A Fourth Major State of Consciousness?

Does the Science of Creative Intelligence turn you on? What's that, you say? In the past five years, there has been an increasing interest on college campuses and in all walks of life in the Science of Creative Intelligence. It involves a program which is scientific and adaptable to objective studies. It can be practiced by the individual without requiring any special setting, preparation, or life style, at any time or place, in a perfectly straightforward and natural fashion,

A wide range of dramatic effects has been reported in scientific literature and the accumulated evidence of these effects is now fully established. Measurements show that a twenty-minute period of Transcendental Meditation, the product of the Science of Creative Intelligence, brings the experience of a fourth major state of consciousness that is distinct from dreaming, deep sleep, or walking. Accumulated tension and fatigue which hinder efficient functioning of the nervous system are dissolved in a natural way, resulting in increased energy and creative intelligence, more inner stability and improved clarity of perception at all levels of experience.

On Sunday, March 9th, at 7:30 p.m., in Doyle Hall Lounge, there will be an Introductory Lecture on this technique, followed by a Preparatory Lecture on Wednesday, March 12th, also at 7:30 in Doyle Hall Lounge. It is not absolutely necessary to attend both lectures to learn the complete program. All members of the faculty and student body are invited and encouraged to attend.

Dear Carbon:

Around this time of the year, when everyone is trying to be on their best behavior so that the Easter Bunny won't miss them like ole Santa did, the school life begins to get one down and pretty soon apathy settles in, leaving the person feeling rotten, depressed and miserable. Therefore, it seems fitting to express my ideas as one anonymous unanimous about what MISERY REALLY is.....

Misery is getting hungry at night only to find that everything that's left in the refrigerator is what you've given up for Lent.

Misery is getting no mail-even greater misery is getting mail and finding out that it's your telephone bill.

Misery is falling asleep in class and finding out that you were snoring.

Misery is having to study for an Anatomy test instead of watching Medical Center.

Misery is flunking your Anatomy test.

Misery is, for once, being first in the lunch line and discovering that you forgot your I.D.

Misery is spending 45 minutes writing to a friend and discovering you haven't got a stamp.

Misery is studying all night for a Chemistry test and discovering that it was cancelled.

Misery is having to wait 5 weeks for a vacation.

(Con't next column)

Misery is when you have an 8:30 test and your alarm doesn't go off.

Misery is when the hot water stops working when you're half-wat through a shower.

Misery is wearing a dress and realized that you forgot to shave your legs.

Misery is when you're locked out of your room and your phone is ringing.

Misery is when you're out on a date and you have to fart.

Misery is finding a run is your only pair of nylons.

Misery is going fishing on Friday and finding out that the fish are observing Lent and won't bite your worms.

Misery is starting on a term paper the day before it's due.

Misery is running out of cigarettes when the stores are closed.

Misery is when your patch's patches of your favorite pair of jeans get holes in them.

Misery is running all the way down the hall to answer your phone and it stops ringing as soon as you open the door.

Misery is when someone has milked the "chocolate cow" in the cafeteria dry.

Misery is when it's finally your turn after waiting 15 minutes in line and the chocolate chip ice cream runs out.

Such is the miserable life of a typical freshman student at Marian College.

I'M FOREVER BLOWING BUBBLES

You say you haven't seen Lawrence Welk lately or his bubbles? Well, Sing along with Mitch hasn't been too popular lately either. So, what's the big complaint? Here it is!!

I noticed two weeks ago, we were listening to quite a variety of music while dining in the cafeteria. It was quite nice. Not only did we have the exuberating stimulating pleasures of rock music, but our minds were soothed and mellowed by beautiful soft, flowing melodies. Ah yes, very ~~romantic~~.

Maybe Marian students are too cool for that old lady music. So your mother listens to it, big deal!! Does that mean we should ban it? I guess so, because they did. Students complained and now we no longer have to listen to that corny stuff. A comment I heard was, "The nuns probably like it". Does that mean we must automatically dislike it? That's a pretty narrow attitude.

All along, I've heard members of the older generation saying, "How can you kids listen to that trash?" We accused them of being narrow minded and unappreciative of art. Well, seems to me we're as bad as they are. We can't see beyond our own generation. There are all forms and types of music and each possess different qualities. They are all contributing in their own way to the art of music in order to innovate the minds of men. There is beauty found in every creation, so why not give ourselves a chance to grow and appreciate the imaginative inspirations of great artists. Don't play it so cool. And "Joy, deep and pure will sink into your soul like the evening sun", Ah yes, that's music!!!

