New courses offered for spring semester

by Susan Schuppan

Many new courses are being offered to Marian College students for the 1990 spring semester. Two such courses deal with art. One is an Introduction to Watercolor class, which is a one credit course for upper-classmen on a pass/fail basis if it is not their major. It will include some introductory instruction in drawing, composition and creative problem solving, along with basic fundamentals. This course, taught by Megan Rohn requires no previous art experience.

The second class offered is Special Topic in Art: Yearbook layout. This two credit class gives the student an opportunity to gain experience in yearbook layout. The course is oriented towards those students which have some art or writing background. Mary Ellen Reed will be the instructor.

There are two business courses offered next semester. First, Small Business Management is a three-credit course taught by Robert Schutter. An introduction to entrepreneurial thought and appreciation for entrepreneurial business activities is provided through this course.

Second, another three-credit class, International Business, is designed to study present and future implications of internal trade and economic impact on the U.S. Jack Read will be the instructor.

Robert Phillips and Andy Hohman will be teaching Creation/Evolution, which is a class that will compare evolutionary and supernatural creation explorations. It will show evidence presented by both sides. It is a three-credit Honors Seminar open to honors students who have completed at least two honors courses. Other students interested in taking the course must obtain permission from the instructors.

Asian Women: Traditional to Modern Times is open to both men and women, and there are no prerequisites. This three-credit course, instructed by Sister Sue Bradshaw, will be a survey of Asian Women's History from the perspectives of both continuity and change in culture, religion, and modernization.

Three new courses are being offered in the Psychology field. First, Psychology and the Law is a three-credit course taught by Ken Elmendorf and Faye Plascak-Craig. Enrollment preference is given to Honors Program students which have completed at least two introductory honors courses. Those non-honors students interested must

Leman named to internship

by Michelle A. Scheidt

Senior Shelly Leman has recently received an internship position at the Hudson Institute, a national "think tank" on the northeast side of Indianapolis. Leman, an English major, will be working 16 hours a week at the institute until she completes the 200 hours necessary to receive class credit for the position.

She first became interested in working an internship at the suggestion of Dr. Ray Craig, her academic advisor. She sees it as a great opportunity for work experience and learning what it is like in the "real world." She said, "As an English major, I wasn't certain where my field was going. This is an opportunity to apply my education in a practical way."

Dr. Louis C. Gatto, faculty member of the English department, has been instrumental in setting up Leman's internship program. He is serving as her advisor for the practicum. After working with Leman, Gatto found her the position at Hudson. Leman said, "I appreciate so much all that he has done for me. He really deserves a lot of the glory."

Hudson Institute is an independent non-profit agency referred to as a "think tank". The central task of the organization is one of long-term planning. They research extensively on current issues that have global impact. The findings are then published or presented for further use by clients. A great deal of their work is done for the U.S. government.

For example, Hudson has recently published

Letters to the editor

College students are adults?

When I was a little kid in grade school and my sisters were in college, I remember thinking "I can't wait until I get to college, I'll be an adult." Unfortunately, it has come to my attention that not all college students are adults.

The event that made me realize this happened in Doyle Hall. Apparently, the black and white kitten that has been wandering around campus this year was already placed in the microwave in Doyle Hall lobby for ten seconds. This is sick behavior. Thankfully, the kitten survived, as this happened several weeks ago. Cruelty to animals is not only a crime, but a mental disorder. I can't believe that anyone could be sick enough to display such behavior. I hope the guilty parties are caught and justly punished.

Apology

To Residents of Clare Hall, Faculty, Staff and Administration:

With all sincerity, we apologize for our misconduct and the defacing of school property. Our rash actions were not meant to offend anyone, and at this time we are putting much effort into rectifying the situation. What we did was irresponsible and degrading, not only to ourselves, but also to our school as well. We cannot stress enough how sorry we are for our unsuitable actions.

In addition to our apology, we'd like to thank all of the people who helped clean the walls. We couldn't have done it on our own. Despite the fact that you were not involved, you lent a helping hand. We want all of you to realize how much we appreciate the help.

Once again, we apologize, and we hope that you can all understand that we made a mistake. We hope that after reading this letter, you can put our wrong in the past and allow the school year to continue at its best.

Response from MCSA

This letter is in response to last week's letter from Lisa Kaufman. Although I appreciate her right to voice her concerns, I feel that the letter was misleading.

