

IPCDC revolutionary experiment at Marian

BY MARY JO KUEHR

While in the Student Services building you have seen a tricycle or two, or heard peels of childish laughter, it hasn't been your imagination. It's just that the Marian College Community once again has extended itself in the area of community involvement.

The Indianapolis Parent-Child Development Center, IPCDC, is part of a second phase in a national replication research project financed by the U.S. Office of Child Development and Eli Lilly Endowment. Marian has had the privilege to sponsor this center which is modeled after other parent-child projects in Birmingham, New Orleans, and Houston.

Participants in the program are selected at random from the Indianapolis area proper. The IPCDC group has grown from a membership of five mothers and their children in May of 1976 to 21, which is the number participating at the present time. This total does not include siblings which are cared for over the age of three. Dr. Arlene W. Brown, the project's coordinator, hopes that 50 children and their mothers can be accommodated once the center takes up its residence in the new Children's Museum in late September.

The IPCDC bases its experimentation on the hypothesis that the mother is the best teacher for the child during the significant early period of three months to three years of age. Dr. Brown sees this project as an enriching experience for both mother and child. The parents interacting with each other as well as program counselors plan the activities of the child and how they may best work with them.

Quite uniquely, mothers are also given opportunities to develop skills that will help them to enhance their day-to-day lives. Classes are offered in piano, interior design, knitting, arts and crafts, home economics, typing and health education.

There are also support services such as free transportation, children's medical care and clothing, and free meals which better enable mothers to attend the center.

Marian will continue its sponsorship after the move into the Children's Museum. The colleges' education and psychology classes are expected to continue visitation and observation at center sessions and Sr. Clare Whalen will remain as campus coordinator. Dr. Brown hopes that the mutual sharing between the Center and Marian will continue and that possibly a student volunteer program could be created for the center.

CENTER BLESSED — Fr. George Coffin blesses Center at dedication

Campus Ministry Center brings service to all

BY BOB MELEVIN

On Wednesday, September 1, a Liturgy Workshop inaugurated a new era in the area of Religious Affairs at Marian College. Approximately 40 students and faculty were jammed into two rooms on the first floor of Clare Hall. The workshop was opened with the blessing of the new Campus Ministry Center at Marian College.

The Campus Ministry Center is located on the west end across from the cafeteria and is designed for prayer and discussion groups, quiet reflection, inspirational reading, counselling, or just talking. A variety of events are planned for the coming year and will later be announced by the Religious Affairs Committee.

The new center is funded by the college under the direction of the Religious Affairs Committee and the newly-designated part-time campus minister, Sister Sue Bradshaw.

The Religious Affairs Committee has adopted its own logo and newsletter. The emblem, designed by Pat Perez, is a cross with a horizontal bar forming the design into a "C" for the Christian Community at Marian. According to Sister Sue, the emblem symbolizes the goal of the Committee to "foster the growth of a Christian Community at Marian College."

The C.b. is the title of the newsletter of the committee to inform the campus of its activities. The first issue is soon to be released.

The blessing in the festively decorated center was given by Father George Coffin, chaplain of Marian College and Director of Religious Affairs.

The liturgy workshop was given by five students: Kathy Klingenberger, Diane Stier, Mary Beth Gianoli, Dave Record and Laurie Wolverton.

The Religious Affairs Committee has offered the facilities of the new campus ministry center to other campus groups concerned in developing a spirit of community and service. Those wishing to use the center should make a reservation by calling Ext. 560 or 232.

He will be the first major political candidate to speak before students and faculty on election issues and personalities. The public is invited to the 12:30 p.m. program in Marian Hall Auditorium.

The candidates will be sponsored by Marian's program committee.

'Summer'

BY BOB HAHN

The new Peine Arena Theatre will house the opening production of the Marian College theatre season, "Suddenly Last Summer," a long one-act play by Tennessee Williams.

Written partially in protest to his sister's lobotomy, Williams' play explores the relationship of a disturbed young girl and her family. The setting is the old New Orleans garden district in the 1930's.

According to Don Johnson, director, the play's stage directions call for the fruits and flowers of the garden to appear to be "human organs, freshly ripped from bodies, still glistening with blood."

Cast in the production are members of the Advance Rehearsal & Performance class: Dianne Irk Barbera as Mrs. Venable, Maggie Sheehan as Mrs. Holly, Linda Leonard as Catherine Holly, Greg Bauer as George Holly, Kathy Donohue as Sister Felicity, Donna Hyderkhan as Miss Foxhill, and Jim Ward as Doctor Sugar.

