

Marian hosts inauguration weekend events

by Tina Kunkler

Doctor Daniel A. Felicetti was inaugurated the sixth president of Marian College in an afternoon ceremony November 12 in the Marian Hall Auditorium.

Felicetti was presented with a gold presidential medallion midway through the ceremony by Sister Annata Holohan, O.S.F., vice-chairman of the Marian College Board of Trustees and congregational minister of the Sisters of St. Francis, Oldenburg. Represented on the medallion is the Marian College coat of arms symbolizing the aims and ideals of the college.

Following greetings from representatives of the Indianapolis Archdiocese, Sisters of St. Francis, Alumni Association, Student Association, Faculty, Administration and Staff, Higher Education, City of Indianapolis and Family and Friends, and his installation as president, Felicetti gave his inaugural address.

He reflected on the day the announcement of his selection appeared in the newspapers and revealed that on his fourth day on the job he received the first parking ticket of his 47 years. On a more serious note, Felicetti said he saw his job as to "develop a vision of where the college is going and a strategy to get there."

"We are already on the move," said the new president concerning the plans that have been made to achieve his goals for Marian. In revealing results from a survey of all full-time employees and the Board of Trustees, Felicetti said that a tremendous amount of support was expressed, "In no single category did the level of support drop below 93 percent."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Allison Mansion for all those who wished to greet the newly-inaugurated president.

Yearbook plans for successful year

by Dallice Hesselgrave

Don Vogt, yearbook editor, conveyed his most important goal for this year's yearbook, "Get it done on time!"

This is no surprise after all the difficulties involved in finishing the 1988-89 edition. When Vogt started, after mid-term break, last year's book was mostly finished. Vogt credits most of this work to advisors Mark Hall and Richard Hoogerwerf. Last year's edition should be out to students no later than January 1990.

Hall and Hoogerwerf have also been instrumental in organizing this year's book. Besides setting up the basic plans, they have helped to bring about a class for next semester that will design the layout. Hall and Hoogerwerf have also redesigned the darkroom to be used by the yearbook and the Carbon. Denis Ratekin has begun reconstruction in the darkroom and will be the darkroom manager.

Vogt comments on plans for the yearbook, "It should be more attractive and look more like a yearbook." Because at the first of the semester, emphasis was on finishing last year's book, the deadline to turn in color photos of the seniors was missed. Hopefully, this year, seniors will not have a sitting fee and will get a free copy of their picture. Vogt would also like to see more pictures of clubs, students, faculty and staff.

Leaky pipes -- response

Last week's Carbon described a leak in a water pipe in St. Francis Hall which was not repaired immediately. I would like to clarify the action taken and comment on the response of our maintenance people. First, the pipe in question has been clamped, but had leaks in more than one place. To properly repair the pipe will require the removal of several feet of pipe and the shutting off of water, which would have inconvenienced the students had it been done when maintenance was first notified on Saturday.

The action taken was proper. Since the leak was not causing damage, overtime was avoided and temporary repairs accomplished during the normal work week.

A PERSONAL NOTE--I'm proud of our maintenance crew. They are routinely called back to the campus every weekend, both day and night and always respond, often working at hours at a time that we are all sleeping.

Inaugural weekend

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Sr. Norma Rocklage, the Inauguration Committee, and all who were involved in the planning and orchestration of Sunday's Inaugural events. The Liturgy, the inauguration ceremony itself, and the reception were very well done.

Sunday, November 12, 1989, will be a day looked back upon with much fondness. This was truly a memorable event in the history of Marian College. It should be one in which we, as the Marian Community, can take much pride.

The events occurred with a smoothness, tact and propriety which made me proud to be there representing my school. It's too bad that the weekend was preceded by all the uproar and unfounded rumors. The formality and polish of the day were perfect, not overdone or gaudy in any way. Marian pulled off the event with true style and good taste. Anything less would have been inappropriate.

Doyle Hall fire

It's hard enough to be an R.A. during an emergency, but when you're half asleep at 12:30 a.m., trying to clear out a residence hall because of a fire (even if it is only in a trash chute), being a Resident Assistant takes on a whole new meaning. We're responding to Mr. Bob Elliot's remark in last week's Carbon stating: "the R.A. who reported the fire said the fire department was not needed." Here's the real story.