Cable: There was no formal poll of the student body, but many board members informally polled students and placed their vote accordingly. Furthermore, the cable topic was mentioned in at least two previously posted minutes. Any student may address the board concerning an issue.

Food baskets: F.C.A. was allotted $40 and the Budgeting Committee suggested that the club ask for donations (it's best to give from the heart) and co-operate with Campus Ministry. The committee budgets for items that will directly benefit the greatest number of students.

Soda subsidy: This issue is still pending. The intent is to benefit the students by lowering the cost of sodas. No vote has been taken on this issue. Ms. Kaufman is free to address the board concerning this or she may speak with Brian Collett, the social planner, who is handling this.

Friends weekend

Friends of ours, Marian campers had lots of fun this weekend. Forty-five people were registered as guests at "Bring a Friend to Campus" this past weekend. Most of them were here for a fun social weekend, many liked Marian so much they applied for admission. This year's new feature was "Awards" as a concluding event for the big good-bye. Friendliest friend went to Angela Burton who hosted five friends. Susan Traub received best hostess. She gave last minute tours and had overnight guests. Friend who came the farthest went to Michelle Cockcream of Elwood, Illinois, guest of Jenny Bertino. Jeanette Findley, Chairman, wishes to thank all who contributed time and resources to "Bring a Friend to Campus."

Senior profile

by Michelle Leman

"Fall is the best time to go sailing," Michelle said, her eyes lighting up with enthusiasm for one of her favorite hobbies. "It's not too hot, and that's when the good winds start to come." Michelle Scheidt has been sailing with her father, Howard, since she was 12 years old. Their boat is a 22 foot sloop that they take out on Lake Michigan during weekends throughout the summer months. "Getting out on the water helps me find a peace that I just can't find anywhere else," she explained.

Michelle is the daughter of Howard and Linda Scheidt, and has one sister, Melissa, who is currently a sophomore at Butler. Michelle is an English major and has minors in Spanish and speech communications. "I am an English major because I like writing and reading -- I read all of the classics as a kid." She went on to say that she considers writing to be one of her hobbies also. "I even like writing term papers," she admitted with a sheepish grin.

During the summer, this 5'2" soft-spoken senior spent 10 weeks in Guaymas, Mexico working among poverty stricken Mexican children teaching catechism classes, tutoring and building a library. "It was one of the greatest accomplishments in my life so far," Michelle said. "Those people have nothing - certainly no material things, and many of them don't even have running water. But they are happy with life and with each other. They are beautiful people." This Franciscan mission is sponsored by the sisters at Oldenburg.

Back at Marian Michelle has been involved with the Carbon "since day one." She's gone through the ranks as staff writer, co-editor, and the position she holds now, production editor. She was largely responsible for putting the Carbon into Page-Maker production. This cuts lay-up time down from five hours to about 90 minutes.

Michelle has also been very active in Marian's tutoring program, the honors program, the Fioretti, the Indiana Student Newman Association, and campus ministry. "Campus Ministry is something that has been important to me. I am constantly striving to live and grow in my Christianity...and trying to help others do the same."

Although Michelle's plans for the future are still tentative, she hopes to continue her mission work in different inner-city programs throughout the mid-west. Because of her background in Spanish, Michelle wants to focus her attention on the poor hispanic populace. Eventually, Michelle also plans on going on to graduate school.

Two people have especially helped to influence who Michelle is today. "My dad has been my mentor. As much as everyone has said we are alike, I hope that I can someday be like him in his human strength and his values." The other is Barbara Crock. "I've never had a real best friend before. I guess I never knew what one was. Barb is a great person. She has helped me to grow so much. She has taught me a lot about myself...to respect the person who I am, to believe in myself and all the things I stand for. Barb has had a huge impact on my life."

Lighter side

by Michael Rinard

Bang! Crash! Boom! The ghosts and goblins made their presence known this past Halloween. Overturned trash cans, doors mysteriously opening and closing, chains rattling in the hallways, and apparitions of spirits were only a few of the oddities which transpired that night.

"I was scared out of my wits," said Sally. "I didn't know what was happening. I couldn't locate anyone who could help me, so I took my blanket and hid in the closet."