"Summer" will open on September 24 for a three-day run.

DR. DAVID CRANE

Should we gamble on this one issue?

In order to write my first editorial of the year I did not have to go far in order to find a suitable subject. Within the past few weeks the headlines in the newspapers or the main stories on the evening news have dealt with the presidential candidates' views on abortion.

Both of the major party platforms say that the candidates are personally opposed to abortion but that neither party will attempt to pass a Constitutional amendment on abortion. These statements appear quite clear. So why is there so much controversy being shown by the public media?

The newsmakers are anti-abortion groups composed of many Catholics who are demonstrating at campaign stops for their cause. This cause, which is being labeled and is supported by the Catholic bishops of the United States, is that of a demand for a Constitutional amendment against abortion no matter what the circumstance. These demonstrators have become unruly to the point of causing shouting and pushing matches during campaign stops.

I am personally opposed to abortion, but I feel that it is about time that the bishops of the United States and those who support the anti-abortion movement quit making a do-or-die issue out of one of the many aspects of the pro-life movement.

For the past four years the Catholic Church has been leading the fight for a Constitutional amendment on abortion. Within the past year, and especially the past month, the Church has been putting so much emphasis on this movement that, in my opinion, the world has come to look upon the Catholic Church as only being concerned about this issue and ignoring many other important social issues that need support of this institution.

I believe the Catholic Church should give up its effort at a Constitutional amendment. It is evident, especially in the candidates' platforms, that such an amendment is hopeless at the present time. The actions of the demonstrators have certainly not shown a Christian attitude.

I feel that the Church should retain its stand on abortion because I fully agree with its view, but what I don't agree with is its continued insistence on this issue as a campaign issue. The Church should not disregard its stand but its manner of achieving adherence and acceptance of its position.

The Catholic Church should thoroughly examine all of the candidates' views on other topics such as world hunger, which was the theme of the Eucharistic Congress in Philadelphia last month, or poverty, peace, human justice, and rights of the individual.

These matters added together weigh much more than the issue of abortion. The Church should not oppose a candidate on one issue but should rather take a look at the candidate's total platform and then support the candidate of their choice. Let us not lose the war because of one battle.

Carbon, Phoenix needed

As we all should know, there are two student news publications, the Carbon and the Phoenix, circulating on Marian's campus.

Both are needed publications. Even though both cover much of the same news, the Carbon and the Phoenix have their own distinctive styles.

The publications should not be compared as to which is the "better." But, it is up to their respective editors to provide the Marian community with the most informative and best possible publications.

If there is something which you do not like about a publication or if you have any suggestions, the best place to voice your opinion is to the editors. Marian College publications are here to serve you -- the Marian student.

I'm glad we have both publications because it allows for a bi-partisan view of what goes on at Marian College.

Recruiting makes change

The Admissions staff is currently involved in a recruiting campaign, but this one is a little different. We are recruiting Marian students to be part of a team.

The information sheets and sign-up cards that were distributed last week explain how you can become involved. My purpose in writing this letter is to encourage all of you to do so.

Members of the alumni and faculty have already committed themselves to several programs involving prospective students. Now we are asking you.

If every currently-enrolled student found only two prospective new students in the period of a whole year, that would be close to 1,600 new prospective students. Individually the effort isn't very much, but collectively it would make a big difference in the future of Marian.

Not everyone is the type of person who wants a school like Marian; and not everyone is the type of student that we want at Marian. You, as a current student are both. You can do the best job of finding others who are like yourself. What you can do will make a difference.

If for some reason you did not receive a sign-up card please call us at Ext. 218 or see Renee Grontkowski. Thanks in advance for your help.

Friday

On Friday, September 17, the Junior Class is sponsoring an Ice Cream Social. This event will be in the Perc beginning at 8 p.m. and will continue until the ice cream is gone. Admission is only 50 cents for all the ice cream you can eat. There will be a choice of three flavors: chocolate, strawberry, and vanilla. To challenge your creativity, and perhaps your stomach, the toppings will be available in any combination of the following: butterscotch, chocolate syrup, marshmallow, pineapple, strawberry and mixed nuts.

For entertainment, two short films, one featuring the Harlem Globetrotters and the other, "The Dentist," starring W. C. Fields, will be shown. Highlights of the silent film era is the topic of the longer film to be shown, "When Comedy Was King."

