Ann Herber Reigns As Queen; Musicale Pays Tribute To Court

Heavy rains forced the annual campus crowning pageant indoors, Sunday, May 27.

The student body met the queen, Ann Herber, and her court in front of the library, and formed a procession to the auditorium where the crowning took place.

Miss Herber, escorted by Paul Henn, was accompanied by her court, representative of the classes.

A coronation musicale featuring the Glee Club, comprising mixed voices, and the Bel Canto, a women's group, alternated with a women's double trio, the Mellotones, and a men's double quartet, the Vibratones, followed in the college auditorium.

Summer Session Begins June 14

Thirteen courses are being offered in the summer session from June 14 to July 25.

Simultaneous courses offered from 8:30-9:45 include: World Geography, Accounting II, Romantic Movement, Literature and Speech, Arts for Children, Sociology, and History of Music.

From 9:55-11.10 classes in Medieval History, Rational Psychology, Political Science, and Methods in Science will meet. General Biology and General Chemistry, four credit-hour courses, will have lecture and laboratory periods.

A special session, Problems in Psychological Growth and Development, is listed for July 2-14. Instructor will be Father James Galvin. The course is offered especially for parish school teachers.

Student Vote Accepts Revised Constitution; Amends Two By-Laws

The Student Association constitution and by-laws, recently revised to meet coeducational and other needs, were ratified by a two-thirds majority ballot completed May 17. Two amendments were substituted before ratifica-

Article I Section 4 was amended to read: "The executive board of the Association is to rule on any proposed activity of the student body, i.e., any student group desiring to initiate any kind of activity affecting the entire student body, excluding the dates of regularly scheduled meetings, must present the dates to the Executive Board of the Association for approval and entrance on the calen-

Article III Section 2, also amended, now reads: "To be eligible for nomination to an Association office, candidates must have an average of one point or above, with the exception of the President who must have an average on one point five or above. If a student has been on scholastic probation at any time at Marian College, that student must maintain a point average of one point five for two consecutive semesters before becoming eligible for election to an Association office. Any student having been on disciplinary probation at Marian college may be elected to an Association office with the approval of the Administration."

All-School Dance Closes Social Whirl

Climaxing the social calendar for Marianites and their friends will be a semi-formal dance, tonight in the lounge, sponsored by the Student Board.

The Commanders will provide the atmosphere for the summer parting. The dance will begin at 8:30. Tickets are $1.50 per couple.

Elections Decide Fall Term Leaders For Student Board, Classes, Clubs

The end of the school term saw the usual rush of mild campaigning for the various coveted offices governing the coming year's collegiate activity.

Seated on the student board along with the previously announced president and secretary, Jim McLaughlin and Paul Fox, are Sheila Mears, vice president; Maureen Feeney, treasurer; Carylou Siedling, Phoenix editor and publications representative; Marian Robinson, religious organizations representative; and Mary Schwendenman, Clare hall housecommittee representative.

Class presidents, who also are board members, are: Bill Method, senior; Paul Henn, junior; and Dave James, sophomore. The freshman representative will be elected in the fall.

Other class officers of the seniors are: Ann Lovisa, vice-president; Margaret Winsor, secretary; and Mary Schwendenman, treasurer. The juniors elected Martha Bir vice president; Mary Ann Schantz secretary; and Larry Ittenbach treasurer. Heading the sophomores are: Dan Dufore, vice president; Miriam Gannon, secretary; and Dick Delaney, treasurer.

Heading the religious organizations will be: Emilie Clevenger, CSMC; Marian Robinson, Legion of Mary; Charlotte Herber, Sodality; and Marsha Seraphine, Third Order of St. Francis.

Erna Gibson was named president of the ARA, with Emilie Clevenger, secretary-treasurer; and Linda O'Brien, corresponding secre-

Women's College vs. Co-Ed: Graduates' Two-Year Inventory

Something upperclassmen have been asked for two years is, "Which do you like better, Marian for women only, or as a co-ed school?" It isn't an easy question to answer; usually we hem and haw a bit and say, "Well, the two ways are so different, and cannot be compared easily." True, true, true, but from the heights of our vast experience of seeing Marian two years all-girl and two years coed, the time has come when, perhaps, we can give a better answer.

