LETTER.....

A couple of weeks ago in the CARBON you requested any ideas from students to fill up the space otherwise used by the applauds and hisses. Well, how about a brief summary of current events?

If you recall from last years CARBON the editors would condense the major topics of the to fit the CARBON. I believe this to be an excellent idea. Many students do not read the newspaper daily and, perhaps for good reasons. If the CARBON would take on such a responsible assignment I feel it would be beneficial for everyone.

Thank You
Dennis McCullough

REPLY.....

I appreciate your suggestion, but my own opinion is that the CARBON could not properly cover the important news events which take place over a period of an entire week. A brief line or two would be the maximum coverage for any given news item and this limited information would be somewhat meaningless without the possibility for a more detailed story elsewhere in the paper.

The daily Indianapolis Star is easily accessible to students (first floor, library) and it contains news summaries and detailed follow-up stories for important current events. It is also FREE! to read!

I am willing to try the news summary if a sufficient majority of the students express an interest in them. So far, very few people have even commented that they were not included this year and those who have mentioned it had negative feelings about their return to the CARBON. What does everyone think about the idea?????

AS THE KNIGHT'S COVE OPENS

Carl Commuter: Hey, Don, what did you do last weekend?

Don Doyle: Friday was my big night. I had a date with my English comp. book. Saturday I went grocery shopping and partied with my laundry. This place is dead on the weekends! No wonder there's a ghost in Stokely Mansion! Then, all day Sunday I chewed on my ID card because I want to ask Cathy Clare out on a date. But I don't have a car and there's hardly anything to do around here. Now the computer in the card keeps failing me. I can't even eat!

Carl Commuter: Relax. Let the grand opening of the Knight's Cove solve your problem. The cove is going to be an on-campus place to eat and mingle with friends in the basement of the SAC building. The big day is Sat., November 7, from 8pm to midnight. TAG is going to sponsor a coffeehouse with live entertainment, pizza, pop, and plenty of opportunity for socializing. I sure plan to be there. It'll give us commuter students a chance to mingle with the residents and get to know some more people. But what's really important is the the Cove will be open regularly, so now there's someplace to go when studying for Humanities gives me the hungries.

Don Doyle: And no little computer to fail me either! Now all I have to do is hope Cathy says "yes".....

Will Don do his laundry again this weekend? Will Cathy go out with him? How will she react when she hears he's been seeing an English Comp book? But most importantly, will Don starve until the TAG coffeehouse opens the Knight's Cove? Find out next week in the continuing drama of "As the Knight's Cove Opens."

THE SPORTS HUDDLE-----BY JEFF HOOD

All I can say for now is that the L.A. Dodgers are not finished. But, things are looking dismal for Tom Lasorda and crew (as they find themselves in a 2 games to 0 record in the World Series going into tonight's game at L.A.) A split was needed badly by L.A. at New York. However, 2 wins at L.A. for L.A. and we've got a Series. Some say that the chances of the Dodgers taking the next 2 games are slim and none, and slim just left town. Hood Prediction: Yanks in five.

Marian's Curt Carlson, professor of Psychology participated in a 10 mile run at Eagle Creek this past weekend sponsored by one of the greatest

This past week it has been difficult to struggle through a 5-day week after last week's too short 4-day vacation of mid-term recess. During my break, I went home to Mom and Dad and observed something I had been away from for a long time---the art of domesticity.

Being at school, I'm used to being pampered by luxuries such as prepared food, sheet exchange, and maintenance services. All one really needs to do at school is study, eat, sleep, and maybe clean his room once a month. When you are at home you become aware of what is entailed in homemaking. Some people live to scrub and polish, but I think one of the world's worst sins is cleaning! There never seems an end to dusting. By the time I get from one end of the house to the other, it is time to start over again! The vacuum cleaner is a pain to operate because not only does its noise register a 6 on the Richter scale, but my back goes out from hunching over to use it! Another vice I hate is doing the dishes. My hands shrivel up like prunes from having them in water and the phone always rings when I'm up to my elbows in suds. As far as doing the laundry, I never seem to separate things right and my whites turn out blue and my blacks turn out purple---it's kind of like getting a punk rock wardrobe every time I wash. Of all the evils in the home, the place I am the most lost is the kitchen. To me, "cook" is a nasty four-letter word. Betty Crocker would turn over in her grave if she ever saw how I have burned water, turned toast to ashes, and melted cheese all over the oven. It amazes me to see how well my parents can prepare meals without a cookbook when I can't even remember the recipe for cereal and milk!!!

After being home a few days, I became aware of how much work we get out of at school but someday when we graduate, we will have to do all of those domestic goodies we loathe.

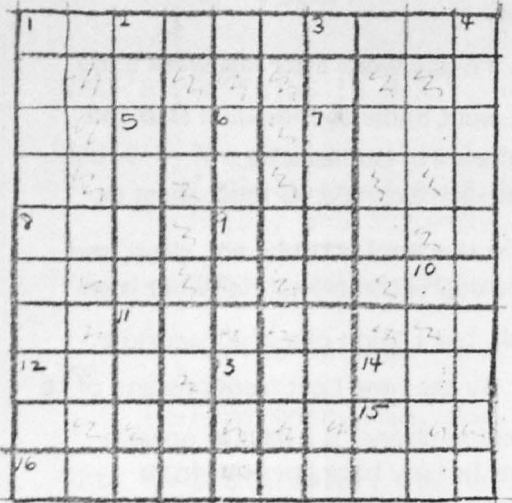

My advice to anyone who hates housework with a passion and doesn't even know which way to spray a can of Lemon Pledge is to either take a crash course in domesticity, hire a maid, or become a hermit with infested dust bunnies clinging to your house.!!!!

MARIAN COLLEGE RATES HIGH ON HOSPITALITY!!!!!!

The evaluations from the Statewide Student Conference held at Marian, Sept. 25-26 have been tallied, and very many of them commented on the friendliness and hospitality of the Marian College community. Special notice was made of the kindness of those women in Clare Hall who offered to host the overnight guests. Again, many thanks to all. We are proud of the College Community!!

TINY HANDS by Katrina Knarr

A new beginning, a precious new life,

Only growth and love ahead

Tiny hands and tiny feet

Tiny Body with gentle heartbeat.

At first so small, yet so alive

Daily becoming aware, and knowing

The joy of feeling

Longing for soft warm arms to

Hold, yet content in the waiting

Content in the warmth of love,

Anticipating the miracle soon to come.

Something wrong, what is this pain?

This sudden piercing agony:

I don't understand!

Is no one there?

Tiny hands and tiny feet

DID YOU KNOW??????????????

-in the Northern Hemisphere water goes down drains counterclockwise. In the Southern Hemisphere it goes down clockwise.

-until 1796 there was a state in the United States called Franklin. Today it is known as Tennessee.

-the Los Angeles Dodgers acquired its name from a shortened form of "Trolley Dodgers". The term was first applied to Brooklynites many years ago, at the height of the trolley-car era, because of the maze of trolley lines crisscrossing the borough.

-in medieval England beer was often served with breakfast.

-the temperature of the Earth's interior increases by one degree every 60 feet down.

ENTERTAINMENT NEEDED!!!

You might have heard by now that the Perc is to be taken over by new management. To add to the excitement the Theatre Arts Guild (TAG) will sponsor a grand opening November 6th.

Now, what we need is some entertainment, some guitars, voices and comics. If your talents fall in these general areas or some other really bizarre area please give us a call.

If you're not sure, or need more information, don't hesitate, just phone Ext. 443, or Ext. 576, or even Ext. 362.

Thank You,
Dennis McCullough