Door prizes will be awarded to both guys and gals, so come and join in the fun.

Saturday

Jerry Disque, Senior Class President, and eight other adventurous seniors are planning the Annual Senior Beer Blast at St. Thomas Aquinas parish hall this Saturday, September 18, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. St. Thomas is located at 46th and Illinois.

According to Jerry, the main purpose of this informal gathering is to help promote new friendship among the students and faculty here at Marian. Jerry adds that new this year will be soft drinks for those of us who do not drink beer, and a disc jockey who will preside as host for the event, providing music and dance.

Students and faculty are invited for the minimal price of $2.50 at the door.

Career prep discussed

In preparing for your career, there are four components which are time-consuming and undergoing constant change. Even though all four areas are related to each other and are necessary for a complete picture, you can focus on one at a time.

You can explore these four areas in a number of ways, but I think there is some logic for addressing them in the order I will present them now.

- I. Personal Awareness/Assessment
- II. Job Market — Occupation Clusters - Interest Area
- III. Synthesis of I and II Set Career Goals — Decision Making
- IV. Implementation - Job Search

In career counseling, there are so many factors involved that we are often at a loss when trying to help the client sort them out, synthesize them, and make sound decisions concerning them. A career is not a job, it is a life-long process involving all aspects of one's life.

To begin the process of exploring one's career, he must first know where he is. This means asking questions concerning: needs, interests, skills, abilities, achievements, short and long term goals, personal preferences and potentials in relation to a variety of life-styles, etc.

This is not an easy or simple task, and one that needs subsequent reviewing after the initial exploration. There are exercises, discussion questions, surveys, inventories and other tools that help guide an individual to the critical areas that need to be answered by each person.

Second, a person needs information on the job market, occupational clusters and particular occupations of interest. Points of concern here include: job duties, skills, training and education required, working conditions, places of employment, avenues for advancement, usual hours, salary, fringe benefits, future trends in hiring, types of people involved, etc.

This requires basic research on the individual's part, talking with people in the field and counselors. There are materials in the library and in the Career Information Room in SAC that speak of these concerns.

Third, a person needs to set career goals and make decisions. By reviewing all the data he has on himself, the job market and occupations of interest, he can begin setting short and long term career goals. Clear, operable decisions need to be made and carried out step by step.

Realistic goals and decisions should be emphasized as well as measurable parameters in meeting them. Value judgments are involved throughout this entire process, many times making it very difficult.

Fourth, a person has to start the wheels in motion, implementation. He should choose his strategy, begin his job search, and go through the mechanics of getting a job, i.e., letter writing, sending resumes, interviewing, more letter writing, etc.

In short, he must "sell himself" - a polished, finished product. One that he knows, is proud of, and is confident of now and in the future.

Those that make career plans early rather than "letting fate take its course," usually come much closer to their goals, are much more satisfied with their efforts, and are more successful in their pursuits. Some people think that the future is vague, uncertain, and they have no control over it; but you do have the potential and power to build your own future and take responsibility for your life.

For this first semester, there are five Career Planning sessions scheduled as part of the ongoing Orientation program. They will center on Personal awareness/assessment with some attention given to career /job assessment and decision making.

