

MARIAN'S SELF-STUDY PROGRESSES

COMMITTEE ON INSTITUTIONAL OBJECTIVES

At a recent faculty meeting, Sister Mary Carol Schroeder, Chairman of the Steering Committee of the Self-Study Commission, reported on the work of the commission during the past school year. Phase I has been completed. This phase attempted to assess the development of the college in the past decade in order to understand the present situation. The Phoenix will print a resume of each of the eight committees' work in this and subsequent issues.

The committee on Institutional Objectives began its work with a comparative study of the Marian College objectives as stated in official documents of the decade 1960-70. A basic continuity was observed in the goals for six major areas and in the commitment to the Catholic philosophy of life and of education, as the chief integrating factor of the total college experience.

Since the primary task specified for this committee is to establish the college's unique reason(s) for being, and since its faith commitment seemed to offer a lead in the direction of distinctiveness, the status of Catholicism on campus became a topic of dialogue and extended group discussion and finally, the subject of informal student-initiated and student conducted interviews. Although the size and composition of the population sample used for these interviews (70-80 resident students equally distributed among freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors) were inadequate for firm conclusions, the opinions secured were revealing and challenging.

In the Committee report to the Steering Committee in June, 1971, "dynamic Catholicism grounded in theological study and made evident in Christian living, witness, and service" was reaffirmed as a primary emphasis to be implemented anew in 1970-1980. To clarify this objective and to secure a valid appraisal of its functioning on campus, a questionnaire is being constructed.

Next priorities recommended were: an enrollment kept to a size compatible, with close personal association of students and faculty; quality teaching; and innovative curricula.

Fourteen additional objectives, in the areas of student development, curriculum reorganization and enrichment, community service, and interinstitutional cooperation, are awaiting further study. Some of these grew out of the study and deliberations of the committee's members; others were proposed by trustees, administrators, faculty, alumni, and students interviewed.

NSA Delegates Report

A summary of the 24th Annual National Student Association's convention held August 20-29, 1971 at Colorado State University campus at Fort Collins, Colorado, elicited mixed reactions by Marian College's two voting delegates Nancy Perkins, Student Board Vice-President, and Jane Peck, NSA representative.

The NSA, which represents over one-half of its some 500 member colleges as small institutions, was found to be unconscious of the needs of a college the size of Marian. 'While the NSA convention offered valuable information regarding political issues like Vietnam, student lobbies, and legal rights, it offered little advice on planning and advising programs that a small, less financially independent school could afford,' Nancy Perkins commented. Jane Peck reiterated this view saying, 'The workshops on student involvement and power side-tracked the small colleges inability to handle economic co-op, day care centers, and the like.'

Both delegates reviewed the convention as an often emotional expression of political viewpoints. Nancy explained that much of the NSA convention centered on the staff of NSA, the president, vice-president, two appointed staff members, and a number of desk appointees, and their attempts at handling the convention 'one-sided, politically,' in Nancy's words.

Jane's activities included the involvement in the NSA establishment of a Women's Advisory Board to re-inforce women's rights regarding the college community. 'At a performance of Wayne Cochran and his group early in the week, women delegates took over the podium and stopped the show, reading a statement calling for the establishment of this board, she explained, 'As the result of this action and caucuses of supporters, the board was established to organize and advise women's groups to be set up on campus at member colleges. These groups ideally would aim at aiding women in obtaining equal rights with men in education and social areas on campus.'

As a result of her experience at the convention, Jane was instrumental in establishing a local group striving for women's rights. Their first meeting will be held Wednesday, September 29, at 9:00 p.m. at 3454 N. Pennsylvania St., Apt. 3.

Another point of the convention that the delegates noted was the inability of the convention to finish its business. 'At the end of the nine-day program the convention failed to vote on a proposal for a National Student Lobby in Washington D.C. to push for student priorities,' Nancy said. Jane commented that this issue and the question of the NSA and Associated Student Governments must wait until next year to be decided.

Time elements seemed to work against the convention's business. 'We attempted to set up a number of sessions for small colleges and their questions but there was no time left by the time we became organized,' Nancy added.

As a result of Nancy and Jane's experiences at the NSA convention, Marian's future participation remains in question. 'The $600 expense for the convention trip appeared to be a lot of money for the information and help I received,' Nancy said.