When Phil Bernard, Resident Director, told Denis Ratekin, Resident Assistant, to call security, the dispatcher told him an officer was on the way. No more than a minute later, the dispatcher called Doyle Hall and asked Denis if notifying the fire department was necessary to which Denis replied, "the hallway is full of smoke.

I haven't been down to check it out, but send them (the fire department) just in case." So, where did Mr. Elliot receive his inaccurate information?

After talking to him about his reply, Mr. Elliot and we agreed that his statement must have been a misquote by the Carbon staff???? Denis and I seriously doubt that it was a misquote. Whoever made the mistake, please don't blame us when we followed correct procedures.

The Carbon, a source of news and information as well as an open forum for the Marian College Campus community, is not an official publication of Marian College and does not necessarily reflect the views of the college administration, faculty, or editors. Readers are invited to submit timely and relevant letters of opinion to the editors. Such letters should not exceed 150 words and must include the author's name and phone number. For verification purposes the letter must also be dated and signed. Telephone numbers will not be published, nor will anonymous letters be published. Letters may be edited for clarity and brevity. Editors have authority to reject any letter they feel to be potentially libelous, obscene, inflammatory, or in poor taste. Ordinarily such letters should aim to address issues, clarify events, promote understanding, or clearly identify what is going on in an event, issue, or scene. No guest editorials will be accepted unless explicitly solicited by the editors. Unsolicited pieces will be treated as letters to the editors. Letters to the editors must be turned in to the Carbon's mailbox in the faculty mail room by 12:00 noon, Monday, the week they are to run.

Any campus club or organization sponsoring an event can advertise in the Carbon at no charge by submitting a 4"x5" ad to the Carbon in the Carbon mailbox in the faculty mail room one week before the ad is to run. If typesetting is required, the ad must be submitted two weeks in advance, and a fee will be charged. The Carbon will run the ad for the two weeks preceding the announced event.

Events or informational notes can be submitted for the Knightly notes by campus organizations or persons. The text must be 50 words or less. The deadline for Notes is Mondays at 12:00 noon in the Carbon mailbox. The editors reserve the right to edit all advertisements and notes submitted.

Senior profile

by Susan Schuppan

"I don't know of one person who has been most influential in my life. During college, I would have to say that the two biggest are Tim Akin, chairman of the Accounting Department, and Mike Henderson, director of student activities," commented senior Mark McLean.

As an Accounting major, McLean's plan for after graduation is becoming a certified public accountant. "I hope to pass the CPA exam someday," he added, which he will attempt for the first time one week before finals. And eventually, he is interested in teaching at the high school or college level.

"Nug" McLean received his nickname on the day he was born. After his mother rejected his father's suggestion of naming him "Nug," they agreed on "Mark." However, since that day, he has been called Nug by friends and family alike.

McLean moved from Sycamore, Ill., to Indiana in 1979. He graduated from Cloverdale High School. His father is the manager of a telephone company and his mother is the secretary at his former high school.

McLean's brother, Jim, who influenced his college choice, graduated from Marian in 1988. McLean had visited Marian for a basketball camp in eighth grade, and got to know many of the students through his brother. The fact that Marian is not much bigger than his high school also made McLean feel comfortable here. "I like the faculty, the small size, and actually, the best thing about Marian is the students. In just the short walk from Doyle to St. Francis, everyone you pass says 'hi,'" said McLean.

While at Marian, McLean has served on the Judicial Panel and during his junior year was a member of the Academic Affairs Committee. Currently, he serves on the Conduct Appeals Board, he is in the Accounting Society and is St. Francis Hall's first president. McLean has also been active in intramural sports including softball, football, basketball and volleyball.

"One thing I love to do is play golf. If I'm in accounting I need to be able to play golf," commented McLean. His response when asked his favorite activity on campus, he replied, "I like hanging around with 'the boys.'"

