Outdoor graduation ceremony set for 2 p.m. Sunday, May 14

By PAUL JARBOE

Outdoor graduation ceremonies, weather permitting, on Sunday, May 14, will culminate the 1977-1978 school year at Marian College.

The festivities associated with the end of school begin on Thursday, May 11. This is the night for the senior class party. It will be held again this year at the Latvian Community Center, located at 1008 W. 64th St. The party starts with supper from 5-8 p.m., followed by a disco featuring Jerry Steele of WIFE radio.

There is no cost for seniors, but non-seniors will be charged $2 to help cover the costs of food and drink.

Graduation day activities get under way on Sunday with Mass at 10:30 a.m. Mary Beth Gianoli is in charge of planning the Mass.

After Mass, there will be a brunch served until 12:45 p.m. in the cafeteria. The cost for the brunch will be free for seniors, $2.50 for parents and children over 8, and $1.25 for children 4-8.

The afternoon ceremonies get underway at 2 p.m. in the area west of Allison Mansion. If the weather is bad, the ceremony will take place in the Marian Hall auditorium. The Indianapolis Philharmonic Orchestra will provide the music for the ceremony.

While at Marian, Diane was freshman class president and holds membership on the Religious Affairs Committee and Music Ministry.

After the graduation ceremony, there will be a small reception held on the college grounds.

Commencement speaker, others named to receive honoraries

Henry C. Goodrich, chairman and chief executive officer of Inland Container Corp., will deliver the commencement address on Sunday, May 14.

Marian will hand out 148 degrees as well as four honorary degrees. Honorary degree candidates include the commencement speaker, Dr. John I. Nurnberger, H. Jack Baker and Sister LaVerne Frietsch.

Goodrich, who holds a degree in civil engineering from the University of Tennessee, will receive an honorary doctorate of business administration. He is also president and director of Georgia Kraft Co., which has three paper board mills in Alabama and Georgia.

Dr. Nurnberger, who will receive the doctor of science degree, is the executive board chairman of the Institute of Psychiatric Research at the Indiana University School of Medicine. He holds degrees from Loyola University, Northwestern University and the Northwestern University School of Medicine.

He is currently a member of the board of overseers of St. Meinrad College and the executive committee of the Catholic Commission on Intellectual and Cultural Affairs.

Baker, who is president of the engineering firm of Baker, McHenry and Welch, Inc., will receive the doctor of engineering degree. He holds an undergraduate engineering degree from Purdue University. Some of his affiliations include board membership in the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and the Marian College Board of Trustees.

Other honorary awards he has received include the Distinguished Engineering Alumnus of Purdue University and the Distinguished Service Award of the Mechanical Contractors Association of America.

Sister LaVerne, who receives a doctor of humane letters degree, is the director of studies and continuing education for the Sisters of St. Francis, Oldenburg. A former academic dean at Marian, Sister LaVerne holds a doctorate in education from the University of Cincinnati.

She recently completed a term as the executive director of the Indianapolis Parent-Child Development Center, which is administered by Marian.

Awards given out to many for academics, sports, clubs

The Marian Hall Auditorium was the site Sunday, Apr. 23, for the second annual student recognition night. The program, which included dinner, honored those students who achieved both academic and extra curricular excellence.

The main speaker for the event was Rick Scott, Director of Admissions. Although the meaning of the speech was at times lost between the quotes of novelists and playwrights, the speech was nonetheless delivered with excellent poise and exuberance.

The point of much of Scott's speech resembled that of a commercial for a well-known camera and film company as he relied on personal memories and encouraged "living for the moments." One such instance of his speech related to another commercial industry as he implored, "You only go around once in life, so grab for all the gusto!"

Scott went on to deliberate further on several aspects and importances for living for the moment in life and made specific references to several literary works on hand at the podium.

There were over 100 awards given out, ranging from academic and service recognition to athletes.

The sports teams honored included the women's varsity basketball and varsity volleyball. The cheerleaders were also recognized. In men's sports, the basketball, baseball, golf, and tennis teams were given awards. The MVP honors went to Holly Brunns in basketball and volleyball, Jim Dossman in basketball, and Larry Fox in golf.