Clubs Seek Members

MANASA

The newly elected officers of Manasa (formally known as the Mental Health Club) Susie Knueven, president; Kathy Bailey, vice president; Ruth Miller, secretary; Mary Binzel, treasurer; and Linda Disbrow, social council representative, will hold the club's annual membership drive Friday, October 1 1971 in front of the auditorium at Marian Hall. Manasa is open to anyone with a special interest in helping people. This year's service activities include a teacher-aid type of program for mentally retarded children at Noble School in Indianapolis. Also a biweekly socializing program with patients on Sunday evenings at La Rue Carter Hospital is being planned by the club. On Monday, October 4, 1971 at 4:30 p.m. in the library auditorium, an important meeting will be held to discuss information pertaining to this year's projects. Again this year, Manasa's activities will include a Mamma Mia Pizza Party, the date, time and place to be announced at a later date.

BIOLOGY AND CONSERVATION CLUB

Anyone who is interested in ecology, biology, or just in keeping the college grounds beautiful and free of litter, should take notice of the Biology and Conservation Club. The Club, now consisting of 12 members and advisor, Dr. Eoff, is inviting all students to their next meeting, Tuesday, October 5, at 12:30 p.m. in room 157. Elections of new officers will take place at this meeting.

The main objective of the Club is the preserving of the lake, water falls, and the general welfare of the campus grounds. The Club is not all work. Several of the activities planned for this year are a Field Trip to Eagle Creek Reservoir on October 9 or 16th; a skating party when the lake has frozen; and a High School Science Day, 1 o'clock to 5, Room 355, November 14.

EDITOR'S NOTE :

In the spring of 1970 Marian experienced a startling awareness that many were dissatisfied with various aspects of college policies and with the direction that the college was taking. After weeks of discussion it was decided that a self-study commission be formed to view various aspects of the community. The commission, divided into eight areas of concentration, contained in its membership representatives from the Board of Trustees, administration, faculty, students, and alumni. The purpose of this was to gain as broad a picture of Marian as possible.

The commission initiated a three phase program of study. The purpose of Phase I was to study the development of the literature for ideas applicable to college. Phase II will probe the Marian situation. Phase III will project for Marian's future.

Many hours of discussion, research, and reporting have been put into this report. Though the work was difficult at times, it proved profitable to each member in his understanding of Marian. It is hopeful that the remaining two phases be as profitable and will see many more members of the Marian College Community become actively involved. We must remember our sense of totalness in the search for updated policies and goals that will affect our welfare in years to come and the welfare of Marian. We must all be reaching for a place in the sun.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To: Marian College Community

From: Fred Brames
Dean of Student Services

Through an inexcusable error on my part, the names of several students were unintentionally omitted from the list of students who worked with the Freshmen Orientation Program. Those people whose names were omitted are: Barbara Moll, Jim Herbe Boyce Baldwin, Kathy Lengerich and Mike Mottram. To those whose names were omitted, I offer an apology. This error should not have occurred.

Dear Editors:

Initiation Week was a success only because many people combined their talents and their time toward a common goal. I do not believe that certain people got the credit that they deserved. I would like to formally commend Barb Moll, Boyce Baldwin, Agnes Bacala, Ann Sperry, Sarah Bergin and Mary Osowski for their dedication in preparing Initiation Week. I would also like to thank Pat Arcady for her constant help throughout the week. These few people do not expect praise, but I believe that they deserve it. Initiation Week is the work of many people, but the sophomores are the people that make it what it is. I would like to thank the entire Sophomore Class for their co-operation during the initiation and all others who were involved in the success of the week.

Jay Farrell

Sophomore Class President

To: The People of the Marian College Community
From: Social Council

As you probably have already heard, there will be no Three Dog Night Concert here on campus this fall. A bad financial situation was the ultimate and unboundable obstacle which brought an aching end to months of hard work. We were not trying to mislead you. No one knew a week ago that such an obstacle was within the realm of possibility. The books had been gone over and everything looked as though it was in fine shape. Then the surprise, for all of us, came.

I suppose that in your eyes, it looks as if we really failed. Well, we didn't succeed, but I can't consider it a failure either. The college is, right now, closer to a concert than it has been since 1966 when there actually was a concert here.

The day that we had to realize that this concert couldn't be, we started working on another. We will have a concert and it is being worked on at the present time. The statement, "we will have a concert" is a statement of hope and determination not of fact.

I ask that you hold your criticism at the present time and support and have faith in those who are really trying to have a concert here on campus. We are doing this for you.

