FROM THE EDITORS:

Where can a student go with personal problems, whether academic or otherwise? There must be one person on this campus that a student can trust and feel comfortable with. At last Marian College has hired such a person. I never thought that I would have anything good to say about student services, but Mr. Phil Helner, our new counselor, can be added to their small list of assets. The answers or advice that he gives is not found on page 35 of some psychology textbook, but the answer comes from within. Many of the experiences he shares in consultations are relevant to our lives and problems. They are not derived from situations that existed thirty years ago. Perhaps most important, Mr. Helner does not talk down to the student. I feel like an equal with something to offer. Thanks Mr. Helner and welcome to Marian College. The students, indeed, have an understanding friend. I only hope that he survives student services. A friend of the students is advantageous to us and detrimental to them.

The Lighthouse Concert was a financial failure to the tune of $5000. The Student Board spent a lot of time trying to assign responsibility everywhere but to itself. Some of these reasons were the bad image of the college, the bad image of Lighthouse in the area or rather the lack of any image, the conservatism of Indianapolis, different si-multaneous events for Marian and other schools, the reputation of bad acoustics in our auditorium, etc. Some true, some were far-fetched. Whether these are good reasons or not, the Board is not absolved of responsibility. The Board made a bad judgement. As a member of the Board myself I accept the responsibility for this too.

It has been claimed that every possible energy was exerted in advertising and organizing the concert. If everything that could be done was done and failure still resulted then I believe the whole idea that Marian is able to sponsor concerts should be questioned. Yet at Sunday's meeting I already saw a resurgence of the "concert bug" in statements about what should be done at the "next" concert, and that this concert really was worthwhile despite the loss. No concert is worthwhile when it has cost every student more than six dollars out of their activities fee. Put another way--was it worth $20 for each student who attended?

The 1967 Lettermen concert met the same problem--a small crowd and over a $1800 loss. I hope the Boards in years to come can learn the lesson that this Board hasn't been able to, that possibly concerts just aren't feasible events to sponsor. How often does the disaster have to be repeated?

FROM THE MASSES:

To the Carbon,

True to tradition, Marian's student body again failed to produce. After all the screaming "give us something to do", there weren't enough people at the concert to fill even the front rows on the side aisles.

It is admitted that in the past this "something to do" may have been slightly lacking at Marian, but this past weekend was a definite exception. A great amount of money and effort was extended by the Student Association in an attempt to create an "honest to goodness" campus weekend. And those who supported their endeavor cannot but praise the series of events which was offered. I have not heard anyone who was lucky enough to have seen the Lighthouse describe them in any terms less than fantastic.

A common excuse for not attending was lack of funds. For many this was valid. It seems strange, however, that some who gave this excuse could, that same night, afford to fill their car with gas and themselves with a six pack to "get away from this dead campus."

It is unfortunate that those attending any event must suffer the embarrassment for those who aren't present. The glaring rows of vacant seats are an immediate shock to any performers and cannot help but largely contribute to the impression they form of the college.

The financial loss was great, but a bigger loss is the fact that Marian's own students failed to support their first big college weekend, and any future attempts at creating a social atmosphere will be affected by this lack of response.

(Editor's Note: I don't wish to make a direct accusation of plagiarism against Faye, however by substituting the word "Lettermen" for "Lighthouse" in her letter I think one can discover that it is identical to an article in the Phoenix, April 14, 1967 (Vol. 31, No. 4) on the Lettermen concert held that year.

Apologies to Manasa for missing their letter in our mailbox last week for the Pizza Party. Hope it was a success. Carbon

A question concerning In PIRG?

What are the Professionals? These professionals hired by InPIRG working full-time for InPIRG provides continuity and expertise, also bring original ideas to InPIRG.

These professionals are the best in the land working in the fields as:

- 1. environmental degradation
- 2. pollution
- 3. penal reform
- 4. advertising
- 5. any problem which comes under the heading of consumer protection.

InPIRG is a non-profit, non-partisan organization directed towards all phases of consumer protection. When InPIRG helps the consumer it is helping YOU, because you are the Consumer.

We hope as many students as possible will take the time and trouble to find out what this thing called InPIRG is all about. InPIRG exists for one reason and that is to help you the consumer — No matter how you read it, it helps YOU. Thank you.

Don't forget, GRIPnI spelled backwards is InPIRG.

WTLC/ FACULTY-ALUMNI GAME

This sunday in the Marian College gym, the faculty and alumni of Marian will play the disc jockeys of radio station WTLC. The profits from the game will be donated to the Kenneth W. Rogers Memorial Fund.

Making up the Marian Alumni and Faculty team will be Bill Pedke, Bill Doherty, Denis Kelly, Rick Ridge, Tom Turner, Roger Lyons, Harold Smith, Joe Smith, Terry Smith and Bill Brodnax (coach). Admission is 50¢ and tipoff is at 7:00 p.m.

Strong hands to weak,
Old hands to young,
Around the Christmas board,
Touch hands.

The false forget,
The foe forgive,
For every guest will go and
Every forebird low and
Cabins empty stand.

Forget, forgive, for who may say that Christmas Day may every come to host for guest again.
Touch Hands!

CARBON,

I'm pleased to announce that my apathy program is well on its way to being a smashing success. At last Saturday's meeting, attendance was nil -- I didn't even go, and I'm the organizer. With one exception, the campus must be accepting the apathetic philosophy very well. I have received one pointless, opinionated rebuttal. This rebuttal aided my argument rather than hurt it.

The girl who called me shall remain nameless for the simple reason that she didn't tell me her name. Anyway, our conversation was similar to this:

ME: Hello?