Across "Camp M" similar occurrences were taking place. The Head Counselor was a bit confused when he reported that a headless horseman was riding across campus carrying what appeared to be his head in his hand, but the head looked more like a watermelon. "I always thought that the headless horseman carried a pumpkin head, but this year he was carrying a watermelon. I guess the price of pumpkins was too high this year."

As the trick-or-treat campers enjoyed all the goodies they collected, their piece of mind was relieved that it won't happen again for another year.

get instructor's permission for enrollment. This class will focus on "The Individual vs. Society - Who is responsible for crime." The topics addressed will deal with both legal and psychological perspective.

The second psychology course is Stress Management. Mary Lou Gheen's three-credit class will cover the psychological response of stress, the role that faulty conditions play in engendering stress, and the explanation of techniques used to modify stressful behaviors.

The third psychology class will be Seminar on Jungian Psychology, which is another three-credit course, and will be taught by Sister Olga Wittekind. Fundamental concepts of Jungian psychology and their relationship to the individuation process of personality development will be the main focus.

The theology department's new course, The Meaning of the Human Person and Self-Realization, is being taught by John Lowe. It is a study and realization of the human person as it emerges within the world.

An evening Arts Business Management class is being offered by Susan Zurbuchen. This course is for those wishing to learn about the operation of the not-for-profit arts organizations, such as theatre, dance, and visual arts groups. The course is designed for performing and visual arts, business and education majors, along with board members and volunteers of area arts organizations.

CC runs at conference

Brad Bechler and Brian Boyle, placing seventh and eighth respectively, led Marian's Knights to a third place finish at the Mid-Central Conference Championships on Saturday. It marked the teams highest finish since Marian joined the MCC in 1987.

Four of Marian's top five finishers set personal best records including Brad Bechler (26:36), Brian Boyle (26:50), Jason Bridwell (28:21), and Steve Bailey (29:45). Bechler was also give All-Conference honors for his performance.

"It was a total team effort," stated Coach Dave Roberts. "We set as one of our team goals a higher finish in the conference this year and we did it."

Indiana Wesleyan won the meet with 23 points followed by Hunington, Marian and Goshen.

lished a report on AIDS. Their in-depth research on the topic included such areas as how the disease can be dealt with and what its future repercussions will be.

In her duties at the Institute, Leman works directly with the information. Some of her tasks include summarizing, proofing, and doing research of her own. She feels like she is contributing to the organization. She said, "The work I am doing is a small step in furthering their efforts."

Leman enjoys both the work she does and being involved with Hudson. She finds it interesting and fun to be a part of a nationally important organization. She said, "The environment is stimulating. The people there are great because they are so unimposing and human, even those who are nationally known."

She feels that this internship will prove to be a great experience both for now and for her future professional life: "I am learning more than you could ever imagine about our world and the issues that it is facing."

CARD sponsors alcohol awareness week events

by Dallice Hesselgrave

Last week the Concerned About Responsible Drinking (C.A.R.D.) committee sponsored events on campus to promote awareness about alcohol. A few of the highlights were Day of the Dead and a crashed car in front of St. Francis Hall which was filled with beer cans. Andrew Adams guessed 111 cans and won the contest. Wednesday's convocation was a big success with around 90 students attending. The highlight of the week was the Knightlife Coffee House on Thursday night. It went over as well as CARD members had hoped. The logo contest was won by Beth Peter.

"I feel like it was a really good week. It seems like over the last couple of years it has gotten better and better," commented Doug Daugherty, C.A.R.D. committee member.

Although the C.A.R.D. Committee has been around in previous years, it is now that it is finally getting a foothold here at Marian. Other events are in the planning for later in the year. It is hoped that the committee will be run by students in the future, but for now faculty and staff are the main organizers.

The main emphasis of the group is to advocate responsible choices regarding the use or non-use of alcohol through education. Some people on campus have questioned this group, believing that they are disregarding laws of Indiana and Marian College rules by talking to under-age students about responsible drinking. The group feels otherwise. They definitely do not want people under 21 to drink, but are realistic enough to know that it happens, and when it does, C.A.R.D. wants those people to be smart enough to not endanger lives by getting behind the wheel of a car.

Another concern of the group is that people do not automatically make responsible choices about alcohol because they are over 21. Daugherty makes an interesting analogy, "We don't just hand 16-year-olds car keys on their birthday; there is some instruction about driving beforehand. Doesn't it make sense to do the same type of thing in regard to drinking?"