Sincerely,

Jeanne M. Whalen
Social Council Chairman
1971-72

Dear Editors:

Yesterday, Tuesday, September 28, questionnaires concerning open visitation were distributed to the dorm residents.

The purpose of these questionnaires is to establish that there is a definite student desire for such a policy.

We believe that Marian College could be conducive to open visitation depending upon the student's mature attitude and willingness to accept the responsibility of such a policy. Not only would open visitation be advantageous to the individual student but to the institution as a whole. A friendlier atmosphere could be fostered among the students, promoting a more harmonious living situation. A great gain for Marian College!

Not only have many big universities adopted some type of visitation policy but many small colleges likewise have followed. In doing so they have become more attractive to the average prospective college student. If Marian College expects to compete with these schools on an equal bases in regards to enrollment and financial support then we must prove ourselves capable of coping with the advancement of time and changing attitudes.

These questionnaires will hopefully serve as some sort of guideline in formulating a plan of action. This is just a beginning. An effort is to be exerted by the student if a proposed policy is ever to become a reality at Marian College.

Sincerely,
Camilla Consolino

SEARCH FOR NAMEPLATE CONTINUES

The Phoenix nameplate contest is still open to any interested member of the Marian College community. Look over past nameplates which are on display in front of the MH Aud. Then design your own conception of the word-age THE MARIAN PHOENIX.

All entries must be submitted to Cathy Andre, Ext. 512, by Thursday midnight of this week. A $10 cash prize will be awarded to the person submitting the most original design. The Phoenix staff will serve as judges.

The winner will be announced in the next issue of the newspaper, and his/her winning nameplate will be on the front page.

Spotlighting

The wonderful world of color dominates our every life and breath. It is a time of developed newness, a time to discover what life is all about. Perhaps the picturesque way to discover this is to grasp from our own age all the wonderful times - the sad, happy, doubtful, confident moments we all share. Through photography, the wonders of life never cease to exist. We live again and again through moments we never live to forget. In our present day living, ingenuity is stressed and there is no better way to capture the miracle of life itself than through pictures.

Marigrace Platt, a sophomore this year at Marian College has developed a creative know-how with an invention giving credit to Battista-the camera. Marigrace became interested in photography her junior year of high school where she attended Julianne High School in Dayton, Ohio. This Catholic girls school taught her, through her film classes, how to compose pictures. Both she and her sister, Virginia, at that time became so impressed that they now own an amateur dark room of their own in their own home.

Virginia Platt, Marigrace's twin sister, is now attending Thomas Moore College in Covington, Kentucky. For her vocation she has chosen the field of secondary education where she hopes to teach history classes. Although her major is not concerned with photography, she still holds a high opinion and interest in the field.

Marigrace is not only talented in the field of photography, but she is also a quite versatile individual. She is a sophomore representative on the student board and she works the headliner for the Phoenix, the school newspaper. This assignment deals with the aspect of photography itself. Marigrace also works at the library which she finds is a very rewarding job.

Photography is indeed a rewarding type of field in which to find an interest. When asking Marigrace what she thought about the field of photography, she replied, 'It is fascinating. It provides one with a challenge, this challenge being an art if it is worked at long enough. Even the science aspect of it fascinates me!'

Marigrace will soon find herself wrapped up in the dark room here at school, as she is the newly assigned dark room manager. As photographer she takes pictures for the paper also.

Photography is somewhat of an art to master, and it provides one with the opportunity to be a master of his own creation. Marigrace Platt is by far no exception in this form of creative illusions.

S.C.Sponsors Free Flicks

The movie "Anne of the Thousand Days" will begin a new program of free movies offered mid-week at 8:00 p.m. in the auditorium. The Wednesday, September 29 showing of the Richard Burton - Genevieve Bujold film will be the first of eleven movies planned by the Social Council.

The outstanding feature of this program is the free admission. According to Jeanne Whalen, Social Council Chairman, the idea of the movies is "to break up the school week and to provide an activity on campus." Financing of the films is being handled by the Social Council. Future offerings include "Inside Daisy Clover," "A Raisin in the Sun," "Barrabas," "Lord Jim," "Me, Natalie" and "The Anatomy of a Murder."

"The Dumbwaiter" Reviewed

The theatre department previewed its 1971-1972 season with an excellent production last week of 'The Dumbwaiter.' The Thursday afternoon convocation was free to the MC community. Anyone who failed to see this one-act play missed an opportunity for some interesting entertainment.