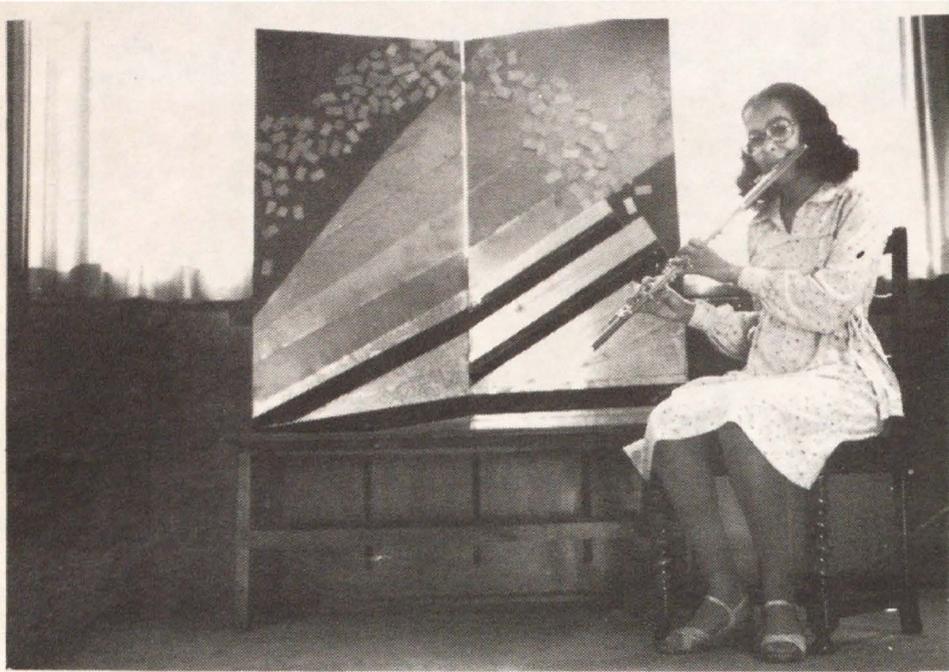

Academic award winners were recognized by Sister Margaretta Black, Academic Dean. They included:

Sullivan, Otey exhibits close out senior shows

By CARM LOIACONO

During the month of April, seniors Kathy Sullivan and Astrid Otey held their art exhibits. Astrid has a double major of art and music and held her music recital at the same time.

Kathy displayed her art in the college library April 2-21. She had over 30 pieces on display, including water colors, acrylic, pen and ink, charcoal, pencil sketches, ceramics and three-dimensional sculptures.

After graduation, Kathy would like to pursue a career in commercial art and advertising or scenic design for the stage.

Astrid opened her exhibit, combined with a flute recital, in the Stokely Music Hall on April 9. Thirty items in the art exhibit included oil and acrylic paintings, silk screen, pencil sketches, ceramics, wood sculpture and marble sculpture. Her favorite piece is the marble sculpture.

Her music recital featured movements from Mozart Concerto in D Major, Bach Sonata in E Minor and Prokofieff in D Major.

Upon graduation, Astrid plans to attend the University of Missouri to study art history. She would like a career in museum art work.

Financial Aid Director says College Work-Study 'works'

By PAUL JARBOE

College Work Study is a federal program based upon demonstrated financial need. The purpose of the work is to help the student defray the costs of going to college.

For the '77-'78 school year, Marian has about $100,000 for the program. Eighty per cent of the money comes from the federal government, while 20 per cent comes from the college. All of this money will probably not be spent this year since there are some students who turn down work study, while others do not work all the hours assigned.

The placing of students in a job depends upon what departments have job openings and what department the student wants into. Upper class students can pick the department, while underclassmen are usually assigned to their first job.

Whenever possible, students are placed within their major areas. This is not always possible since some areas don't have enough hours available.

A department has to justify the number of hours they are requesting. Each request is checked closely by the Financial Aid Officer, Mark Tobin. If the department gets "cleared," then it can have student workers. The check is also made to ensure no overlapping of responsibilities.

The job of a supervisor is one of the most important in the work study program. Supervisory responsibilities are carried out for the benefit of the student. The responsibilities are: 1) educative, 2) motivational, 3) supervisory, and 4) administrative.

Tobin believes that most supervisors do their jobs on the whole. He also believes that there is very little forging of time cards going on. According to Tobin, "It hurts the school and you, the taxpayer, to pay students for hours not worked." If the supervisor does sign a card for a student who is not working, it constitutes fraud.