Marian as a women's college had stricter rules, a greater friendliness among the resident students, fewer social affairs, less than half the present enrollment, and a bit more of that undefinable spirit of gentility. There was more contact, and thus a greater interchange of thought, with members of the faculty; there was more

28 From Indiana, Ohio, Illinois Receive Scholarships, Grants

The Scholarship committee has announced the awarding of 16 honor scholarships to graduating high school seniors for top ranking scholastic achievement.

Recipients from the Indianapolis area are: Francis Stites, Cathedral high school; Mary Jo Metzger, Ladywood; Mary Ann Simko, St. ohn; Allie Ann Burke, St. Mary; Rose Mary Acker, and Thomas Huebner, Sacred Heart Central.

Out-of-town students qualifying are: Esther Morris, Fort Wayne; Judy Parrish, Decatur; William Hungate, St. Paul, Ind.; Mary Rita Schlichte, Oldenburg; Marilyn Beck Marian; Elaine Thomas, Richmond; Mary Margaret Delaney, Joliet, Ill.; Dorothy Wilkinson, Mansfield, Ohio; Anita Dreiling, St. Bernard, Ohio; and Anna Marie Hoggi, Middleton, Ohio.

Other scholarships and tuition grants have been awarded to eight applicants: Nancy Snyder, Aurora; Philip Littell, Muncie; Paula Kerr, Tipton; Patricia Wades, Chicago, Ill.; Dianne Wolf, St. Bernard, Ohio; Wayne Hawkins, Lawrenceburg; James L. Withem, Terre Haute; and Frank Moran, Scecina Memorial, Indianapolis.

Four local parish scholarships for freshmen have also been announced. Recipients are: Ann Ginther and Diane Passehl, both of St. Agnes acodemy, St. Andrew and Christ the King scholarships, respectively; Betty Ann Burnett and Nancy Zore, both of St. Mary academy, those of St. Philip Neri and Holy Trinity, respectively.

time for everything, and perhaps more carelessness in class dress. Many of the changed factors now might only be caused by the increase in enrollment, not necessarily because the men are here-

With men at Marian, classes seem to have livelier discussions. The male presence is also noted by the addition of the male scholar in chapel, and in the additional number of priests and lay teachers on the faculty. To accomodate the greater enrollment element which men bring with them, we have added another building, fitted with the best equipment. Both interest and participation in sports have increased; new tennis courts have been built.

Really, it is hard to say which we like better. For some people, who do not care so much for changes, there is no need for comparison; it was much nicer before. For others, who like many activities, the other way looks monotonous compared with this

But the main point to be considered is that the most important things have not changed — we still learn from our classes, we still are following the same ideals, the same methods of study, and when we leave, we will miss this place every bit as much as we would have missed it as a women's college.

... And What Is So Rare As a 'Senior' In June?

A college senior is a rare and strange creature. For 36 months he attends endless classes, waits in the longest lines, writes zillions of impromptu compositions, andenduring the bitter with the sweet in mind -goes to loads of parties. Then, suddenly he finds himself griping about his last exam, typing his last overdue term paper, and drinking his final cup of coffee in the snack bar, under the title of "Marian undergrad." The day of reckoning has arrived.

College-possibly "the best years of our lives"-must, like all good things, come to an end. Measured by classroom hours these academic years are adversely slow; measured by activities and the friendships we make, campus life is one grand "ball" and too soon ended.

We view the senior more closely than ever before on graduation day, and wonder, does a senior really know it "all", or is that just a front he's putting on?

It seems that the whole idea of a college and learning depends upon each student's goals as he progresses through the paths of "educational exposure." And, too, the whole idea of a senior depends upon whether or not he gained something in those years, even the least of the many opportunities that passed before him.

Graduation will come and go with the duly expected "Congratulations'", "Good luck's", and "Farewell's". An underclassman has hardly the right to give a senior advice, but a final word can be directed to the class

On behalf of the Phoenix staff and all the "gang" you leave behind-GOD BLESS YOU ALL IN ALL THAT YOU DO.

-C.L.S.