Gus played by Pat O'Hara and Ben played by Gene Bourke are two English-style mob killers for hire. The job which concerns these some what slow-witted cogs in the organization awaits identification by their superior-- a non-appearing Mr. Wilson.

'The Dumbwaiter,' which occupied center stage, undoubtedly dominated the latter half of the play's action. Its rickety, noisy entry into the action of the lives of two people it manipulates might have been the entrance of a third character in the play.

The climax is reached with a striking silhouette of Gus' death as ordered by the voice at the end of the dumbwaiter.

O'Hara mastered the English accent quite well. His portrayal of Gus was reminiscent of Lennie in Of Mice and Men. His mannerisms and pathetic values on Echols cake and clean sheets captured the empathy of the audience.

Bourke seemed to have more of a problem with the accent. His role, however, was more difficult to latch on to. Ben was the 'friend' who must maneuver Gus into unsuspecting death.

ISO Opens Concert Season

In response to numerous requests, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra is going to sell series tickets for either the first or the last six Thursday night subscription concerts of the 1971-72 season.

The first series, "Winter Wonders", includes October 28 with Roberta Peters, November 11 with Van Cliburn, December 2 with the Indianapolis Symphonic Choir, December 16 with Aaron Rosand, January 6 with Earl Wild, and January 20 with Kyung-Wha Chung.

The second series, "Spring Tonics," which has excellent Christmas gift potential, includes February 3 with Carlos Barbosa-Lima, February 10 with James McCracken and Sandra Warfield, February 24 with the Modern Jazz Quartet, March 9 with Gina Bachauer, March 16 with Byron Janis, and April 6 with Erick Friedman.

All concerts are at 8 p.m. in Butler University's Clowes Hall. Series prices for the two new offerings are the same as the regular "half" series of Wednesday/Saturday night concerts: $30, $25, $20, and $15 on the Main Floor; $30 on the First Terrace; $20 on the Second Terrace; and $15 on the Third Terrace. Marian College students receive a 10% discount at the Clowes Hall box office upon showing the college identification card.

Season tickets also remain available for the full series of 12 concerts on Thursday or Friday nights, the 6 Wednesday/Saturday night concerts, and the "6 for the Show" series. For further information, call the box office at 924-1267.

Road Rally

It's Here! The Christamore Grand Spree will be held October 2 and 3 at Indianapolis Raceway Park. The Grand Spree is two full days of exciting road racing, featuring 20-lap events on IRP's 15-turn road course.

The Grand Spree is road racing at its best, with nationally ranked Sports Car Club of America drivers competing in production sports cars, single-seat Indy-type cars, Can-Am unlimited sports racers and Trans-Am Type sedans. It's a full race week-end, with European-style qualifying and ten races.

All proceeds benefit Christamore Settlement House.

It's Time! Tickets are on sale at $4 advance sale for both days, $3 for high school and college students at Ross Young, and Ross Babcock or send check and ticket order with a self-addressed stamped envelope to Post Office Box 20287. Tickets at the gate will be $5. High school and college students will be $4. Children under 12 admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

Sports Open For Women

Males are not the only athletes on the Marian College campus. Under the sponsorship of the Women's Athletic Association the women also have their chance to participate in sports. For those who are more athletically inclined, WAA offers varsity teams in both basketball and volleyball, while for those who may be lacking in skill but not in enthusiasm, intramural basketball, volleyball, and badminton are available.

First on this year's schedule of activities is intramural volleyball season. Competition in this begins on Wednesday, September 29.

For those interested in varsity, try-outs will be held in the gym the evening of October 18, and the season begins November 4. This year, the varsity team will participate in three tournaments, at Franklin, Butler, and Indiana Central, as well as play a regular schedule of games.

The exact schedule for varsity basketball, as well as beginning date for intramural basketball and badminton, has not yet been decided upon. These will be announced at a future time.

While membership in WAA is not required in order to participate in women's sports, all participants are urged to join. The nominal $.50 per semester dues help to minimize the expenses involved in sponsoring these activities. Anyone interested in joining should contact Jeanne Grace, ext. 424.

Vince Danno successfully blocks Tim Ellinger's attempted pass.

Pigskin Frolics Begin

The intramural football season got underway with a bang Sunday as four contests were played on a hot, humid afternoon before a fine crowd. Although there was only one close game, there were many exciting moments and some outstanding individual performances.

Gods of Hellfire - 27
IMFT - 0

In somewhat of a mild upset the Gods of Hellfire stunned the previously undefeated Intramural Football Team by a score of 27 - 0. The game was not nearly as close as the final score indicates.