McLean's summer activities were working for five years at Lieber State Recreation Area and last summer he filled his accounting internship at Inland Container Corporation. Outside of his work schedule, McLean always finds time to water ski.

McLean's advice to underclassmen is, "You need to stay focused on why you are here -- which is to get an education, but it is also important to know when to relax."

"The neatest thing about Marian is that most people know me by 'Nug.' It's great that everyone can feel comfortable enough to do that."

Lighter side

by Michael Rinard

The young campers were having trouble going to sleep one dark and damp night, so Assistant Counselor Peter Cottonpatch told them the following bedtime story:

"Once upon a time, a long, long time ago, a soon-to-be crowned King was having a party. He invited all of his friends and neighbors. When the day came for the party, he sent his servants out to tell his invited guests that everything was ready and the party was to begin.

"One asked to be excused because he had just purchased a farm and he was on his way to see it. Another asked to be excused because he had just bought some oxen and he wanted to try them in his fields. Still another one asked to be excused because he was just married and he and his wife were going on their honeymoon.

"When the servants reported back to the soon-to-be crowned King that no one was coming to his party, the King then said, 'Go out into the highways and byways, invite all that you see.' And when the servants did as they were commanded, there was still room at the party. The soon-to-be crowned King then said, 'Go out and invite the lame, the beggars, and all that you find. For the ones who were invited shall not partake of the party they were invited.'

And the young campers had no trouble falling fast asleep.

Bowling night held

by Brenda Gauck

The bowling night co-sponsored by the Business Club and the Accounting Society on Nov. 5 was a big success. Lynhurst Bowl was filled with the excitement and hilarity of approximately 80 Marian College students. There were high scores, low scores and no scores that filled the evening with challenge and laughter.

Prizes were given in the following categories: high score male, Jose' Flores; high score female, Susan Meer; low score male, Ray Denning; low score female, Lucy Griner; and also the prize for the night's "body bowler" went to Lisa Kaufman who tried to throw her body down the lane.

Do not miss your next opportunity for free bowling coming next spring.

was held in the Bishop Chartrand Chapel with the Archbishop Edward T. O'Meara presiding as the main celebrant.

On Nov. 13 Felicetti and his wife, Barbara, were presented with Marian College "Dad" and "Mom" sweatshirts by the Marian College Student Association in the Clare Hall cafeteria. Afterwards, they mingled with students during the lunch period.

Registrar releases stats on student population

by Beth Peter

After some delay from computer problems, the Registrar's office has provided some statistics about the Marian College student population.

The total enrollment for the fall semester of 1989 is 1228 students with the division of classes as follows: 579 freshmen, 329 sophomores, 163 juniors and 123 seniors. The reason for the sharp break between the number of sophomores and juniors is that some students finish college after two years with an associate degree.

There are 749 commuter students and 479 resident students. Of the resident students, 228 women live in Clare Hall, 153 men and 26 women live in Doyle Hall and 72 students live in St. Francis Hall.

Of the total number of students, 343 are male and 885 are female, which averages out to about 40 percent male and 60 percent female.

The category of full-time students encompasses 863 students, while there are 365 part-time students at Marian.

These numbers are the latest official statistics, but one must realize that the number of students constantly changes from day to day.

Committee members resign

by Tina Kunkler

Three members of the Social Planning Committee submitted a letter of resignation at the Nov. 7 meeting of the Marian College Student Association.

Dallice Hesselgrave, Shannon Wichman and Kimberly Blair have resigned from the committee because they are unsatisfied with the performance of the Social Planning Committee chairman, Brian Collett. A committee consisting of Bill Pedtke, president, and Mike Henderson, advisor, was formed to discuss with Collett the letter's contents and the basis of its complaints.

In other business, Sr. Norma Rocklage, O.S.F., chairman of the Inaugural Committee, addressed the board concerning the confusion surrounding student involvement in the inaugural ceremonies.

Bob Freese was introduced as a representative from the Alumni Association to the board to facilitate communication between the two groups. Senior Kathy Martin will act as a liaison to the Alumni Association.

Publications Committee chairperson, Stacey Nicholas, reported that Don Vogt will receive financial aid as editor of the Yearbook, that construction has begun on the darkroom, and that the Fioretti staff is putting the fall issue together.