Chaplain's Message to the Class of '56

Four years of companionship in work and play and prayer cannot but bring about a likeness and a unity in thoughts and ideals and aspirations among people so closely associated as the members of a college community. Inevitably we come to depend upon one another, to look for a helping hand, an encouraging word, a sympathetic ear from those that have so readily accorded these to us in the past. The end of the school year, therefore, brings a certain sadness, particularly to those that are to graduate, whose departure is not to be but an interlude, but a definite disruption of a way of life that had taken on the deceptive appearance of unbreakable permanence. We cannot depart from our accustomed ways without a backward look, in which regret for good we might have done is mingled with gratitude for what, by the grace of God, we have been able to achieve.

While admitting these melancholy aspects of commencement day, I still would say to the seniors: Congratulations! All the good things of your life in college, the joys of companionship, the satisfactions of learning, triumphs in overcoming difficulties, were not vouchsafed to you just to be enjoyed; they were, in good part at least, for the sake of what you should do and what you should be in the years to come: to enable you to make of yourselves good men and women, informed and intelligent, perceptive of the beauties of God's world, just to all your fellowmen, compassionate toward the weak, loyal to your country, devout in your exercises of piety.

The unity of spirit in the pursuit of this wisdom, fostered under the patronage of Our Lady in college, need not be broken, though you never again come together as class on this earth. Though you find yourselves not all that you should like to be as graduates of the college, have no misgivings, but have confidence that, as God has begun the good work in you, He will bring it to perfection.

... Of Sound Mind and Body

We, the senior class of 1956, being of sound (and now educated) mind, do hereby bequeath to the senior class of 1957, those talents peculiar to us in hopes that they will lead you to the day (graduation). We do here and now make known our last will and testament.

- I, Julie Abrams, leave to Carol Borton, Mary Ann Busemyer, Rosemary Glaser, and Janice Smith all my "they"-for the asking.
- I, Pat Burnett, leave to Sara Armington, the traditional doll, Lindy Lou, and free access to the K. of C., and to Charles Boehm our motto, "Forget your troubles and just be happy."
- I, Lilliam Gonzalez, leave to Carylou Siedling my Frigidaire shirt, a copy of my book, How To Pick Locks, and my lock-picking chest of tools. To Robert Bates my old anatomy and chemistry textbooks. To Anna Lovisa my friendly and cheerful disposition, especially that one at 8:20 a.m.
- I, Joann Hazlewood, pass on to Jim McLaughlin my manual of simple parliamentary procedure. To Joe Keers my old culture jar with the moldy media, along with best wishes for many bumper crops of fruit flies in his future.
- I. Ann Herber, leave to Barbara Dunn my unquotable quotes,
- I. Bob Kretschmer, leave to Bob Hahn my convertible, which will afford him more room for comfort than his. To Barbara Sippel my love of philosophy
- I, Maria Legg, leave to Julia Barnes my unique ability for preparing Latin assignments on time so that she, too, will have the "key" to a Latin success. To Anne Diener the indispensable qualification of every senior-a smile.
- I. Gertrude Lenhardt, leave to Mike Raters a German accent. To Erna Gibson my sewing skill.
- I, Paul Livers, leave to Bill Kuntz my slide rule. To Mrs. Maria Lagadon my French fluency. I, Therese McCarthy, leave to Margaret Winsor
- and to Annette Richard my quiet nature. I, James Sylvester O'Bryan, leave to my little brother Berton my gift of gab and ardent bird watching tendencies. To John Burkert my perpetual punctuality, my undying fervor for assemblies, and
- my reserved spot on the dean's list. I, Martha Pictor, leave to Emilie Murray my love for oranges. And to all the residents my collection of old magazines.
- 1, John J. Powell, leave to Herman Schrader my knack for staying off the dean's list during my college career. To Phil Jones my freedom.
- I, Judith Rahe, leave to Shelia Mears my record for the longest engagement at Marian college.
- I, Leonor Rodrigues, leave to Mary Schwendenman my mathematical ability in computing smoking and light fines and my secret remedy for the ulcers she will have by the end of the year. To Rita Frey my white dog with the red bow because we both like red so much.
- I, Sally Schwegman, leave to Regina Fehlinger my ability to be on time for first period classes.
- I, Regina Sivgals, leave to Joe Turk U.S. patent No. 4, which fortunately limits the production of chocolate-coated pickles. To Zenta Rudzats my latest book How to Adjust Oneself to Certain Classroom Environments.
- I, Dorothy Walsh, leave to Mary Kops my musical genius.
- I, Donald Winandy, leave to Nguyen-thi Diep my democratic spirit. To David Bixler my way with
- I. Gail Worth, leave to Jeanne Parker my instantaneous understanding of aromatic and aliphatic compounds and my prized pots and pans.