The Gods took the opening kickoff and marched straight down the field to score as Bill Doherty hit Vince Danno with a 50 yard screen pass. The Gods upped their margin to 14 - 0 at halftime on a Doherty-to-Larry Unser pass play and added two more touchdowns after intermission on Doherty to Unser passes. Jim Herbe made the other one.

But also as important in the victory was the Gods rock solid defense. This defense allowed the IMFT to reach the mid-field stripe only once and constantly harassed quarterback Tim Ellinger. Dean Morgan played a fine game in a losing cause for the IMFT.

War - 21
Nods - 19

In the closest game of the day, War squeaked by the Nods by a score of 21 - 19. Randy Stahley caught three touchdown passes from quarterback Jim Fischer to spark the offense for the War team.

Basketball

Practice Begins

The 1971-72 edition of the Marian Knights, under the direction of new head coach Ed Schilling, will begin practice on October fourth in eager anticipation of what hopes to be an excellent season.

"I'm really looking forward to the upcoming season", stated Coach Schilling. "We expect to have a fine, young team that will emphasize a defensive and ball control type of game. Our exceptional height should also be a factor that will benefit us greatly."

Mr. Schilling emphasized that a new policy will be in effect this year as all practices will be open to the students.

"I encourage attendance at practice to anyone interested. In this way we hope to get full support of the students and make them feel like part of the team. We feel that by opening practices the students will understand what we are working for and what we hope to achieve. Attendance will also help the team by stimulating a sort of game type condition. The only thing asked is that students don't interfere."

Another change in basketball at Marian will begin this season. Instead of having a freshman team, there will be a junior varsity squad coached by Mr. Morrell.

Remember varsity practice, open to all students, begins October fourth in the Clare Hall gym.

John Bovard got one of these back on a pass from Paul Norman and Larry Rapalski ripped loose for the Nods other two touchdowns.

But the big difference in this game was the extra points. Fischer scored two and Bill Eckman added the other as War converted all three of their attempts while the Nods lone point after touchdown was scored by Bovard.

Wild Bunch - 40
Third Floor Hot Nuts- 0

The Wild Bunch racked up victory number one as they overwhelmed the Hot Nuts by a score of 40 - 0. The Bunch literally ran over the Nuts as they scored all six of their touchdowns on the ground.

Kenny Tyrrell raced for three TD's, Mike Mills added another and Terry Smith broke loose on a 55 yard scoring gallop. Paul Broxterman added the final touchdown as he picked off a Jim Thezan pass and raced 50 yards untouched into the end zone.

Mills added three extra points while Smith tallied the fourth.

The Wild Bunch defense, anchored by Mark Reynolds and Dale Hemmelgarn, didn't allow the Hot Nuts to come close to scoring. Tom Cebulko was a standout for the outclassed frosh team.

Vice Lords - 20
Ndugos - 0

In the final game of the day, the Vice Lords blanked the Ndugos by a score of 20 - 0. Dan Branigan opened the scoring as he caught a short pass from quarterback Jay Farrell for the only tally before halftime.

But speedy Dave Jongleaux broke the game wide open as he thrilled the crowd by running the second half kickoff back 60 yards for a score. Farrell passed to Branigan for the final score late in the game and Jim Leugers added 2 extra points to round out the scoring. Center John Purcell played a good game for the Lords while Rich Gaeither turned in a fine performance for the Ndugos.

Harriers Drop Opener

Marian's winged wonders plunged to their first defeat of the young season Friday night in a dual meet with Rose Hulman.

The final score was 50 to 15 against the Cleon Reynolds coached crew, but this wide margin can be attributed mostly to the inexperience of the squad.

Mike Mills, who placed eighth, was the top finisher for the Knights as he negotiated the hilly course in a time of twenty-five minutes and fifty-six seconds. He was followed by Tom McIlwee, Dan Puckett, and Mike Pacheco for ninth, tenth, and eleventh places respectively.

Pat Murphy and Greg Pawlik tied for twelfth and thirteenth, while Steve Buffington and Steve Hammerle finished in a dead heat for the next two positions.

Things are bound to get better for the Knights as time progresses, for many of the runners had started practice only several days before the meet and were not yet in tip-top physical condition which is so necessary in this grueling competition.

One bright spot for the squad was the vivid support of the Marian fans, who made the trip to enjoy the race and partake of liquid refreshments.

The Knights will hope to even their season record this Tuesday against Huntington.