George Spaeth, Academic Affairs representative, reported that they have approved the change of CH153 and CH154 to CH231 and CH232, as four hour classes with one three hour lab.

The cable committee reported that they are still discussing how to bring cable television on campus and plans to present a proposal to the administration. They will also be conducting a poll of the students to determine the number of students wanting cable on campus.

Barb Crock, chair of the parking committee, presented a report in response to Sr. Claire Whalen's suggestions. It was accepted by the board and forwarded to the presidential cabinet with a request of a response by Dec. 5.

A committee was formed to plan lunch for the students and President Daniel Felicetti for Monday, Nov. 13. A gift of sweatshirts was agreed upon for the Felicetti's.

The board voted down a proposal to sell Christmas items for UNICEF.

Jim Meer, treasurer, presented a proposal from the Budget Committee to change the Do's and Don'ts for club treasurers. The proposal, accepted unanimously, changed items five and six to allow funding for travel at the discretion of the Budget Committee.

The board will not meet Nov. 21.

Van damaged in accident

by Dallice Hesselgrave

On Saturday, November 4, Samara Lathrop had an accident between 1:30 and 2 a.m.

Lathrop told her story, "I want everyone to know exactly what happened." She and five ELS students had signed out the van to go to Union Station, to a restaurant and to a hockey game. They came back to Marian around 9 p.m. to drop off three of the girls who needed to be back early.

The remaining students then went to the Rocky Horror Picture Show. On the way back, Gabriella Crispi, who had been driving, was tired of driving and asked Lathrop if she would drive. Lathrop, having a driver's permit, agreed. She commented, "I have driven before, but not by myself."

After dropping Crispi and the other student off at Doyle, Lathrop went to park the van. She swerved to miss a light pole and hit a tree. Because she was not wearing her seat belt, she was badly bruised and had head lacerations from where she went through the windshield.

She was taken to Methodist Hospital, treated and released at 6 a.m. that same morning.

Records show that the van was signed out by the International Club from 3:30 to 9 p.m. When asked why the students were out until 1:30 a.m., Lathrop replied, "We figured since we would not take the mileage book back until the next day, it would be okay."

Despite the fact that the van was signed out under the International Club, Sr. Roseanne Taylor, advisor, was unaware the van would be used. "I believe it was signed out under International Club, but we gave no authorization." Sr. Roseanne went on to say that at a previous meeting, the club decided that it would not use the van for this activity.

Currently, no estimate is available for the damage to the van. Lathrop had met with Assistant Academic Dean Connie Wesner and Dean for Student Affairs Bill Woodman to discuss the issue.

Gym closed

Our regular routine of playing racquetball after our Wednesday evening class was interrupted for no apparent reason last week. We were on our way to release our stress and tension creatively when we were approached by security. The officer informed us that Karrie Shambaugh had called and wanted to lock up. It was approximately 9 p.m. We called the gymnasium the following day and were told that the gym was open from 8-10 p.m. weekdays for Marian students. What is wrong with this picture? Maybe we need to have an all campus meeting to synchronize our watches.

If specific times are given for a facility to be utilized by the students, then why was this not possible? We realize that there are times when business is slow, but not all of the students on this campus can participate at the same time.

We feel we were cheated of our rights and privileges as students of Marian College. We would like to see the situation rectified in the future.

Carbon ignoring issues?

I am astonished to find no articles in the last two issues of the Carbon dealing with one of the most important and controversial events on campus this semester--the defacement of the third floor of Clare Hall and the controversy and pain this incident has generated.

For almost three weeks now, this incident has been one of the most prominent topics of discussion among both students and faculty at Marian. Yet the only mention of this incident in the Carbon has occurred in an oblique and unsigned letter of apology. Members of the community who are unfamiliar with all of the details of this case would have no way of making sense of this letter of apology.

As Ms. Kunkler points out in her editorial of November 9, the Carbon has a responsibility to keep the community informed of important events on campus. Yet the manner in which the Carbon fulfills this responsibility seems to me haphazard, arbitrary and in many cases hypocritical.

