacks and whites, and then how to apply this to a possible solution to the racial question.

The Organization of Students for Human Rights is an attempt to bring all races together in an honest quest for understanding and communication. We believe that there are grounds on which all men can unite and work together for the betterment of all people. Before a man is a white man or a black man or a red man or a yellow man, he is a MAN—a Homo Sapiens with all the necessary qualities of a man.

The purpose of O.S.H.R. then is to bring about unity through discussions and to use this union to actively secure 'human rights' for all men. Human rights are being threatened by some of the racist and greedy people in the present establishment. We have the right to ask for an end to racism, we have a right to ask for an end to vicious and immoral war, we have the right to stop the poisoning of our people by pesticides and other pollutants and we have the right and the duty to demand an end to the suffering of the world's poor.

Won't you join us in this fight? There will be an O.S.H.R. meeting, Wednesday, 6:00, in Room 157.