Presidential cabinet meets

by Tina Kunkler

A new completion date of November 10 for the snack bar in St. Francis was announced at the October 26 meeting of the President's cabinet. Don Fleming, chief financial officer, said that significant progress has been made in construction. The date was set by the architect in consultation with the contractor who is doing the work.

The completion date does not reflect the opening date of the snack bar, according to Fleming. ARA Food Services will be consulted before the opening date is announced.

Fleming also reported that Indianapolis Power and Light Company has been contacted to increase the lighting in the parking lot near St. Francis Hall and the walkway from St. Francis to Clare Hall. The globe lights along the walk will not be restored at the present time.

The security systems in the residence halls were discussed by the cabinet. In St. Francis an electronic keypad will replace the locked crashbar on the wing doors. It is the same system currently used in Clare, minus the key. A control board will be located on first floor of St. Francis that will indicate if the system has been violated (i.e. propped doors).

Bill Woodman, dean of student affairs, said the advantage of an electronic system is keeping outside intruders from the students. A completion date for the installation of the electronic system has not been set.

When asked if a similar system has been planned for Doyle Hall, Fleming replied that no such system is in the budget for this year.

Dr. Daniel Felicetti, president, voiced the cabinet's concern with security, "There's a strong feeling within the administration that no matter which system is utilized, it is only as strong as the support it receives from 100 percent of the residents of the building."

Editorial

by Tina Kunkler

As the mid-term date has passed for this semester and a quarter of the school year has crept past, I feel that it is time to evaluate our student government, the Marian College Student Association (MCSA). A few people have taken a crack at the task through the editorial page and private discussion already.

At the September 13 meeting of MCSA, the board compiled a list of goals and objectives for the year. It included: Get along as a group; Revise and update the constitution; Provide adequate government for each dorm; Take a visible stand in the campus community; Work with other schools; Stay our terms; and Do our jobs well.

Taking that list, I have evaluated the board's action according to the scale of Done!; Take the next step; Needs a boost; and Dead in the water.

Get along as a group: Needs a boost. In this respect, the board needs to communicate more effectively by speaking to each other and most importantly listening to each other. The president needs to tell board members when they are not doing their jobs, but also to back them up when they do their jobs. The responsibility then lies in the hands of the members to carry out the duties.

Revise and update the constitution: Take the next step. The amendments were approved for the constitution, but I have yet to see a copy of this revised and updated edition. I think that all students have a right to have a copy available to them; at least the changes that were made.

Provide adequate government for each dorm: Done! The board did succeed in providing a new system through which residents can have an adequate government. The residents themselves have the responsibility to establish adequate governments.

Take a visible stand in the campus community: Take the next step and become more visible. The board meets regularly on Tuesday nights. A few board members appeared for Family Day. The president spoke at the gathering. The board voted against a controversial cable television proposal and for a plan to encourage progress on administrative purchase of cable television. A committee was formed to examine the parking issue. A robe and a plant was delivered to Fr. Francis Bryan after his surgery.

Work with other schools: Dead in the water. To my knowledge, no further developments have occurred concerning this issue. This topic has not been discussed at any further board meetings.

Stay our terms: Take the next step. With the exceptions of one member asking how another member could be replaced and the anonymous freshman class representative, this has been accomplished. Is anyone looking for that freshman?

Do our jobs well: Take the next step. The president needs to take control of the meetings and shut up people who speak out of turn (including myself). The vice president needs to complete that wall mural-flow chart of how motions are handled. The secretary needs to take the duty of making the agendas for meetings back from the president so that they will be done right. The treasurer needs to take a more active role in the business of the board and learn to deal with abuse from students and advisors. The social planner needs to take control of the social calendar and the planning of events with the support of his committee. The commuter representative should organize commuter students and be available to them. All other members of the board must continue coming to the meetings regularly and take an active role in those meetings.

So far, the board has taken positive steps toward attaining the goals it set. Nothing less than attainment of goals should be expected by the student body.

To the editor:

It is ludicrous to think that the 1989 M.C.S.A. should be stuck with the bill for cable installation in St. Francis hall. The $2,500 charge, if I understand it correctly, is a one time hook-up fee. It is not fair that the students of this school year should be picking up the tab for a fee that will benefit students many years down the road. If anything, the college should pay the fee and spread the cost to the students out for the next 10-15 years so all of the students who use the service will pay some of the fee. And, while we are talking about cable T.V. for St. Francis, why isn't cable installed in the other dorms or the whole campus?