There are few problems of this type. Most students here do the work, but it can vary from student to student. The biggest problem seems to be the student who comes in to work only when he wants to. This creates a hassle for the supervisor who is to keep the worker supplied in duties.

The money a student receives for working is to help cover expenses while in school. The student is allowed two options: He can use it to pay his fees directly, or he can pay his fees out of his own pocket and use the monthly check as spending money. Marian is one of few colleges and universities which allows the student an option.

The largest employers of students on campus, in no particular order, are the library, Doyle Hall and Clare Hall. These locations use a great number of people to perform services which are useful to all the students.

The work study program is very useful and will be around for quite some time. It is of importance to Marian if it is going to offer the individual student a plan to pay his way through college.

Chorale and Madrigal Spring Concert

The Chorale and Madrigals presented their Spring Concert on Thursday, April 27, in the Marian Hall Auditorium.

The Chorale program consisted of pieces by Bach and Billings. They followed this up by some Brahms folk songs and a contemporary selection by Ralph Hunter.

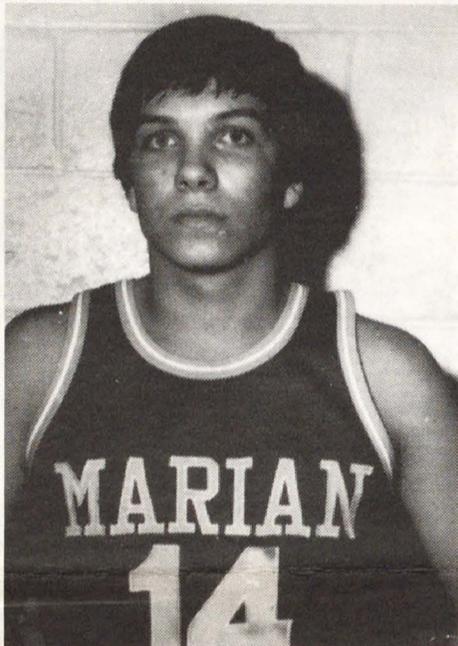

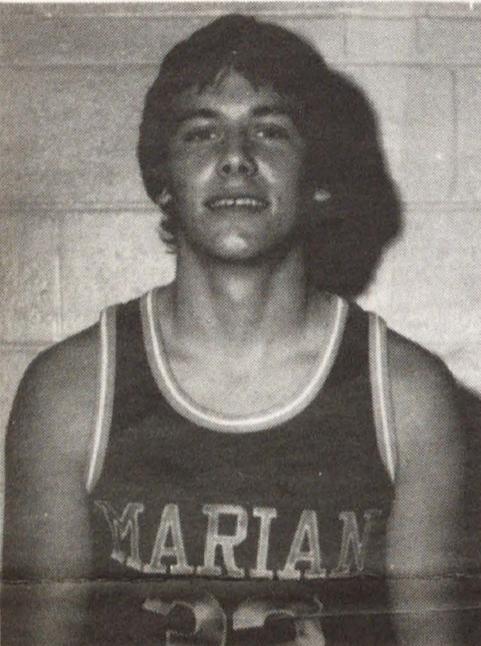

The Madrigals mixed Renaissance music by Lassus and Marley with contemporary selections of Stevens and Kirk.

Closing selections were from the musical "See-Saw".

Metric system class affords students a jump on changes

BY PAUL JARBOE

The metric system is on its way in and the old English system is on its way out. This is the basic idea that Sister Florence Marie has tried to point out to her students in Metrics class on the past five Wednesdays.

The metric system will be in use shortly and this class was a chance for students to get the jump on the change which will come. Unfortunately, only six students, excepting elementary education majors, took advantage of this course.

The next time you're driving down the road, when a sign says X-town 30 kilometers, will you know how far you have to drive? Will you know that this converts to 18.6 miles? When the time comes for the conversion, most people will be lost because they can not convert from miles to kilometers.

Are you tired of trying to add or subtract with fractions? If your answer is yes, then the metric system is for you. This system has no use for fractions. This system uses the decimal point which makes it quite easy to add and do other things.

Below is a test; take it and see how much you know about the metric system. Answers will be provided somewhere on this page.