By not reporting on the defacement of Clare Hall, the Carbon is leaving the entire matter to rumor, gossip and innuendo. Moreover, the newspaper is ignoring issues of interest to the entire community, since this incident raises important questions about the quality of social life, the admissions policies and judicial process of the college. The college newspaper is the proper forum for the discussion of these difficult issues.

As Ms. Kunkler's long-winded editorial of Nov. 9 indicates, the Carbon is willing to take up controversies that cast the college in a bad light. Unfortunately, however, the newspaper is unwilling to extend this policy to issues that really matter to the college and affect the well-being of the entire community.

The New York Times has as its motto, "All the news that's fit to print." The Carbon might just as well publish on its masthead the words, "Some of the news that we feel like printing."

Inauguration thanks

No matter how I try to say it, I cannot adequately express my gratitude to all who worked so hard and so many, many hours to make the Inauguration of President Felicetti a success! I have heard from many of the visitors that the spirit of hospitality and friendliness was a real tribute to the Marian College Community, and I extend that complimentary message to all who contributed to that beautiful spirit. Although I will be thanking both publicly and personally many of the other workers by name in the very near future, I want at this time to publicly thank the members of the Inaugural Committee who gave of themselves over and above the call of duty: Honorary Chair: Barbara A. Felicetti, Laura Gantner, Mary Lou Gheen, Jim Lerner, Alan Lisle, Stacey Nicholas, Denise Perry, Sr. Carol Slinger, Vicki Welch and Connie Wesner.

My only regret, and a serious one for me, is that the students had only minimal participation. As Chairperson of the Inaugural Committee, I accept the responsibility for the failure to communicate more effectively with the students and effect greater collaboration. In the future, I will seek better means of communication than were used in the planning of the Inauguration. For the present, I am grateful to all the students who participated in any way, for they were an essential part of Sunday's celebration. To these students and, again, to all who contributed in any way to the joyous celebration on Sunday, I simply say, THANK YOU!

-- Sr. Norma Rocklage, O.S.F.

Bowen to speak at convo Nov. 21

On Tuesday, Nov. 21, the Marian College community will have the opportunity to hear former Indiana Governor Otis Bowen speak on health awareness and nutrition. Bowen served as Secretary of Health and Human Services, which is a part of the federal government. He is a Breman, Indiana, native and holds an honorary degree from Marian College.

Bowen helped oversee the publication of the Surgeon General's Report on Nutrition and Health. He will address the findings that have come from this report. The Surgeon General's Report is intended to provide American's with guidelines for good health and eating habits.

This information may already be affecting students. Newly inaugurated Marian College President, Dr. Daniel A. Felicetti has stated that part of his new commitment to Marian deals with its wellness. "A commitment to an affordable, holistic health program for all who work, study, and live here." That means a better concentration on nutrition, exercise, and overall health conditions. Students will be directly affected by this concentration.

Bowen's information also affects consumers and where future tax dollars will be going. Health and nutrition programs and social issues will also be determined by this information.

Marian group experiences Shakespeare firsthand at Stratford, Ontario

by Sr. Stella Gampfer

For the second year in a row, a group of Marian College students, faculty and friends traveled to Stratford, Ontario, at the end of October to experience five Shakespearean plays in four days.

On Thursday evening, the festival trumpets and drum that announce the beginning of each play at the Festival Theatre brought tears to my eyes--again. By the time I made my way to my second row seat, the players were strolling onto the thrust stage, the Overture to KISS ME KATE was playing, and I was almost beside myself with excitement.

After last year's splendid performance of TAMING OF THE SHREW, here was a delightful follow-up in Cole Porter's musical which divides its plot between the off-stage and on-stage lives of the actors, who just happen to be performing Shakespeare's TAMING. To add to the enjoyment of Shakespeare put to music, the costumes here at Stratford were unmatched for variety, color, and creativity. All of us were impressed with the acting--especially of the leading couple, who are married to each other in real life.

On Friday evening, I was surprised at the power of combining two of Shakespeare's earliest works in double bill: TITUS ANDRONICUS (a revenge tragedy) and COMEDY OF ERRORS. The tragedy was a marvel with its Japanese costumes and the acting of title role by the leading man from KISS ME KATE.