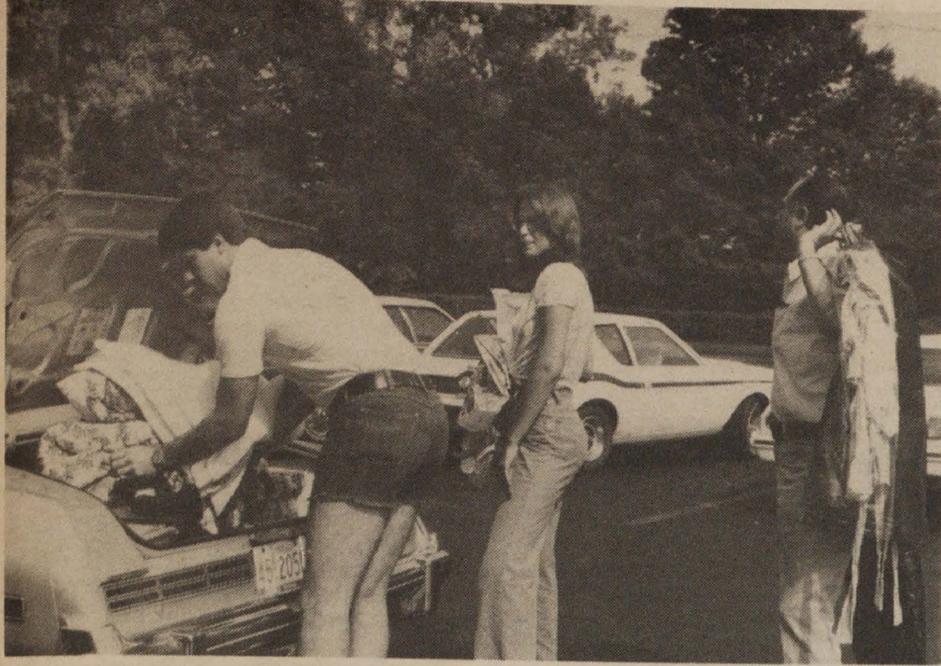

These seminars are open to all Marian College students, but especially to freshmen and sophomores since they have the time to think over the experiences and results of their self-search. For anything of worth to be ours, we must put something of ourselves into its making. In essence this is what the seminars are asking of you, i.e., to invest yourself at present for yourself in the future.

Sessions will be held at 7 p.m. Monday or 12:30 p.m. Thursday with each of the five sessions presented twice, once at each time. Since most students have not been "oriented" or exposed to the various components involved in preparing for a career, I encourage students in all classes to participate.

Towards the end of October, I also plan to have a session especially for seniors on: resume and letter (inquiry, cover, follow-up) writing, and interview techniques, questions, and tips and guidelines on how to research occupations.

Seniors should have their resumes ready to send out, along with a cover letter, to possible job leads by the start of second semester. How well you know yourself, the job you want, the company(s) you are looking at, and your career goals will dictate how long the process will take for you.

Music Dept. receives record collection

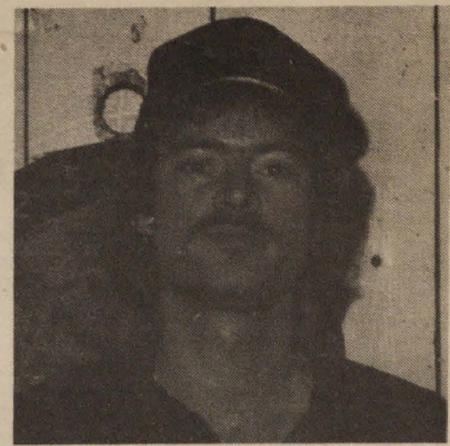

Marian College has been selected to receive the 100-record collection of American Music being produced during the bicentennial year by the Recorded Anthology of American Music.

The Anthology is a non-profit company created through a grant from The Rockefeller Foundation. Its purpose is to trace the social and cultural history of the nation through its music.

American music in all idioms and from all periods will be represented in the series, to be produced over a three-year period and completed by the end of 1978 on the New World Records label.

Approximately half the discs, expressly recorded for New World Records by distinguished American performing artists, will be largely devoted to works never before recorded. The remainder will be drawn from the vast store of historic recordings, many of which have been long unavailable.

Marian's library has received the first 10-record set. Additional units of 10 will be made available as completed by New World Records.

John Ruffra heads Doyle

BY RENEE GRONTKOWSKI

Who is the young man around Doyle Hall hiding behind the blue baseball cap? The answer to this question is simple. He is John Ruffra, the new Resident Director of Doyle Hall.

John is a 1973 graduate of Bellarmine College, Louisville, where he was a Business Administration major. He has also completed over 30 graduate hours at the University of Kentucky towards his master's degree which concentrates on Higher and Adult Education.

When asked of his impressions of Marian, John commented that Marian is just like Bellarmine. Both schools are small, private, Catholic colleges, noted John. Comparable also were the people found in both institutions. John has noticed that here at Marian, like Bellarmine, there is a great variety of people. Some of the students are very complex and difficult to get to know while others are very open, and it is easier to develop a rapport with these students.

Being a rookie at Marian as a dorm director, John really has no definite plans for the dorm. His main concern is getting to know the guys' wants and needs. After he feels he has accomplished this goal, John will then make the necessary changes.

Perhaps John can give our baseball players a few pointers since he played baseball four years at Bellarmine. During his senior year, John received the "Outstanding College Athlete of America" award. So guys if you need any pointers, John can lead you in the right direction.

As for the girls, ladies, John stated no preferences in what he looks for in a girl so now is your chance to meet an interesting gent! John said that anytime you need someone to talk to his door is open.