ONCE UPON a FULL MOON

Once upon a time in the aesthetic old Kingdom of Ether-ealia, there dwelt a group of chivilrants. They were known and well loved by most all in the kingdom, but yet they were not content; they longed for something more, for prestige-influence. Now these chivilrants were by no means dense, and knew well how to gain the favor of the kingdoms rulers,
They showed their benevolence by attending all of the spiritual events in the kingdom. They demonstrated their value to the governing heads of state by sleuthishly revealing frivolous behavior from within the ranks of the Royal Guard.
It seems one of the guards had become rather playful on a yuletide evening and decided to bare it to a crowd of giddy, young maidens who were out caroling. These clever chivilrants had not only displayed their value, but at the same time, increased their chances for a position on the Royal Guard where they could obtain the prestige and influence they so longed for. But you see it was a small kingdom in which word traveled fast, and many of the subjects were well acquainted with these fellows. These subjects knew that there had been many a time, and these times were not long past, that this group had been rather frivolous themselves, and let themselves forget about many of the laws of the land. When the subjects saw what was going on, there was an outcry for equal justice to do done to both sides. The subjects arouse and exposed the whimsical law breaking of these power-seekers. When the rulers of Etherealia learn of this, they proclaimed the clan to be hypocrites, and they were from that day forth, forbidden to hold any power of authority in the kingdom.

To My Brothers and Sisters

Slowly but surely, many are coming aware that the hope of the sixties has not become the realities of the seventies. Racism still breeds in America as an internal cancer, slowly destroying the future of the American dream for Blacks and all oppressed peoples. For those who would point to the progress of Blacks in an attempt to demonstrate the advancement of Black people, I wish to call your attention to the fact that many stereotypes of Black family life, is reinforced and show window Blacks, who are getting tired of doing nothing positions, are moving out of the window. Just because R.W. Leon Sullivan, National Director of O.I.C., presented an award to J. Paul Austin of Coca Cola, doesn't bridge the ocean which lies between our two seperate and unequal society here in America. The revival

The revival yet needed in America is to tell the Black people that their slavery either mental or physical, has come to an end and telling whites to let go of the chains.
We need a new Revival to proclaim that the battle has been won and the old rule is no longer needed. We need a new Revival to say that Justice is not blind and the bank of freedom is not bankrupt. We must rise up O Men of God and stop being thermometers and start being thermostats. You see, thermometers react to the climate change both inside and outside, while a thermostat controls the climate. We, as the future of America, must control our destiny, or as Martin L. King stated, "Either we live together as Brothers or parish together as fools. We must stand ahnd in hand or we shall hang together on the gallows of our own foolishness.

EDITORIAL

Marian can be a very unsatisfying experience at times.
The social life is one of the poorest in existence and the academic program is anything but superior. One thing Marian's atmosphere is conducive to complaining. If you are one of the complaining students, I suggest you pay closer attention to the student board.

The Board seves a double purpose. It provides its members with objectives and the good feeling of accomplishment once the goals are reached. Don't let me mislead you.
Progress is slow and frustration is great. It takes a determined person to work, worry and wait for the fruits of the Board's labors, but the rewards are worth it.

The rewards include advancements such as the initiation of the guest hour policy, students on faculty and College councils and this years project, a student on the Board of Trees.

The students do have a voice. The voice grows in poten- tial and prestige year by year by year because it is well or- ganized and attracts high-caliber individuals. The one hitch to Student Board is that it is dependent on the student body.

The The elections for next year's Student Board are sched- uled for March 24. If interested in an office, look over the positionson pages two and three. I hope you consider run- ning, because there is a lot of room for improvement. Re- member; you are the voice of the students.

Contrary to popular belief, Women's Football-oops, Basketball Intramurals are being played--and believe us, they "are being played." After last week's competition, only one team remains undefeated--The B.S. Bombers!!!! Schuck's Garden and Beaver Shooters hold a close second place, as each have only lost one game. Schuck's Garden was defeated by 2 points to the Beaver Shooters, and Beaver Shooters lost by 6 to the B.S. Bombers. Important games to watch for in the final week, are Schuck's Gar- den vs B.S. Bombers on Monday night and Schuck's Garden vs Wazuri on Wednesday night--both inportant in determining the No. 1 position.

If you ever remember anything in our "great" sport's articles, the sentence to remember isnot "who beat who"-- but the following:

"Intramurals are to develop good human relation- ships and attitudes by stressing sportsmanship at appro- priate opportunities."

If necessary to know, the standings are as follow:

STANDINGS

B.S. Bombers	6	0
Beaver Shooters	6	1
Schuck's Garden	6	1
Wazuri	5	2
Gumballs	4	3
Pick Fire	3	4
Young and Restless	3	4
Fruits	2	5
Cool Ghouls	1	6