After a short intermission, the trumpets again called us to our seats to witness COMEDY OF ERRORS with the same group of actors who performed the tragedy. Transformed before our very eyes were the two actors who played the Emperor's sons in TITUS. Now each one played a set of twins in a wonderful comedy of mistaken identity. Half the enjoyment of this performance came from witnessing the versatility of the actors in their multiple roles.

Before our four days were over, we had experienced THE MERCHANT OF VENICE with a very convincing Shylock and A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM with its creative fairyland costumes and special lighting effects. We had taken the backstage tour of the Festival Theatre. This tour allowed us to tread the very stage we had seen so magically transformed as well as to tour the actors' "underground." And we got a close-up look at some of the handmade costumes and props.

When we weren't enjoying live drama, we were free to wander the streets of the town with its unique shops and restaurants. Many of us enjoyed strolling along the Avon River with its picturesque bridges and its multitude of swans, ducks, geese, and seagulls. Part of our discussion as we walked or rode was of plays and characters, actors and costumes and acting.

In an informal survey on the van ride back to Marian, I asked what we had gained through our trip. To quote some of the students and faculty, we were "exposed to new literature" as we experienced "professional actors making Shakespeare come to life." At the same time we "broadened our theatrical knowledge and experience," and were felt "more cosmopolitan." When asked if they would return to Stratford, the respondents gave me a universal "Yes."

Contact the world

To promote a close relationship between International students and Americans, the Business Department and ELS have started a new program called "Contact the world."

The main goal of this program is to match Marian College students to International ones through conversation partners. The students will have the opportunity to meet a partner from the country they are interested in. This program will also organize get-togethers, arrange visits for Marian students to ELS classes, and promote International student visits to Marian classes. Having collected the names of the interested students during the International Festival, we will be contacting them starting next week. Meanwhile those who wish to participate in this program, please contact Yas Karam Ext 698 or the Business Department Ext 269. Inquiries may also be directed to ELS at 923-2371.

Kunkler, Adler attend journalism seminar

by Beth Peter

On Nov. 3 and 4, Dr. Brian Adler, Carbon advisor, and Tina Kunkler, Carbon editor, attended the annual Central Newspapers Institute Seminar at the Indianapolis Athletic Club and the Central Newspapers Plant.

The conference began with an audio/video presentation about the organization of Central Newspapers owned by Eugene Pulliam which runs the two city newspapers, The Indianapolis Star and The Indianapolis News. Afterwards, the students and advisors toured the building and saw the composition room, the writing room, the layout room and the printing press. Then they met and spoke with Pulliam and four editors.

After lunch, Adler had a free period while Kunkler was paired with Nelson Price, a staff writer, to learn interviewing and writing techniques.

Kunkler felt the most important aspect of the conference was its help in career planning. She had been unsure of her chances of working on a large newspaper, but now Kunkler feels comfortable with the goal of working for one within ten years. Eventually, she would like to do general assignment reporting and feature writing.

Adler and Kunkler had the advantage of meeting with about 60 faculty and students from institutions such as Purdue University, Vincennes University, Butler University and Ball State University. They discussed their schools and newspapers and have found that they run against many of the same problems.

At breakfast on Saturday, four writers spoke of their philosophies of writing, how they write and gave examples of past stories.

Adler commented, "It was extremely educational and fascinating to hear these professionals talk about language, their love of it and the hard work that's involved in fashioning it."

Also, in the morning, students had an opportunity to have examples of their work critiqued by professionals of ten to 20 years experience. "That was helpful because the more people who look at your work, the better off you are," said Kunkler.

Students had access to computer assessment of their writing skills. Categories included words per sentence, reading level, descriptive index, strength of delivery, jargon index and words to review.

Kunkler summed up the seminar with, "I felt really good about the conference. I learned a lot. I wish I'd done it a long time ago, but the timing was good, because I already had some experience and knew what they were talking about... I like to see how everything goes together, from the birth of the story to the finished product that goes on the stands."