Next, who on the student board has enough knowledge of T.V.'s and electronics to make a good decision about buying a large screen television? Nothing personal, but a consultant should be sought out (not a salesperson) whose experience can be used to decide whether or not to repair the current T.V. in St. Francis or buy a new one.

Last but not least, why has a landscape architect not been consulted to help with the campus lighting problem? It seems to me that it only makes sense that a person who is an expert in such matters be retained by the college to help with problems of this nature.

Marian College could be and most of all should be a "big time" college. I think it is about time it starts thinking this way.

Homecoming

Homecoming weekend

Homecoming Week 1989 is just around the corner. This year, rather than class competitions, the Booster Club is sponsoring inter-dormitory/commuter competitions. Throughout the week, St. Francis, Clare, Doyle and a commuter team will compete for the "Big Spirit Trophy" to be presented at half time of the Homecoming Basketball game.

Everyone will be able to participate in some way. Some of the competitions are based on each group's attendance and participation. Each group will also design a little red wagon float with a theme of their choice. These will be judged on theme, color and creativity/originality. The points will be totaled throughout the week. Contact your hall or commuter rep as soon as possible to get involved.

The Homecoming Dance will be at the Hyatt Regency Hotel Downtown. It is located on the corner of Washington and Capitol. The band Nu Cliche' will be playing hits by Bobby Brown, Milli Vinnili, Paula Abdul, Jody Watley and more. A picture and song list will be posted with ticket sales.

Tickets sales began November 1 in the cafeteria. Look for further dates to be posted. Tickets will be sold for $34 per couple and $20 per single. This includes the meal, dance and pictures.

The Booster Club is very excited about this year's Homecoming festivities and hope you catch the excitement.

Homecoming Court elections will be held next week.

Letters to the editor

I want to publicly thank all of the students who volunteered for the 1989 Phonathon. Without them, the Phonathon could not have been a success.

This year's Phonathon raised $59,251.00 which is a new record. We received 727 pledges by phone with 360 being new pledges. The Women's volleyball team accounted for the biggest evening. They received 221 pledges for $13,545.00, which was also a new record.

Clubs and teams that participated this year were: Women's volleyball, Men's baseball, the Booster Club, the Carbon staff, Student Board, and the Junior Class. Calling went so well that we ran out of cards before October 29, a night on which the Men's basketball team and the Accounting society had volunteered to work. There were also numerous students, who were not a part of a team or club that helped make calls.

The Phonathon was a success, because of good people working it. I thank you for volunteering and showing your "Marian Pride."

Give the Gift of Life!!

Catholic identity crisis? No wonder . . .

I thought Marian College was supposed to be a Catholic institution. It's no wonder we are having this so-called Catholic identity crisis. The administrators of this school seem to do nothing to support the Catholicity for which they stand (or at least they say they stand for it).

Wednesday, November 1, was the Feast of All Saints Day. This is a holy day of obligation for all Catholics. One would think that, since Marian is supposed to be a Catholic college, we would be allowed to fulfill our obligation by celebrating the Mass with our community. Not so.

Two holy day Masses were held, one on Tuesday, October 31, at 4 p.m., and one on Wednesday, November 1, at 11:30 a.m. During these times, the offices of our Catholic institution remained open, classes at our Catholic institution continued, and meetings at our Catholic institution were held. Our community was given no opportunity to gather in worship together. And what happened if one had class, meetings, etc. during both of these times?

Of course, one may excuse himself/herself from classes, meetings, etc. And there is always the opportunity to go off campus and worship at another church. There are other ways of meeting one's obligation for the holy day.

But fulfilling the obligation is not the key issue here. The issue is that the Marian community was not given an opportunity to gather and pray together. Administrative and educational pursuits have suddenly become more important than community and spirituality.

Everyone has been so concerned with the lack of a Christian community here at Marian. How can a community (or a Catholic identity) be fostered when no opportunities are presented to do so? Marian's Catholic identity is falling from sight because it is being stifled by matters that are deemed "more important," like making sure our day is not put out of order by getting together to worship with the other members of our community.