1. 5 meters (m) = _____ centimeters (cm)
2. 50 cm = _____ m
3. 20 kilometers (km) = _____ meters
4. body temperature 98.6 F = _____ C
5. 8 grams (g) = _____ milligrams (mg)
6. 10 cm = _____ millimeters (mm)
7. 1 liter (l) = _____ milliliters (ml)
8. 1.7 m = _____ cm
9. 157 cm = _____ m
10. 500 ml = _____ l

Answers:
 6. 100 mm
 7. 1,000 ml
 8. 170 cm
 9. 1.57 m
 10. .500 l
 5. 8,000 mg
 4. 37 C
 3. 20,000 m
 2. 50 m
 1. 500 cm

Charter nursing class scores near-perfect on State Boards

By BRIAN McILWEE

"Success" is the word that best describes the experimental career ladder nursing program at Marian College as the program's most recent graduates brought near-perfect scores on their February State Nursing Board Exams.

The success was so great that 29 out of the 30 candidates successfully qualified as registered nurses. One member failed one of the five parts of the test but will be allowed to retake that part failed at a later date.

The unique program, begun at Marian in January, 1977, enrolled licensed practical nurses with working experience. After three semesters of academic and hospital-based clinical classes, completed in December, the candidates received an associate degree and the opportunity to take the state exam.

Since the results of the State Board Exams, plans have been initiated to begin an affiliate Marian College Nursing Center at Bloomington Community Hospital in Bloomington, Ind.

Director of nursing at Marian is Mary Ann Lewis. It has been through her dedicated work, aided by others, that such a successful program has been developed. Miss Lewis has been driven by her convictions for a "quality nursing program" rather than a "numbers game." Ninety-nine per cent passing truly speaks for the quality. An excellent national average is considered to be 81 per cent, according to Miss Lewis.

This year's program has 41 enrolled candidates, which began in January. Eventually, Miss Lewis envisions a program at Marian containing 65 in a class, not including the Bloomington affiliate, once started. She maintains that this is a safe level for meeting Marian's high quality standards.

Surely congratulations and hopes for the future are extended to Miss Lewis and the nursing members.

Economics prof displays cunning to the unwary

By BRIAN McILWEE

Have you ever met Ken Elmendorf? If you haven't taken a business economics course, you surely are missing an experience available only at Marian College.

Elmendorf's classes are as exciting as his background. Imagine taking a course from a lawyer with his own private practice, who also is the prosecuting attorney for Hendricks County, who is a Commandant of the United State Marine Corps Reserves, and at one time taught at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He has also worked for General Motors as a supervisor and labor relations negotiator, and on top of it all, he poses at special events as a comedian with his own ventriloquism act.

Put all of it together in a man who is in his mid 30's, but claims to have been just eligible for the draft two years ago, and you have a real experience.

Elmendorf has truly mastered the technique of an exciting lecture. He keeps most of his students awake and intrigued by relating economic theory to his private experiences. Students learn such things as the marginal utility of beer, how to "wiggle" a problem, the supply and demand of vaseline, and even how to effectively "punt" an entire test.

With the approach of a test, the students realize that they are about to be had. In walks Elmendorf, who quickly relaxes the tensions by saying that the gas station attendant who filled his sports car this morning took this test in the time it took to fill his tank with one dollar of regular and scored a 93 per cent. Besides the gas station attendant, victims of his tests (other than students) include the milkman, the mailman, the paper boy, his pre-school son, and the neighbor's dog, who does remarkably well for a terrier.

Ken Elmendorf is truly someone you should meet at Marian.

'78 Carathon nets $675 for Rogers scholarship

The Carathon was again successful this year, raising nearly $675, bringing the Kenny Rogers Memorial Scholarship Fund to approximately $13,000, which draws about $600 a year in interest.

Formerly known as Up Beat, this fund-raising project has existed for 11 years. It was set up in the memory of Kenny Rogers, a Marian grad who was killed in a karate accident.

The chairman of this year's Carathon was Nancy Smith. Special thanks were voiced by the chairman to William Pedtke and all those who participated in the high-spirited activities.

Blood Bank is richer by 169 pints this year

Forty-nine pints of blood were collected from students, faculty and staff on Friday, Apr. 21, the second on-site drawing of the year.

Last October, 52 pints were donated, bringing this year's grand total to 169 pints. Included are 68 pints donated by Marian students downtown.