2ND PARTY: Hello, is this Ed Jerin?

ME: Yeah.

2ND PARTY: Well, I have a rebuttal to your letter in the Carbon.

ME: Far Out.

2ND PARTY: I think an apathetic person doesn't have any goddamned business running for an office.

ME: (being the witty apathist I am) I don't care.

CLICK

Several other possible snappy answers flashed through my mind, but I didn't want my phone taken out. But that's beside the point, so onward with my case. This is the kind of concern displayed by the above phone call that must be stomped out.

It is the cornerstone of our own government that all parties must be represented, and the rights of the minorities be protected. It seems to be obvious that the mystery caller doesn't believe in this intrinsic segment of our Constitution, and doesn't think apathy's apostles qualify as citizens, therefore not meriting representation. Maybe she thinks that all apathetic people should be rounded up, wear armbands, put in concentration camps, and finally led to slaughter. "Happy New Year -- 1940".

Apathy does not have to be a total cut of communication. One need not exile himself to isolation. A dilute apathetic state can be where anyone just minds their own business. I'm not criticizing the girl for rebuking my statements printed in the Carbon; after all, I did ask for it. But if and when she starts interfering with, let's say, my campaign, then I must step in. Opinions are okay, when left verbal, but when actions take off where words stop, then we are in trouble, similar to the fascist takeover in Germany.

In conclusion, I would urge anyone to be a little apathetic today. To my mystery caller: "Heil Hitler."

STUDENT BOARD

InPIRG:

The InPIRG (Indiana Public Interest Group) constitution was passed by the Student Board. It has also been passed by Social Council.

Lighthouse Concert:

At last Sunday's Student Board meeting, it was reported that the Lighthouse Concert was a "success" as far as being a "good" concert. On the other hand it was a financial disaster. Approximately $5000 was lost, though the exact figure is yet to be calculated by Treasurer Mike Mottram. Only about 350 people attended the two concerts, with nearly 250 being Marian students. The Board will have to cut budgets in order to cover the more than $1000 debt left after depleting the free-for-use fund that was left after this year's budgeting.

EVENTS POLICY

At a meeting this Monday Student Services Committee unanimously passed a student organization events policy which contained a clause stating: "Officers, members, and the advisor of the organization should collectively decide whether the event is to be open to the public or limited to members of the Marian College Community". It also included the statement that: "Student organization events should not be detrimental to the general welfare of Marian College".

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL --

The Intramural Basketball season is well under way by now, so let's gaze at the top teams. In League 1, the Courtly Few is likely to dominate, with the Gods of Hellfire and the Seaman Squad facing an uphill climb to the title. The Courtly Few retains the balance from last year's champions and has gained valuable outside shooters in Kelvin Comer and Larry Armbrecht. League 2 will lean towards the Jwan-Tu-Jwazuri, with scoring coming from Butch Washington and Mike Benson. The Funny Co. and the Oedipus Complex will be contenders to be reckoned with also. The Funny Co. has two shooters in Bill Eckman and John Giles, while the Complex relies on a balanced attack. The bottom of the leagues should see White Lightning and the Mother Truckers grind it out for the prestigious position of last place.

SCORING LEADERS -- (averages)

League 1

Unser, Gods of Hellfire	24.5
Foxen, Birdmen	16
Jones, Courtly Few	16
Armbrecht, C.F.	15.5
Comer, Courtly Few	15.5

League 2

Giles, Funny Co.	22
Bickley, Social Pros	20
Washington, Jwan-Tu-Jwazuri	19
Eckman, Funny Co.	18
Benson, Jwan-Tu-Jwazuri	17.5

WALT RETURNS →

Monday night, November 29, saw some maniacal action in the sport of Professional Wrestling at the Coliseum. Here are the results of the matches:

"Dandy" Dan Miller and Angelo "Neckbreaker" Poffo fought to a heated and hot-tempered draw.

"Sailor" Art Thomas pulverized Ricki "Hercules" Cortez.

In the girls' tag-team match, Donna Lemenke and The Body Venus were victorious over Mary Jane Mull and "Vivacious" Paula Steele only in the first fall. The tables were turned, however, in the second and third falls.

In the special five minutes' match, "Pretty Boy" Bobby Heenan cowardly defeated, with the help (illegally, of course) of one of his wrestlers, "Black Jack" Lanza, Yukon Moose Cholak.

In the first main event of the evening, "The Professor" and Wilbur Snyder defeated the "Black Jacks" (Lanza and Mulligan) in a spectacular first fall. However, the Black Jacks regrouped their forces and fought like brutal tigers which resulted in the defeat of "The Professor" and Snyder in the second fall. However, in the third fall, both tag-teams were disqualified by the referee when pandemonium broke loose in the ring when all four wrestlers battled at the same time.

In the second main event of the evening, the sensational "Death Match", Dick the Bruiser defeated Count Baron von Raschke in the first, second, fifth, and sixth falls while Raschke was victorious in the third and fourth falls. However, in the seventh fall, which was the bloodiest of them all, Dick the Bruiser could not get up in time before the count of ten and this resulted in Raschke winning the match and the World Heavyweight Wrestling Championship title. However, the Bruiser refused to give up the title and ran out of the ring and back to the dressing room.

The next big card is on Saturday night, December 18, and here are the two main events: "The Professor" challenges Count Baron von Raschke for the title. "Golden Boy" Paul Christy and Wilbur Snyder, the World Heavyweight Tag-Team champions defend their title against the "Black Jacks" with their manager, "Pretty Boy" Bobby Heenan.

Yours in Wrestling,
Walt