Students Bury Books; Jobs, Conventions Call As Vacation Begins

As summer vacation draws near and students put their books away for three months, many and varied activities will greet them.

A recent informal survey taken among Marianites concerning summer employment showed a few interesting facts.

The most unusual occupations are among the girls. One of our co-eds will spend her summer as a mortician's assistant and another as a bicycle-riding messenger for the personnel of the Allison plant. Housewife, receptionist, organist, sales clerk, artist are some of the different roles that will be filled.

Meat cutter, bartender, hauler of contour chairs, grillman, lifeguard, park director, construction worker, and mechanic's assistant are jobs employing our men. Most jobs were acquired through references, advertisements and "connections".

Some students will be traveling-Newfoundland being the farthest reported. Others will continue studying or spend the summer vacationing.

Conventions and workshops are also beckoning to Marianites late in August. The CSMC will hold its annual affair at Notre Dame from August 23-26. The National Student association is holding its conference at Chicago, August 21-31.

The NFCCS will stage its 14th annual conference at Cleveland, August 26-September 1. The Sodality will be represented at the SSCA in Chicago, August 27-September 1. Notre Dame will host the Third Order of St. Francis Youth congress on August 13-16.

NCMEA Entertains Carter Patients

A program of classical music and popular standards was given for the patients of LaRue Carter Memorial hospital by students from Marian, and the Indianapolis Student Chapter, NCMEA, the evening of May 29.

Marian participants were: Deanna Mc-Garvey, Joan Friday, and Delores Seathes -pianist; Sue Heileman and Phyllis Larson-soprano soloist; Mary Ann Lindemann-contralto soloist; and the Mellotones-vocal group.

Other student members of the NCMEA presented a variety of costumed folk

Convocation Honors Scholastic Leaders

"Our first claim to honor is our being the image and likeness of God," Monsignor Doyle said at the recent honors convocation. "Having thus given glory to God, it is secondary, then, that we should recognize each other as having used the gifts and graces which God has bestowed upon us."

Concluding his brief talk, Monsignor Doyle then presented the awards. Joann Hazelwood and Martha Pictor, received certificates from the Delta Epsilon Sigma, national honor society; Julia Abrams, Kappa Gamma Pi; Judith Rahe, Martha Pictor, Julia Abrams, Leonor Rodriguez. Therese McCarthy, Joann Hazlewood, Emilie Murray, and Margaret Winsor, Who's Who Among Students.

The Alliance Francaise medal for French proficiency was given to Julia Abrams.

Freshman chemistry and mathematics awards went to Nancy Gale and Dave James, for outstanding achievement in their respective fields.

Since this is the last column of the year and sighs of relief are being vented by numerous students, faculty members, and moderators, we will endeavor to expostulate at some length on the athletic activities of those representing Marian college this past year. (What did he say?)

The basketball team's victories can be counted on one finger, but their achievements have been maganimous. Despite the scalping they received from the pen of this columnist, here and elsewhere, it can be said that the men, despite a definite handicap, showed their potential well.

They started off well against Taylor, slumped to a low level but fought back uphill all season to finally score 103 points against Aurora. This gives us a winning streak of one and with this streak continuing up until next year, and with the fellows finally used to playing together, they could be great.

The swimming team, which remains quite anonymous, has shown too. Despite the setback of the lack of swimmers, they weren't once out of the race. Next year, they too could be great.

And now (sob) the baseball team. Said team like the basketball squad can count their victories in ones. They started out by being slaughtered, and stayed right there. Their one victory was Park school. But the advancement being made by these ten men, despite the same handicap, leads this columnist to believe that once they get over being scared, they like the other teams will be great.