Janie Cravens and Margaret Brennan serve as co-chairmen of the Marian College Blood Bank.

Marian President named director of association

President Louis C. Gatto of Marian College has been appointed to a second two-year term as a director of Independent Colleges and Universities of Indiana.

He was also elected vice-chairman of the organization at the ICUI spring meeting, held April 18 in Indianapolis.

Marian Sisters spend leisure time in variety of activities

By BRIAN McILWEE

With the approach of a weekend, the Marian College campus turns into a spa of recreation and frivolities, if not a ghost town. The weekday ritual of classes is now over and it is time for all on campus to relax and get ready for the next week's work.

By Friday afternoon in the cafeteria, the word is being spread as to what is going on over the weekend. Talk of on and off-campus parties fills everyone with anticipation for a good weekend.

For the most part, parties are the most enjoyable means of student recreation. Usually they start at someone's room or apartment clubhouse around 8:30 p.m., and then again, there are many that start at 2:30 p.m. Friday and never end until midnight Sunday.

Occasionally, students can as well be found out on a weeknight. These are usually more of the economy-minded students who can't refuse the many "happy-hour specials," such as the 25-cent Busch beer night at the Mug Rack on Tuesday.

An alternative chosen by many is to simply go home to mom and dad and pig out in front of the icebox all weekend. The empty parking lots are evidence of this suitcase action.

Throughout the Millers, Little Kings and scores of Schlitz Malt Liquors (whose bull repeatedly turns up in conversations only) being drank, one could only imagine the euphoric recreational atmosphere.

However, there is another group who also live on Marian's campus that the students rarely see and never seem to show up at such student festivities. These are, of course, the good Sisters of the convent.

Now an interesting thought arises. Although the students know what the students are doing, they have little or no inclination of what the Sisters are doing over in the convent.

In a general survey, several of the Sisters were approached and asked, "What do you most enjoy doing with your free time, especially on the weekends and in the evenings?"

The first obvious conclusion that came out of the survey was that the Sisters' methods of relaxation were significantly different from that of the dorm residents. In fact, the Schlitz "bull" has never made an appearance yet in the convent to anyone's knowledge.

Any chemistry student knows that if he had a chemical problem arise at a party, or if it simply kept him awake all night, he can usually find Sister Mary Rose in the labs over the weekend. In the evenings, Sister Mary Rose can usually be found watching TV and/or talking with other Sisters in the convent.

Sister Laurita is also often found in her business office working on weekends. However, rumor has it that in the evening she trades in her accounting visor for a deck of cards. Her favorite game being canasta.

Many of the Sisters can be seen at the various evening events held on campus. Theater productions, sports events, and movies are among the many that interest them. Another common interest were field trips to nature centers and forest areas.

Such places as Eagle Creek and Brown County offer great enjoyment to several of the Sisters who like to hike around and enjoy the scenery. Sister Margaret, Sister Olga, and Sister Margaretta are frequent goers of these types of excursions.

Sister Margaretta was, indeed, one of the more interesting Sisters interviewed, as her interests were very assorted, yet definite in participation. Besides the nature hikes, Sister Margaretta also enjoys doing handicrafts, such as needlework, reading mystery and spy novels. Her "special" treat comes during the colder seasons when she listens to the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts every Saturday afternoon.

For the most part, the life of a Sister in the convent is a little more subdued than the students in the dorm. There are some similarities to dorm life in that there are occasional practical jokes played between Sisters, but these are few and far between.

One would expect this type of life of the Sister because, after all, she is usually older than the average student. When you sit down and compare them to what your mom does on a weekend you might even consider it exciting.

Wide variety of subjects revealed in mini-surveys

Alcohol in dorms

By PAUL JARBOE

Three out of five students questioned on campus favor the use of alcoholic beverages on campus by persons over the age of 21.

The survey, completed during the week of March 6, polled juniors and seniors residing on campus. Those responding favorably were over the legal age to drink in Indiana, while one over 21 and one under dissented.

One student said that it would not be favorable for drinking on campus since there "would be trouble in keeping those under 21 from getting hold of the alcohol."

Another student believes "it should be OK to drink in the room if the person is 21. This would keep the drinking on campus and there might be less problems with drinking and driving."

One student was against this on the basis that the presence of alcohol in the dorm would detract from the learning experience that dorm life is supposed to be.