We would like to extend a warm WELCOME to John. We know he'll do a great job as Doyle's new R.D.

Overseas scholarship

The 1977-78 competition for grants for graduate study abroad offered under the Mutual Educational Exchange Program (Fulbright-Hays) and by foreign governments, universities and private donors will close shortly. Only a few more weeks remain in which qualified graduate students may apply for one of the 550 awards which are available to 54 countries.

Most of the grants offered provide round-trip transportation, tuition and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only or a stipend intended as a partial grant-in-aid.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant, have language ability commensurate with the demands of the proposed study projects, and good health.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled in Marian College may be obtained from the campus Fulbright Program Adviser Sister M. Rachel Schulte, who is located in Registrar's Office. The deadline for filing applications on this campus is October 13, 1976.

Project Search

The Indiana Department of Public Instruction honored four members of the Marian College Community for their participation in project Search.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded to Stephanie Stout, a 1976 graduate, Chris Foxen, Mary Prosche, and Mrs. Joyce Johnston, instructor in Special Education.

Project Search is a year-long operation established to locate the exceptional children in the state of Indiana who are not receiving the proper educational and necessary services.

The project's goal is to make the public aware that services are available and to identify the children who need these services.

The Marian College group operated a booth at Lafayette Square, distributing literature and answering questions relating to the project.

According to Mr. Steven Lawless, the Marion County coordinator of Project Search, 737 children had been located statewide who had not previously been involved in these programs. Ninety-five of these children were found in Marion County.

Judaic studies

A resident lectureship in Judaism will be taught during the 1976-77 academic year at Marian College by Rabbi Murray Saltzman of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation. The course is being endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society.

The Chautauqua Society, the educational project of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, has assigned 600 rabbis to lecture at 2,200 colleges, endowed 200 accredited courses in Judaic studies, and donated 90,000 Jewish reference books to college libraries. The JCS has also produced 37 movies on universal Jewish ethical themes for public service television and group showings.

Rabbi Saltzman, who has been the spiritual leader of his congregation since 1967, was appointed in January, 1975, by President Gerald Ford to serve on the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Intramural season is launched

BY CURT STOLL

The Marian College intramural season was kicked off September 9, when men's softball teams took to the field. The 1976 league will sport eight strong teams who will play a six-game season plus a championship tourney. The tourney will be a two-and-out, with the winner being proclaimed intramural softball champions.

This will be the second consecutive year that men's softball has been played in the fall. This reorganization seems to agree with the weather, and eliminates many of the rain-outs of the spring.

Immediately following the softball season, men's intramurals will swing full force into football. League Commissioner Jim Stockrahm is looking forward to a well-balanced league that will feature probable favorite, I Eta Thi, last year's league runner-up.

The fall will also feature a new style of women's intramurals. Starting off with kickball, the women will participate in tennis, badminton, ping-pong and volleyball. This revised intramural program for women will be organized by the new women's varsity coach, Clara Caito, and senior Linda Niesen.

All intramural programs are open to anyone enrolled at Marian College, and everyone is encouraged to organize a team and have fun.

Lewis directs nursing; program begins with January term

BY JILL KRIDER

"There is a tremendous need for training nurses," said Mary Ann Lewis, Director of the new Marian College Career Ladder Nursing Program.

The program to start January, 1977, is designed for Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN's) with one year of nursing experience to graduate with an Associate Degree in Nursing, and to prepare them for the Registered Nurse State Board Examination. The program will expand in the future to accept Registered Nurses (RN's) who graduated from a diploma program and have no four-year college degree.

At the present time Miss Lewis is selecting and testing over 200 applicants for the 40 accommodations in the program. Candidates for the positions are selected on general aptitude, achievement, results from examinations, employer recommendation and a personal interview.

The program will consist of three semesters of academic courses and clinical training in a 12-month period. Students will take their clinical training at Community Hospital, the affiliating agency for the program. LPN's will graduate with 64 credits and an Associate Degree in Nursing. RN's who will come in the future may graduate with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

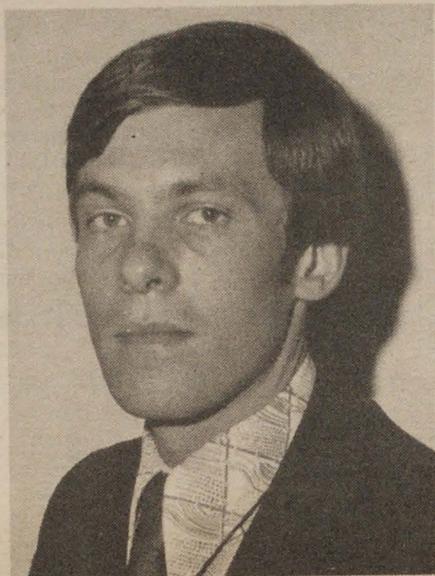

Miss Lewis added, "This is the first year for the program. It has never before been done in Indiana and it is a very innovative and controversial program."