And now comes time to bid a personal farewell to all the readers of this scribbling that my Scheaffer puts out. I've enjoyed every minute of it and I hope you did. I know I made quite a few people mad at me by some vitrolic comments, but I guess that if you try to express your own opinions you've got to make enemies.

I'm offering no apologies to anyone for anything I said. I just want to thank you for putting up with me. So now I say "goodby" to you and wish you all the best of luck this summer. Adios.

Picnic Lunch, Games, Floats Hilight ARA, M-Club Field Day

The annual Field Day sponsored by the ARA and the M-Club, un-Therese McCarthy, George De-Hart, and Ralph Powell, was a grand success.

The day began officially at noon with a delicious picnic lunch, for which the student association generously picked up the check. After lunch the contests and games began. The men's sack race was won by Bob Connors, while Mary Ann Kaelin won the event for the women. The egg throwing contest was won by George Waning and Jerry Obergfell after much splattering of contestants.

George DeHart and Corky Johnson won the men's Three-legged race, with Mona Miller and Barbara Kuhn winning the women's race. Bob Connors and Mike Witsett proved to be the fastest, if not the messiest pie eaters of the

There was a lot of spirited softball, volleyball, and tennis in progress throughout the afternoon.

Next on the agenda was the parade of floats, which was led by the campus queen and her court. Although there were only two floats, their cleverness and originality compensated for the lack of other entries and the work of both was rewarded by a prize of five dollars each. The float from Clare hall represented the four classes, while the other float sponsored by the M-Club, depicted the long and tiring wait for information concerning the decision of

'56-'57 Schedule Announced by Coach Offers New Opponents, More Games

by Larry Hammerstein

"Just drop a little hint for them to hit those books," suggested Ed. Coach Ed Seyfried had a smile when he spoke these words, but from his conversation he left no doubt that this was a problem of no small importance to him. Scholastic ineligibility had bounced a good percentage of the basketball team right off the floor at mid-season, and this spring the baseball team has been partially crippled by that same

Ed had just finished giving us the schedule for next year's basket-ball season and he was fairly enthusiastic about it. "It's not a bad schedule and if we're able to get a few more games from schools we have contacted it will be much better than last year's."

Taylor university and St. Joseph are the only teams from last year's schedule that won't be played this year. St. Joe has not been contacted and Taylor had previous commitments that made a game for this year impossible. Last year's Taylor game was a thriller and we hope that in the future the rivalry can be continued.

Two teams the Knights will meet for the first time next season are Earlham at Richmond, Ind., on Jan. 2, and Transylvania of Lexington, Ky., here at home on Feb. 4. Teams contacted to fill the open dates on the schedule are Anderson, Concordia, Oakland City, and Indiana Tech. Two games will be played with Vincennes university again this year but the playing dates have not yet been decided.

The season opens with a home game against Franklin on Nov. 20 and there will be six more home games and probably more when scheduling has been completed. Coach Seyfried hopes to have 18 to 21 games in all. Home games will be played either at Scecina or Cathedral gymnasiums.

Graduation . . .

and many others. He reviews monthly for the Catholic World, is a columnist for Books on Trial, and is lited in the American Catholic Who's Who.

Books written include Our Coast Guard Academy, The Hills Were Liars (a novel), and All Manner of Men (editor).

"Age of Anxiety"

Subject for Mr. Hughes's address will be "Education and the Age of Anxiety". In it he will speak of "new careers in old occupations"-we must broaden our ideas of what can be done with college education - how much better would all fields be if graduates would seek opportunities in them, instead of restricting themselves to "collegiate" fields.

What makes our age one of anxiety is atheistic materialism, which thinks it can "bestow upon us an empire equal to God's." More and more "men have seen themselves stripped of stature and dignity by the hugeness of industrial, political, and mechanical combinations" and have gone into private neurotic and psychotic worlds, losing the good they could do the world.

Music

Music for the ceremonies will include the processional, "Pomp and Circumstance" by Elgar, "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place", sung by Bel Canto ensemble, and the recessional, by Gounod. Mona Miller will be at the organ.