Do it again?

By CARM LOIACONO

"Would you do it all over again? After attending Marian College for four years, if you had to start over and do it again, would you?" This question was asked of a few recent graduates and graduates-to-be.

The '77 grad replied: "I asked myself this question many times and I really don't know. Marian College has bad points and good points, but I don't know. I never attended any other college, so I can't make comparisons. I do know I made a lot of friends, good friends, friends I'll have all my life. But coming back to the question, I just don't know."

The grad-to-be said: "No, I have no regrets that I went to Marian, but I feel the administration is inadequate and ineffective. The social life leaves much to be desired. I do feel that the school has some good points, including certain faculty members and the admissions staff. I think the apathy in the students stem from the apathy in the administration."

How observant?

By BRIAN McILWEE

A polling of opinion undertaken at Marian recently asked the question: "What is the first thing you notice about a girl and why?" Five male students responded.

Two of the five remarked that they noticed a girl's chest first. "Tom" said, "They're the most noticeable difference between guys and girls." "Rick" remarked, "I love things that come in pairs."

Another two of the five chose a girl's face as the item they notice first when they approach a girl. Both "Chad" and "Phil" said that if she hasn't got a good face, "then there's no reason to look at it again."

The fifth male polled said that he noticed thighs first, but would give no reasoning for his decision.

It would appear that the only obvious conclusion that could be drawn from the poll is that two out of five males at Marian go to church on Sunday and that all involved with the poll are chauvinists.

Relaxing hobbies

By MIKE BACK

Five students at Marian were asked a very simple question: "What is your favorite hobby?"

Jim O'Hara said "tennis." He feels it is enjoyable and a body-building sport. "Tennis takes outside pressures off your mind," he said.

Card playing is Nick Fohl's favorite hobby. "Strategy is what I like and cards is a combination of luck and skill," he responded.

Pat Back enjoys listening to music. He feels it relaxes his "inner self."

Larry Fox said his favorite hobby is playing golf. "Golf brings out a challenge. I like challenges and golf is a game to challenge to get the ball in the hole."

Roger Dall loves beer drinking. He said "it makes me get involved. At parties it helps to mingle with other people."

Father Head to celebrate 25 years in priesthood

By PAUL JARBOE

"If I had it all to do over again, I would." Those are the words of Rev. Bernard Head. Father Head will be celebrating his 25th year in the priesthood on Friday, May 5.

There will be a 6 p.m. Mass in the Chapel, followed by a reception and dinner in the Allison Mansion. Members of the College community and invited guests will attend.

Father Head was ordained on June 7, 1953, at Seymour, Ind. He holds an undergraduate degree from the Catholic University of America. He also holds an M.A. and S.T.L. from Catholic University. He holds an M.S. in education from Butler University and an M.A. in English from the University of Notre Dame.

Before coming to Marian in 1964, Father Head taught for two years at Ladywood School and eight years at Latin School.

Father Head has also served on the Priests' Senate for the Archdiocese of Indianapolis. He served St. Thomas More Church in Mooresville as pastor from 1972-74.

Father Head, who has been chairman of the Philosophy-Theology division since 1975, sees his job as a challenge. According to Father Head, "it is necessary to keep ahead in the field".

When asked about changes within the church, Father Head felt that they were needed. He sees the Church keeping up with the times because of the new bishops within the church. These bishops are being brought up and trained with the new Church.

FR. HEAD . . . reflects 25 years

He also feels that somewhere down the line there will be women ordained as priests. It will take some time, but he believes the Catholic Church will do this when the people are ready. He feels that the Episcopal Church was not ready for the change to women priests. He doesn't believe that the Catholic Church will experience the problems, because its people will be ready.

Father Head also noted that a person in his vocation needs a good sense of humor. It is necessary for one to survive. He showed some of his humor when asked whether or not there were any significant accomplishments in his 25 years as a priest. His reply: "My remaining a priest."

High percentage of students use alcohol in social life

By MIKE BACK

Alcohol is definitely an important factor in the social life of young adults throughout the country as well as Marian College. It exists in the major colleges as well as the small. Some college students feel that alcohol is a necessity in finding out what college life really is.

About 90 per cent of the male students at Marian have some time or other consumed alcohol on campus. The figure is about 70 per cent for women students. Drinking may not be heavy, but it is frequent on the Marian campus.