Miss Lewis explained she had become interested in nursing and teaching when she was young and got into nursing to become a teacher.

She started her training in a St. Vincent's diploma program where she became an RN. After three years of nursing she continued her studies in Marquette, Wisconsin and Marilac, Missouri where she received a Bachelor's Degree. She continued at Butler University to receive her Masters Degree.

She was a practical nurse and Director of Nursing at Community Hospital for six and a half years. When she heard about the program to be started at Marian she said she was very impressed with the need for training nurses.

Miss Lewis commutes daily from St. Paul, Indiana located 45 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

JOHN GRIMES

Grimes to coach MC Knights

BY KEN ECKSTEIN

Change is an element that is both necessary and inevitable. Without change any organization can stagnate in its own routine. The Marian College basketball team, however, refuses to be caught up in its past, and is again changing in its strategy. This change can be attributed directly to Marian's new basketball coach, John Grimes.

Coach Grimes, a 1968 graduate of Indiana State University, received his Master's Degree in Physical Education in 1971 after serving two years in the army. Since then he has been both assistant basketball coach and assistant football coach at Olivet (Mich.) College. Grimes now lives in Indianapolis with his wife and three-week-old son.

After only two weeks of conditioning, Coach Grimes could not really give an evaluation of the team's strengths and weaknesses, but he did mention that he was impressed with the attitude and workability of his players.

When asked if he had any specific goals or predictions for the season, he replied that the team would be competitive and his only goal was to build the best possible basketball program Marian could have.

Coach Grimes wants to present a whole new outlook as to the strategy and attitude of the players and the students. He makes no promises, but says that there is going to be a new and different breed of basketball here at Marian College. All the Marian community has to do is turn out and give their team their support!

Caito, new women's coach

BY JILL KRIDER

"I started out playing softball 10 years ago. After phys. ed. in my freshman year of high school I directed myself through athletics," says Clara Caito, Women's Varsity coach.

Miss Caito is a graduate of Cardinal Ritter High School of Indianapolis and a 1976 graduate of IUPUI. She participated on volleyball, basketball and softball teams during school. This is her first year at Marian and she will be coaching both the Women's Varsity and B teams.

In addition to coaching part-time at Marian, Miss Caito is also a part-time physical education teacher at St. Monica's School for grades one through eight.

She explained she is looking for girls who have a good spirit and attitude and those who have fun playing and who are knowledgeable of the rules of the game as well as the ability to get along with others.

She added that the volleyball and basketball teams will be needing scorekeepers, timers and team managers for the upcoming seasons.

Volunteers make Manasa a service organization

MANASA is volunteers, students who give of themselves and their time to the service of others.

According to Mary Beth Gianoli, club president, the purpose of the club is "to stimulate volunteer programs especially in the area of mental health."

Other officers of the club are: Cheryl Daily, vice-president; Mary Jo Wenning, secretary; and Chris Foxen, treasurer. Their advisor is Sr. Olga Wittekind.

Activities sponsored by the club are in full swing. Last week, a Volunteers' Fair was set up in Marian Hall. A total of 50 students signed up to volunteer for various organizations such as the Volunteer Bureau, the Noble Schools, Girls' School, Stopover, Logansport Hospital and the Religious Affairs Committee.

On Wednesday evening, September 8, Mr. Jack Emely, Coordinator of Volunteer Services for the Veterans' Hospital of Indianapolis, came to speak on volunteering in the hospitals. A short film was shown concerning the many opportunities for volunteers.

MANASA also sponsored a raffle and a square dance to raise money for the Christmas Toyshop which is to be held at Logansport on December 4. At the Toyshop, patients are allowed to shop for toys and presents to send home to their young relatives.

Marian College will be hosting the MANASA Statewide College Conference on October 1 and 2. Guest speakers will be scheduled for this event.

MANASA is a service organization which helps people who are most of the time overlooked in today's society. We, at Marian, can help MANASA as they in turn help others by giving them our full support.