In order for the students to drink they first have to get alcohol on the campus. They have ways to get it into their rooms--past the resident director and assistants.

One of the most common ways is by carrying it in a grocery sack. They will usually hide food over it so the R.A.'s will not check. Another way is to carry it in a box with towels or clothes over it, giving the appearance of the student carrying his laundry.

Each student has his own way of getting it into his room, where he is relatively safe from being "busted." R.A.'s are usually easy-going about it, but a careless student will get busted.

If a student is busted, he goes before the R.A.'s for the penalty. Caught three times, he goes before the College Judicial Panel, which may set a steeper penalty.

Since alcohol is not allowed on the Marian campus, student organizations try to provide off-campus activities, including beer blasts, Field Day party and the senior party.

It is entirely up to the individual whether he wants to drink or not. He is not forced to. But with the rate of drinking that goes on in school, it is not hard to become persuaded.

Some young people never drink until they get to college. But students live in dormitories instead of at home. College life is a domination factor in a person's life. In the social life, alcohol is a great influence and will always be.

It is not necessary to drink in order to enjoy college. College life can be fun without it.

Baseball squad looks toward NAIA playoffs confidently

The Marian College baseball team, under coach Lynn Morrell, are looking toward the NAIA District 21 playoffs, scheduled to begin Monday, May 8.

Pursuing a winning season (10-3 at presstime) with five district games remaining, the Knights hope for good baseball weather during the days ahead. Wet grounds or cold forced the cancellation of eight games.

Hitting has been a strong factor in the line-up, with Dale Wernke and Jeff Zidron exercising the heavy sticks.

Pitching has been outstanding, according to the coach. Gary McGee and Jeff Zartman have shared the heaviest load. McGee is 4-1 and Zartman is 3-2, both with ERAs under 2.00.

Coach Morrell is happy with the current outlook. He notes the success as a team effort, with pitching and defense playing the major roles.

Freshman-dominated team leads way for softball

By MIKE BACK

Marian's women softball team started the season with big wins over Indiana Central (22-8) and (5-4). They defeated St. Mary-of-the-Woods (22-3). With about six games to go in the season their record stands at 3-2.

With only three players returning from last year's squad, a major rebuilding job was needed. Through the efforts of coach Pat Starling and player-coach Jane Aust, a group consisting mostly of freshmen has been molded into a winning team.

Injuries have hurt the team. Mary

Searle, the team's leading slugger, missed one game with a knee injury and Ronda Alexander was hitting .667 before a broken finger put her out for most of the season.

The team has shown it can hit, having scored 70 runs in just five games. Holly Bruns leads the team in base hits with 14 for an average of .667. Mary Searle is close behind with 12 hits and a .631 average. Mary has already collected two home runs and five doubles.

The home games are now being played behind the lake, so give the team some support for the rest of the season.

Marian's Director of Alumni Affairs, Ann M. Carr, has submitted her resignation to pursue full-time graduate studies at Northwestern University. The resignation is effective August 31.

In her four and one-half years as director, the Alumni Office has achieved an outstanding level in alumni involvement in activities and response to fund-raising efforts.

Consistently-high performance in Annual Fund Drive participation was rewarded in 1975 when the college received the top national award from the U.S. Steel Foundation. The competition for sustained Alumni participation was conducted by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education and included all colleges and universities in the country.

who is the number one man on the team, has consistently started in the one and two positions during his four-year career.

Also returning are seniors Wayne Humbles and James O'Hara. Both are four-year veterans and comprise the real meat of the squad as they assume the number two and three slots.

Among the young blood are brothers Jim Fohl, junior, and Nick Fohl, sophomore. Nick will fill the number four slot and appears to be the most promising player for next year, but Jim is hot on his trail.

Rounding off the roster are sophomores Vince McCann, Roger Dall, Ronnie Meyer and freshman Bobby Meyer.

The team's spirit boasts aggressive desire and hope, which have their shortcomings when applied to the athletic facilities at Marian. Cuts in the athletic budget have left the tennis team virtually on its own, as the team can barely afford game balls.

Home court maintenance conditions are embarrassing, to say the least, for teams visiting Marian. The immediate court problem appears to be a simple matter of remarking the out-of-bounds lines and repairing a few of the nets, although extensive work could still be used on the playing surface itself.
